

INFANTRY BATTLE TO END CAMPAIGN

Oregon Battery and Cavalry Due to Reach Portland From Gearhart Today.

ALL TROOPS ARE PAID OFF

Regulars Demonstrate Manner in Which Regiment Should Be Handled in Action—Idaho Officers Give Reception.

CAMP JACKSON, Gearhart, Or., July 20.—(Special.)—A brigade infantry battle, in which the entire infantry force in camp here will take part, tomorrow will be the concluding feature of the 1914 field instruction camp.

The Oregon cavalry will entrain for Portland before this maneuver takes place.

The men of these two organizations are preparing to break camp bright and early in the morning. They should reach Portland shortly after 12 o'clock.

Today the handling of a full regiment in battle was demonstrated by the Twenty-first Infantry, with the National Guard officers and non-commissioned officers as observers.

Later the troops were paid out of funds provided by the War Department.

Tonight the officers of the camp are guests of the Idaho regiment at a military reception at the Gearhart Hotel.

Encampment Notes

THE roll of Troop A, Oregon Cavalry, contains the names of at least half a dozen veterans in the service of the United States Army.

As well as a row of service badges obtained during his long service Sergeant Newton wears a Certificate of Merit ribbon, awarded for bravery in action.

The men of the Third Oregon Infantry are going in for the full calendar of sports while off duty during the 10 days at camp.

Corporal Hockenbrock, of Company F, Third Oregon Infantry, has installed an apparatus in his tent at camp, with a sending capacity of about ten miles.

Captain Peroni, in command of Company H, Third Oregon Infantry, has ascertained the ability of his men of his command by a series of competitive drills during drill hours at Camp Murray.

Privates Jack Carroll, Company C, and George Bartland (Kid Portland), of Company B, Third Oregon Infantry, were 125-pound prizefighters in a boxing exhibition on the beach Friday evening.

The Hospital Corps of the Oregon Guard, under Major M. B. Marcellus, is the result of a recent reorganization of the medical department.

Sergeant C. N. Roeln is a physician. Privates W. H. Leard, a druggist; L. F. Stratton, a druggist; A. T. Semper, a dentist; James Ahern, a druggist; and Sergeants J. F. Kromer and H. Ellis, registered nurses.

This capable staff of assistants makes Major Marcellus' command exceptionally efficient, handling the most intricate cases of the early morning "stick call" with a simple case of "sunburn" or more serious complaints.

Enterprise members of the Hospital Corps and several companies of the Third Oregon have established public canteens at the head of their company streets and are doing a flourishing business with the men in search of refreshments, tobacco, fruits and sweets at cost.

The Post Exchange of the Twenty-first Infantry, U. S. A., is the example set for the company canteens, although operated on a larger scale.

Sergeant Reginald Blyth, of Troop A, Oregon Cavalry, has an interesting story of military service.

SHEEP TRAIL ISSUE

Lake County Man Would Drive Stock Over Modoc Reserve.

HEARING ON MATTER HELD

Effort to Force Patronage for Railroad Charged in Denial of Permit—Destruction of Range Threatened, Is Answer.

LAKEVIEW, Or., July 20.—(Special.)—To determine whether or not Lake County sheep may have a permanent drive-way across the Modoc forest reserve, in California, as a means of transporting them to the San Francisco market, a meeting was held here last Friday under the auspices of the forestry service, with Assistant District Forester J. W. Nelson, of San Francisco, presiding.

During the last month Manuel Vicente, representing the Western Meat Company, of San Francisco, has been in this neighborhood buying fat mutton sheep. On the supposition that the sheep could be driven through the Modoc reserve, he paid an average of 90 cents a head more than was being paid by other buyers for fat wethers, bringing the price up to $4.50 and $4.75.

When a permit was requested from the forestry officials to drive the sheep across the reserve it was peremptorily refused.

first applications in any of the towns in which they operated if it had not been for Minard's letters?"

He also referred to an instance in the testimony where the witness had testified that he had paid one-half his "location" fee and paid the other half on the receipt of Minard's letter.

"Good Faith" Alleged. "It is not proper for the court to comment on the case," said Judge Bean, "but Mr. Strahan's motion is not well taken and is overruled."

Attorney Dennis made a similar motion—that of a verdict for Logan—and was overruled.

Attorney Ryan, for Sellers, then made a plea for a directed verdict for his client, contending on the evidence that had been presented that the case should not be permitted to go to the jury.

He read a transcript of Harper's evidence to show that at Tenino and Cle Elum, where Sellers' friends had taken locations, following Sellers' lead, his client had acted in good faith.

Then he quoted authorities to the effect that nothing can be charged in a conspiracy case by implication or inference.

"In the judgment of the court," said Judge Bean in ruling, "it is sufficient to call upon the defendant for an explanation of his conduct to the jury. I therefore overrule the motion."

Judge Bean then instructed the members of the jury that they were not to infer from his rulings that he had any opinion or questions of facts concerned in the case.

"That is for you to determine," he said, "while the court will determine on questions of law. The defense will start the presentation of its case this morning."
