It hopes in this next series to show a great deal more of the machine and, while the individuality of the team is of course an essential part of the whole. Captain Cprbett believes his team is now in shape to battle against the odds of perfected mass play.

The Waverly Whites will play on Friday at 4:30 and Sunday at 3 o'clock the Blues will try their skill against the Vancouver quartet.

Last night's drill was a typical one of those designed to infuse more effective battle work. The men drilled with particular emphasis on taking the bail from each other's lead.

This was the falling of the last matches. Time after time, Corbett or Voorhies or some other individual had Waverly on the high road to an easy gial, but failed because the other members of the team were not prepared to take the advantage put forth by the rider who broke in Harry Robertson, who recently joined the team, has been showing up strong, his value to the four being his quick.
