CHURCHES UNITE IN WORK Five Denominations Will Co-operate in Mexican Campaign.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 26.—Five of the largest Protestant churches, acting upon an agreement reached by their boards of foreign missions, have decided to unite for a campaign of religious and educational work in Mexico. Instead of working independently, as has been their custom for nearly a century, the five denominations, will send forth their missionaries under the name of the Evangelical Church. Churchmen of all denominations greet the announcement as one of the great-est triumphs yet achieved in the direction of church unity.

The five churches that have decided to unite for the uplift of the Mexicans include the Methodist Episcopal, Baptist, Presbyterian, Disciples of Christ and the Congregational Church. The united churches will aim to secure "the carliest possible evangelization of the entire Mexican nation."

The plan is believed to have originated with Robert E. Speer, the great missionary expert and leader of the Presbyterian Church, who has been making a study of religious conditions in Central and South America. Bishop in Central and South America. Bishop William F. Oldham, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, is chairman of the general committee representing the mission board of the five denominations. The bishop believes that a united Protestant Church, operating with a large force of missionaries, and the good will of the newly constituted with a large force of missionaries, and the good will of the newly constituted Mexican government, will accomplish incalculable good for the uplift of the people there.

Missionaries who returned to the United States during the recent struggle between Huerta and the Constitutionalists for the possession of that country, say that Mexico stands in greatest need of two things—the Bible and public schools. Nearly 90 per cent of the Mexican people are said to be illiterate, and in many districts the Bible is almost unknown.

The citles in Mexico have many large and beautiful cathedrals, but the religious education of the people in the country districts has been neglected. The five denominations, co-operating under the name of the Evangelical Church, will send forth their missionaries to preach the gospel from end to end of the country. In addition they will establish schools in sonnection with every congregation. In this campaign the five churches count upon the good will of the government that will be established to succeed the Huerta regime. They figure that the will be established to succeed the Huerta regime. J. M. HANNAFORD MAKES HASTY TRIP TO ST. PAUL.

Northern Pacific Head Says He Has Information Strike of Enginemen Likely Will Be Averted.

After a flying trip by special train from St. Paul, J. M. Hannaford, president of the Northern Pacific Railway arrived in Portland over the North Bank yesterday morning. He departed almost immediately for Flavel to inspect the new steamship terminals building there for the North Bank, work on which began June 23.

The Northern Pacific owns a half interest in terminals and the big steamships Great Northern and Northern Pacific, which ply from there to San Francisco. The Northern Pacific also has a half interest in the North Bank road, the Astoria railroad, and the Ore-gon Trunk Railway, as well as the Oregon Electric and the United Railways, and to look over these proper ties is part of the purpose of President Hannaford's trip.
