WIFE'S EYES FLIRT', SAYS HUSBAND SUED

She Alleges He Deserted Her on Top of Mountain at Night on Honeymoon and Forced Her to Return Alone Among Snakes.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Alleging that while they were on their honeymoon her husband deserted her on top of a mountain and permitted her to return alone among snakes and in the dark to her hotel, Mrs. Mary C. Early filed an action for separation against Joseph N. Early. The defendant is a manufacturer and heir to a trust fund of $250,-000 from the estate of Joseph Early,

Mrs. Early recites a long list of alleged cruelties, beginning with their wedding trip after their marriage in St. Patrick's Cathedral, in 1903. She says her husband has taught his children to hate her and that once when she went to see them at Riverside, where her husband lives, they threw sticks at her and told her to go away because they were "daddy's boys."

Mrs. Early relates that as she and her husband climbed a mountain at Hot Springs, Va., when on their wed-Hot Springs, Va., when on their wedding trip, they met two men at whom she glanced. Her husband, she asserts, then left her alone on the mountain. When she reached the hotel, she says, her husband told her that "she could not make her eyes behave" and waned to flirt with every man she met.

"My sister, Mrs. Louis Morgan, is a tango teacher," the wife says. "One day my husband came home and found my sister and I cating Camembert cheese. He threw the cheese out of the house and then put my sister out because he did not believe in the modern dances taught by her."

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.-Hector O. Erickson, of this city, while on business in Marshall, Mich, a small town through which the limited trains speed without stopping, to ease the anxiety of his parents sent them a telegram announcing he was marooned and would return the following day and explain. The telegram reached his parents' home, announcing he was "married," instead of marooned, and immediately there was an uproar among all his rel-atives. When Erickson finally arrived home he found the doors closed. Meeting relatives on the street, he received a stony stare and they would listen to scarcity of Agricultural Artisans Is Becoming More Acute and Efficiency Shows Decline.

LONDON, Aug. 3.—There is an acute rural problem in Ireland as well as in England and it mainly concerns the wages and hours of the agricultural laborer. Many of the best workers on the land have left the country.

Much light is thrown upon the con-dition of the agricultural market in the Emerald Isle in the annual return to the Irish Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction, issued today,
There has been for many years, the report states, a marked scarcity of agricultural laborers and it is becoming more and more acute.

In 1911 there were 199,900 such laborers, of whom 195,864 were male and 4036 female, against 231,871 in 1901, of whom 217,652 were males and 14,219 females.

The general laborers in 1911 num-bered 192,989 (190,969 males and 1139 females), compared with 79,935 in 1991 (76,879 males and 2185 females). There has been a decline in effi-ciency among Irish laborers. The best labor has left the country and farmers complain as much of the lack of effi-ciency as of the difficulty of getting

Of these 789,659 were members of farmers' families, 160,819 were other permanent laborers and the remainder were persons temporarily employed.

Taken all around, says the report, there are signs of a slight but steady advance in real wages. That, no doubt, is due to a rise in the cost and standard of living and to a fall in the number of laborers available for farm work in consequence of emigration to other in consequence of emigration to other countries, migration to towns and the employment of direct labor upon roads.

Wages, however, are still very low. Plowmen obtain the highest.

The working hours during the six months from April to November are usually from 7 A. M. to 6 P. M., with an hour for dinner, while in Winter the working period extends from light to darkness. A decrease is reported in the number of migratory laborers, who have stead-ily declined from 20,500 in 1909 to 15,-000 in 1913. Connaught and Ulster are the only provinces in which there is any large migratory movement.

VIENNA. Aug. 3.—A wedding whose guests numbered more than 8000 persons and whose feasting continued for eight days was celebrated recently at Sadagora in Bukowina, one of those remote country districts of Austria-Hungary, where mammoth wedding festivities on a scale utterly unknown in America or Western Europe are the rule.

The affair at Sadagora exceeded in magnificence and lavish hospitality any guntion on record in that district, however. It was a Hebrew wedding. Sadagora enjoys a certain fame in Eastern Europe as the seat of the grand rabbi was out of pocket to the renowned Rabbinical dynasty known as the Miracle Rabbis. The bride was the daughter of the grand rabbi of this line, Aron Friedmann, belongs to a branch of the same Rabbinical dynasty at Czortkow. The marriage was arranged by the chiefs of the two families, entirely without the knowledge of the young people. In fact, they met for the first time the even-

The chiefs had taken it for granted that there would be no hitch in their plans, and had invited the rabbinical femiliar of all the Orthodox Jews in
