SERVIAN PRESS BITTERLY ASSAILED BY AUSTRIAN

News Given Out That Russian Ambassador Had Taken Tea at House of Austro-Hungarian Ambassador at Belgrade and There Found Death.

BY J. VON MAKDYCH. First defendant Austrian reserves. From the Deutsche Zeitung, Portland. WHEN shortly before the outbreak of the war the Russian Ambassador at Belgrade was suddenly departed for Serbia scattered the columns and merchandise that the Austria-Hungarian monarchy was responsible for the death of Mr. Hartwig. They called Austria-Hungary a murderous monarchy, which since the times of Maria Theresa caused murders to be committed. The Serbian press published in an unequalled manner the news that Hartwig had taken tea at the house of the Austria-Hungarian Ambassador, Baron von Giesel, and that he had found his death in that infernal kitchen.

In that manner Serbia attempted to create an intense feeling against the monarchy. However, how little she succeeded at that is best proved by most of the European daily papers, which characterize this calumny as a product of over-heated brains.

The moderate stand which Austria-Hungary took toward Serbia was at all times everywhere appreciated and even at the time of the crisis, when the investigation of the assassination was in full progress, all rumors connected with matters which were alleged to be related to the assassination at Sarajevo were received with the greatest caution. Only when Serbia refused to give full information concerning the disaster and failed to refute the supposition that Serbia participated in this terrible deed, then the monarchy, in order to guard and preserve its national honor and dignity, was obliged to resort to the severest measures.

Treatment Serbia Deserved Told. Not only the Danube monarchy but all civilized world should have expressed its indignation over this shameful act, and on account thereof should have treated Serbia with utter abhorrence.

However, only in Germany, who had lost at Sarajevo a dear friend and true ally, was such an attitude, which was dictated against the guilty ones from Vienna approved of, and now, when the arms of the various nations will settle the dispute, Germany will be afforded an opportunity to prove her proverbial loyalty, while hesitating Italy is assuming a waiting policy toward her ally, the house of Hapsburg.

And this is the reason why there is existing between Germany and Austria-Hungary an alliance based on real communion of interest, whose success can only be guaranteed by the prompt fulfillment of its intentions, which are even independent of the form and the circumstances of written treaties and which are kindled by unshakable and real German loyalty.

Big Nations Criticized. Not so are the relations between France, Russia and England, which are nothing but an alliance brought about by a sickly consumptive struggle fostered by a continuous jealousy and enmity and ever ready among themselves to snatch from each other gained advantages. For 39 years of the last century one can trace the policies of these three nations and find repeated proof of the truth of this last assertion. And even now these three nations only join hands for the protection of their own interests. England, of course, in order to fish in troubled waters.

However, all their hopes must prove vain. Germany and Austria, who would never have permitted themselves to become engaged in a war, are being prepared for all eventualities, are bound to emerge victorious and we are confident that we shall remain and still continue to develop. No hirelings nor demoralized army is being put in the field by us, but well-trained soldiers who are used to and who will respond to the highest requirements. Every individual soldier being inspired by the highest motives and the satisfaction and the clamor to fight for his beloved country, and who are bound to succeed by virtue of the realization of their undefeatable strength.

RASH ON NECK SPREAD INTO HAIR

Nearly Whole Back of Head Covered. Red and Scaly, Hair Thin, Itched and Burned, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Healed.

P. O. Box 105, Antelope, Mont.—"My husband had a tiny red spot on the back of his neck near the edge of the hair. We did not think much about it at first and it grew every day slowly and then we thought it was ringworm. He began to treat it with medicine but it did no good. If anything it made it worse for when the medicine was applied it would smart and burn so badly that it would nearly set him crazy for a while afterward. It continued to spread until nearly the whole back of his neck was covered with a bright red rash clear up into his hair. It made an awful looking place; it was red and would get scaly. His hair seemed to get thin at the time. It itched and burned from the very beginning; the itching was dreadful at times and he could hardly keep from scratching. When he did scratch it would bleed. It was dreadfully annoying.

"I told my husband I believed we could heal the ringworm with Cuticura Soap and Ointment and we at once got some. It had then been seven months since it first started. He used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and it grew better right along and then disappeared and left no scar whatever." (Signed) Mrs. A. C. Fairchild, May 7, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail. Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexioned, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Sold everywhere. Sample of each mailed free. Write for them on the skin and scalp. Address—Dept. "C," Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston.

Prussian in Drinking Bout Saying Farewells Reaches Battleground Sooner Than He Expected.

A German friend decided to visit his bartender yesterday afternoon before leaving for Germany to join the ranks of Emperor Wilhelm. The Prussian, who was known as "Gussie," is a member of the Prussian reserves.

At each saloon "Gussie" visited he purchased a farewell round of drinks and after several visits he landed in a downtown saloon conducted by an Irishman.

"Gussie" decided that he would not buy the Irishman any drinks. Soon the Japanese porter of the place announced in loud tones that England would defeat Germany.

That was too much for "Gussie." He leaped to the top of the bar and proceeded to make a speech of Germany. He proclaimed that Germany could lick the world and that he was going back to Germany. He was interrupted by a husky Irishman, who demanded here "Gussie" why "Gussie" was going back to Germany.

"I'm going back to fight," replied "Gussie."

"You don't have to go back to Germany to fight; you can fight right here," declared the Irish subject of King George.

When Germany and Great Britain, represented by Ireland, fought a bloody battle for supremacy.
