of the judges was postponed until August 31.

"A decision for the plaintiff would affect the title of all irrigated land in affect the title of all irrigated land in Eastern Oregon," said Mr. Cochran. "It would result in endless confusion. To grant the injunction the court must declare the water right statute unconstitutional. It would stop us from making adjudications and tie things up until the Legislature could pass a remigident providence in this city. However, the evidence is being used and it appears likely that the jurors will have no further use for it by the time the injunction suit is heard.
