FEDERAL ENGINEERS REPORT ON NORTH CANAL UNIT. Company Asks $300,000 for Project and Experts Say It Could Be Built for $184,000.

SALEM, Or., Aug. 12.—(Special.)—That the work on the North Canal unit of the Central Oregon Irrigation project, which the company has offered to sell to Oregon and the United States Government for $300,000, could be built at present for $184,000 is a report made to Secretary of the Interior Lane by Government engineers.

The subject was submitted to Secretary Lane for investigation, with a view to completing the project through state and Federal co-operation.

The report suggests a plan whereby the amount can be reduced. The plan is to serve both the canal and other parts of the project.

WAR TO AFFECT HATS

Milliners Say Winning Nation Will Set Styles.

Winter Headgear to Have European Features as Seen by American Designers.

If the war continues one month or several years, its effect on millinery in Portland will be the same—rather startling, Misses or Winter hats will be decidedly foreign, and the army that becomes the most popular will have its peculiar headgear and colors perpetuated and displayed on the heads of American women.
