

SCHOOL BELLS RING; DAYS OF PLAY OVER

Only Satisfaction for Portland's Youth Is That First Session Will Be Brief.

BOOKS TO BE EXCHANGED

Enrollment Predicted at 1000 More Than Opening Last Year and Faculty Has Been Increased by 50, Giving Total of 1000.

Reading, writing and arithmetic taught largely without the use of the principal order of business for the school children of Portland during the coming ten months beginning this morning at 9 o'clock.

But the best feature of today's attendance, insofar as the typical boys and girls who are reluctant to get up five days of play each week is concerned, is that classes will be kept only about half an hour this morning.

The book lists and census forms will be distributed among the pupils in the respective rooms and probably nearly every teacher will make a short talk to his or her class on the purpose of the work for the coming year.

Request has been made by the Superintendent's office that the children in each building be assembled wherever possible to sing the "Star-Spangled Banner" in commemoration of the composition of that anthem 100 years ago today.

At the conclusion of these short exercises the pupils and high school students alike will be dispatched to the book stores to get their individual supplies of textbooks for the opening term. Because this year so many new books are included in the course of study, there necessarily will be a large number of books to exchange. School officials say that more new books will have to be purchased and exchanged this year than ever before in the history of the Portland schools.

DELINQUENT TAXES FEW

OF $9,000,000 COLLECTIBLE ONLY $500,000 YET UNPAID.

New Law, Abolition of Rebates and Other Factors Delay Gathering of County Funds.

By arrangement with the publishers the book stores are authorized to make prescribed allowances on old books turned in toward new ones, the price quotations being given on the book lists. Realizing the confusion that would result if all of the books were bought at the downtown book stores, as has been the custom heretofore, in former years an arrangement has been effected by which an oversupply of books for all grades will be handled at 50 separate book stores and stations scattered over the city. The aim has been to supply a particular station that will serve each school district and the teachers have been instructed to request their pupils to purchase their books at the stations nearest home.

Recitations will not be held until tomorrow when the first lesson assignments will be given.

The principals and teachers are to have trouble of their own this week. Following dismissal this morning, the teachers will determine the best method of starting the work ahead in their respective buildings. Where crowded situations exist, requests for extra teachers for transfers will be made subject to the approval of the Superintendent.

Principal Expected to Report

Each principal is expected to report at the City Superintendent's office in the Courthouse today and discuss any problems that may have arisen in any of the buildings. Instructions will be given and each principal to notify the administrative offices of the attendance in each class room. This procedure will be followed each day this week and weekly thereafter.

By this means it will be possible to trace each day the growth of attendance in the different grades and buildings. On the opening day last year 22,664 were enrolled and it has been predicted that the opening enrollment this year will be about 1000. About 1000 teachers and supervisors are on the district payroll this year, as compared with 950 at the same time last year.

The Portland district is equipped with 64 school buildings, all of which have been placed in trim for the commencement of work today. Mr. H. Thomas, clerk, and F. A. Naramore, superintendent of properties of the district, made the rounds of the buildings yesterday and Saturday to make certain that all were in readiness and to instruct the janitors on how to commence their work today.

Private Schools Open, Too.

Virtually all of the private schools in Multnomah County outside of the Portland district and the various private schools in Portland will also open for the year's work tomorrow.

Head College will open to an expected attendance of 230 with a strengthened faculty and with its course extended to include the four full college classes. St. Helens Hall will open for day pupils only.

Hill Military Academy opens today, but Columbia University will not formally until tomorrow, although many of the students have arrived.

Father Gallagher, former head of Columbia University, who is now in charge of St. Mary's College, near Notre Dame, Ind., will be succeeded at Columbia by Father Bolton, formerly of Austin, Tex.

The increase of tuition charged non-resident students for attendance in the Portland high schools is expected to increase materially the attendance at all of the private schools.

"Many parents and students have concluded that if they are going to pay a heavy tuition for high school, they might as well pay a little more and derive the increased benefits of smaller classes and individual attention at the private schools of Portland," said an officer of one of the prominent Portland private schools last night.
