A SMART affair of yesterday afternoon was the bridge tea for which Miss Hazel Weidner was hostess at her residence, in honor of Mrs. George W. Helms, wife of Captain Helms, who is visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. S. E. Joseph. The rooms were attractive with a profusion of brilliant-hued garden flowers, and three tables were arranged for the players. At the tea hour about 15 additional guests called. Card honors fell to Mrs. Helms, Mrs. William Morton and Mrs. Elizabeth Freeman. Misses Inez Barrett and Hazel Crocker assisted in serving.

SAN FRANCISCO GIRL WHO RETURNS TO SCHOOL AND KANSAS CITY GIRL WHO IS VISITING IN PORTLAND.

Miss Katherine Tyley

Miss Katherine Tyley will leave today for Chicago, to resume her studies at the Art Institute for this Winter. She will be accompanied by her father, Lewis M. Tyley, who plans to return to Portland in a fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Mayhew, of Irvington, entertained at dinner Wednesday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stewart of St. Paul, Minn. Mr. Stewart is general superintendent of the Great Northern Express Company.

Otto S. Schnauffer, who, during the Summer, has been in charge of the dances at Barview, has returned to his home at 424 Williams avenue.

Miss Merle Post, of Lebanon, has just returned from an extended visit in California. She passed last Fall and Winter in Los Angeles, and the rest of the time in San Jose and San Francisco. While in San Jose she was an active member of the Players' Club, taking prominent parts in different plays. Miss Post is entertaining her cousin, Miss Carmen Kertson, of Los Angeles, and many delightful affairs have been planned by the hostess. Both Miss Post and Miss Kertson will be guests at sorority houses in Eugene next month.

The Oregon-Washington Railway and Navigation Company's mechanical department employees' band, E. M. Ringer, director, will give their first annual concert and dance in Baker's hall Saturday evening. Concert from 8 until 8:45 P. M. and dancing from then until midnight.

The young people of the Hawthorne Park Presbyterian Church will be entertained this evening at a party and social evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Poppleton, 625 Knott street. All young people of the church and its community are cordially invited to be present and a delightful evening is promised. Take Irvington car.

Miss Josephine Wagner is enjoying a most delightful month's vacation in San Francisco, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hiram Strong and daughter have returned from their country home at Sandy and are domiciled in apartments at the Rex Arms for the Winter.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Houser are being felicitated upon the arrival of a son who made his advent Tuesday morning.

Recent arrivals at Sol Duc Springs are Mrs. Frank Riegler and C. Y. Baker.

Miss Irma Kiehlley, of San Francisco, a charming, vivacious, sub-debutante, left Portland a few days ago to resume her studies at the University of Oregon in Eugene. She is popular in sorority and college circles, and passed the Summer visiting friends and relatives both in this city and at Seaside.

Miss Helen Tschudy, of Kansas City, Mo., is the house guest of the Misses Mary and Harriet Kern, and is receiving considerable social attention. She shared honors recently at a large tea for which the Misses Kern were hostesses, with Miss Evelyn Kingsley, now Mrs. Medford Reed.

Complimenting Miss Edith Prater, an attractive bride-elect, Miss Florence Curran entertained a number of their close friends at a bridge party Wednesday afternoon. The Curran residence was decked attractively with a profusion of yellow chrysanthemums, brown-eyed susans, autumn foliage and pond lilies. Six tables were arranged for the players, and card honors fell to Miss Edith Dunne, and a handsome special prize was given for the guest of honor.

Mrs. F. L. Litherland and Mrs. J. Curran assisted in the dining-room at the tea hour, and Miss Naomi Beck with presided at the tea urns. The guests included Miss Prater, Miss Tess Mack, Mrs. Ben Wing, Misses Alice Autzen, Marie Haller, Ann Taylor, Helen Sallor, Katherine Bowby, Vera Harrington, Mary Martin, Naomi Beck, Ruth Amesbury, Misses Klump, Ora and Helen Harrington, Ruth and Helen Dunne, Madeline Groh, Marguerite Falgout, Misses McMillan, Barbara Holcomb, Genevieve Matesson, Jennie Boston, Hilda Freiwald, Margaret Shields, of Tacoma; Mrs. Clarence Trenn, Mrs. Litherland and Mrs. Curran.

Miss Prater's wedding to Mr. Holcomb will be an event of September 24, and many affairs are being arranged in her honor. Mrs. T. T. Geer will preside at a luncheon today for Miss Prater, when covers will be laid for eight.

Women's Clubs

By Edith Knight Holmes

REPRESENTATIVES of all the women's clubs of the city, public school teachers and other prominent women have been invited to meet with the Oregon Congress of Mothers on Saturday afternoon for a conference regarding "Woman's Day" at the state fair. Mrs. Aristine Felts, president of the congress, will preside. It is the aim of the women to make their day, September 24, the most important day of the year. The meeting will be held in the You building in the welfare exhibit that is being conducted there by various social service organizations of the city. The baby tests will be continued today and tomorrow morning. They are being directed by the Oregon Congress of Mothers.

Dr. Mary V. Madigan will go to Clatskanie today to conduct the better babies tests at the Multnomah County fair and tomorrow she will go to Canby to serve in the same capacity at the Clatskanie County fair. She will have general supervision of the contests at the state fair.

Chapter C. P. E. O., Sisterhood will meet this afternoon with Mrs. E. H. Loomis, 551 Hawthorne Terrace. Chapters A and G will be guests. An artistic musical programme will be given.

GETTING A START

Private Life and Business.
The following dialogue occurred between the president of a large company and one of his employees:

President—Be seated, Mr. Smith. What can I do for you?
Employee—I want to talk with you about a raise of salary.

President—That is proper; it is a subject always open to discussion. How long have you been with us?
Employee—Over three years.

President—Your salary was raised at the end of the first year, was it not?
Employee—Yes, sir.

President—And at the end of the second year?
Employee—It was, but I received no increase at the beginning of this year.

President—The superintendent discussed you with me. On what grounds do you base your request?
Employee—Because I think I'm worth more.

President—Why do you think you're worth more?
Employee—I ought to be. The longer I'm with you, the more it seems to me I ought to be worth to you.

President—You're right, Mr. Smith. You ought to be worth more to us, but I'm sorry to say you're not.

Employee—I don't understand you, sir. I've always done what I was told to do.

President—I admit that, and you're worth what we're paying you, but no more. During the past year you've seemed to be listless and indifferent. It's true that you do what you're told to do, but you don't seem to have any heart in it, no enthusiasm. May I be frank with you?
Employee—I should be glad to listen, sir.

President—You appear to be sleepy and tired, and you don't do your work as though you were interested in it. May I not inquire how you spend your evenings?
Employee—Pardon me, Mr. Brown, but I'm here on time and attend to my duties, does it concern the house what I do outside of business hours?

President—I'm glad you put it that way, and I'm not offended, for it gives me an opportunity to say something to you which I have been obliged to say to others. Your out-of-office time is your own. It is for you, not for me, to dictate the policy which you shall pursue, provided you don't bring disgrace to our house. Aren't you fond of society?
Employee—Yes, sir.

President—You often out late?
Employee—I suppose so.

President—You've good material in you, and there's no reason why you can't burn the candle at both ends. I'm not asking you to give up society wholly, but no one can keep late hours, and be efficient in his business. If your principal interest is away from the office, and while at work you're thinking of what you're going to do in the evening, you can't perform your task satisfactorily, either to yourself or to us. Am I not right?
Employee—Perhaps you are, sir, but it seems to me that I should decide what my conduct is to be away from the office.

President—You've a right to do as you please, but you haven't a right to play on your own time and rest on my time. What you do outside of the office is your business, provided it does not interfere with my business. I've a right to expect of you your best possible services. You can't be efficient unless your life is normal in business and out of it. Social life, provided it doesn't interfere with your health or your duties, is not to be condemned. I, for one, desire to have all of my employees enjoy normal recreation, but I don't carry it to excess, you'll interfere with your life's work. I want the best of you, or none of you.

Employee—Pardon me, Mr. Brown. We needn't prolong this discussion. The decision is for you, not for me, to make. If you want more pay than I'm giving you, you must earn more, and not only by doing what you're told to do, but by taking an interest in your work and by feeling that you're working for yourself more than you're employed by me. Unless you take this position you can't be valuable to me or to yourself. Although I'm nominally your employer, you are, in fact, virtually your own boss. The better you work for yourself, the better you'll work for me. What is your decision, Mr. Smith?
Employee (soberly)—I think you're right, Mr. Brown, and I thank you for presenting the matter so clearly to me.
President—That is well. I shall personally watch you after this, and as soon as you're worth more to this company you'll receive an increase of salary. Good morning.

Y. W. C. A. Notes

MISS HELEN STAFFORD, who served as religious secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association for two years, left recently for the East, where she will enter the National Y. W. C. training school in New York City. Several secretaries and members of the local board assembled to bid her goodbye. She went by way of the Canadian Pacific.

Miss Georgia C. Wicker is the new secretary who will take Miss Stafford's place. Miss Lina B. James, the general secretary here, met Miss Wicker in Hartford this Summer and was much impressed with her ability.

The social side of the association's meetings will be an important feature. After each Sunday vesper service there will be an hour devoted to welcoming strangers. No girl who wants friendship need feel lonely if she will attend these services. The vesper hour on Sunday will be devoted to a talk by the secretary and some songs by the Rev. Frank W. Gorman, with Mrs. Elsie W. Bishop as chairman. "The Life That Wins" will be the subject.

Yesterday the swimming tank was well patronized. There is a great demand for swimming lessons. Society girls, working girls, housewives, all are taking up this branch of the work of the association.

The cooking classes are being formed. In them will be many bride-elect who will learn all the arts needed in the management of a kitchen and the planning and preparing of a meal. There is much interest shown in the millinery classes, the gymnasium, and the commercial classes. There will be classes in English for foreigners and lessons in German, French and music will be given. The physical department is directed by Miss Alberta J. Cory. Miss Ruth Blackwell is assistant to the director; Miss Mille Schlotz, swimming instructor; Miss Myrtle Walker, office, physical department; Mrs. Kate Spear, accompanist; examining physician, Dr. Jessie M. McGavin, Dr. Brown-Fryar, E. D. Emma J. Welty and Dr. Sarah Whiteside.

Many topics of interest are noted on the schedule for the Bible and mission study classes.

Fashion Notes

THE military tendency has even crept into evening gowns and many wonderful models are being exhibited in Portland. The most predominant feature is the military cap of lace or filmy net, which is draped across the back of the waist. It is fastened on the shoulders with bead ornaments or vivid-hued flower buds.

Most striking of the evening gowns in the town shops are of white. Some have a color wash, others are headed by a touch of black or a splash of color. Beads and silver laces are much favored by American designers as trimmings for the new party gowns.

The two extremes in sleeves are noticed. The one called the "muskateer" sleeve is extremely long, falling almost to the knees when let down. The other is a tiny excuse for a sleeve, falling back from the shoulder. The muskateer sleeve is especially smart for semi-formal gowns.

Long, rippling Russian tunics still predominate, both in evening and street costumes.

Subdued tones are favored this season. The girde is so wide as to be almost a basque in many of the smart gowns for evening wear.

Draperies are almost minus quantities for the new party gowns. Striking combinations in black and white are seen in some of the Portland shops.

Tiny flower buds, almost hidden by filmy nets and laces are seen on most of the new gowns.

Crepe netting is again the favorite material for evening gowns. This year the material is all but hidden by tunics of various lengths and designs.

FLORAL EXHIBIT PROPOSED

South Parkway Suggested as Center for 1915 Rose Festival.

South Parkway as a festival center for the 1915 Rose Festival is to be urged by members of the Portland Floral Society. The society has made a proposition to the city whereby the members will furnish flowers for a big exhibition in the park if the city will furnish ornamental lighting and decorations of various kinds. The proposal will be considered by the City Commission.

The Floral Society, at a recent meeting, decided to conduct a campaign to encourage the business people and others to decorate their windows and the poles in front of the premises with flower baskets and boxes.

Simple Home Treatment to Remove Hairy Growths

(Beauty Culture)

Two or three minutes' use of a delicate paste will banish every bit of hair from your face, neck or arms. This paste is made by mixing some water with powdered delatone. After the paste is removed, the skin should be washed to free it from the remaining delatone and it will be clear and spotless. You will not be disappointed with this treatment if you be sure to obtain real delatone from your druggist.—Adv.

Valuable Discovery in Complexion Beautifier

Because of its peculiar power of absorption, because it serves every other emollient purpose, ordinary mercuric wax is perhaps the most valuable complexion beautifier discovered within recent years. If one uses this she needs no toilet cream. Some use powder after, but this is not necessary. This rule for applying mercuric wax has been found very satisfactory: Wash the face with warm water, drying lightly. Before thoroughly dry, anoint face and neck with the wax, but don't rub it in. The favorite way is to use before retiring, allowing it to remain on all night and washing it off in the morning with warm water. All druggists have this wax in original one-ounce packages.

For the removal of a wrinkled or flabby condition there's nothing better than to bathe the face in a solution made by dissolving 1 ounce powdered salicylic in 1/2 pint witch hazel. Beneficial results are quickly noticeable.—Adv.
