Consul Erskine Gets Text of Final Berlin Interviews Telling of Agitation Shown by Chancellor at England's Stand.

The story of the last few eventful days that Sir E. Goschen, British Ambassador, spent at Berlin, is told in the dispatch sent to Sir Edward Grey by the Ambassador August 8, after his return to London, a printed copy of which has been received by Thomas Erskine, British Consul in Poland.

"I called on the German Secretary of State August 4 and inquired, in the name of His Majesty's government, whether the imperial government would refrain from violating Belgian neutrality," says Ambassador Goschen, in the dispatch, adding that the answer was "no," as Belgian neutrality had already been violated.

The Secretary of State, Herr von Jagow, then told Mr. Goschen that Germany was obliged to take the step, so as to "get into France by the quickest and easiest way and endeavor to strike some decisive blow as early as possible."

Herr von Jagow said that "it was a matter of life and death for them, as if they had gone by the more southern route they could not have hoped, in view of the paucity of roads and the strength of the fortresses, to have got through without formidable opposition entailing great loss of time. This loss of time, the Secretary said, would have meant time gained for the Russians, and rapidly of action was regarded, just for a scrap of paper, Great Britain was going to make war on a kindred nation with friends with her. What we had done, he said, was unthinkable; it was like striking a man from behind while he was fighting for his life between two assailants, and he held Great Britain responsible for all the terrible events that might happen."

Riot at Embassy Described. Ambassador Goschen tells in the dispatch how an extra issued by the Berlin Tagblatt late at night, saying Great Britain was going to make war, brought a mob to the British Embassy which overpowered the police, broke the windows and began to throw stones. Then a telephone message to Herr von Jagow, an adequate force of mounted police was sent, and order was restored.

Herr von Jagow called a little later and said that "the behavior of his countrymen made him feel more ashamed than he had ever felt before. He blamed the disturbance on the 'peevishness of the Tagblatt' which had 'somewhat got hold of the news, and upset all his calculations by inserting extra without government authorization.'"

The following day, August 5, the Kaiser sent an aide-de-camp, with a note saying that while he regretted the occurrence of the night before, it would furnish an idea of the feelings of his people respecting the action of Great Britain in 'joining with other nations against her old allies of Waterloo.'"

"His Majesty also begs you to tell the King," ran the note, "that he has been proud to hear that you were official field marshal and British Admiral but that in consequence of what has occurred he must now at once divest himself of these titles."

Courtesy Shown By Officials. Ambassador Goschen closes his dispatch by saying that he received nothing but courtesy from the German Foreign Office through the whole trying ordeal; that his assistants worked night and day with scarcely any rest, and that great assistance was given him by his American colleague, Ambassador Gerard, and his staff, who were undeterred by the hoistings and hissing with which they were greeted when they came to the British Embassy. The journey by rail to the Dutch frontier was uneventful, beyond "the yelling of patriotic songs and a few jeers and insulting jestures by the mobs at the railway stations," and the German Colonel acted as escort was most courteous and considerate.

"Mr. Gerard, by his calmness and savoir-faire," says the Ambassador, "adds, and his firmness in dealing with the Imperial authorities, gave full assurance that the protection of British subjects and interests was not being left in more efficient hands."

SOCIETY

AFTER an absence of several months Mrs. Wm. MacMaster has arrived in Portland, and is once more in her home. Ardour, Society will welcome her cordially. During the early days of the war there was much anxiety expressed by Portland friends of the MacMasters who were interested in the welfare of the travelers. Miss Alice MacMaster accompanied her mother, but Miss MacMaster will remain in the East visiting friends until November. The family crossed safely on the Adriatic. Mr. MacMaster coming home a few days sooner. "We were not worried about ourselves, but we felt deeply for our many friends in Europe to whom the arrival of the MacMasters was a relief."

WAY TO PEACE CITED

Rev. T. L. Elliot Sets Forth Neutral-Base Plan.

Balance-of-power politics and armament races will have to give way to a settlement of world difficulties through a powerful neutral headquarters on neutralized soil or there will be another crash worse than the present European war, in the opinion of Rev. T. L. Elliot, of the Church of Our Father, who delivered the third sermon in his series on "The Causes and Consequences of the Great War" yesterday morning.

ARMS NEEDED IN SYSTEM

Pastor Would Have International League Backed by Sufficient Army and Navy to Demand Treaty Obedience.

A generally stable peace cannot rest on the physical force of any dominant nation or coalition. It must rest upon international good-will. While the short range of its facts must be faced if solutions are to be practicable. Impractical solutions mean worse breakdowns. But there is no more danger of going on in the direction of what is usually deemed the impractical. The danger is in the other direction. The delegates to any congress of powers will be likely to follow international precedents and fall to reckon with vast popular reactions and moral revolutions that have already made the world ready for conservative experiments in a new and more enlightened international order.

Peace League Is Needed

"Either we shall have a continuance of balance-of-power politics, another armament race, ending in a crash worse than this, or we shall have a settlement that would provide a neutral headquarters, on neutralized territory, with an executive committee, armed with a navy to enforce treaty observance on any one power, and the whole thing established by such treaty provisions as constitute the chief nations into an international peace league. It is impossible as this may seem at first sight, we may rely upon two facts to help: "1. The breakdown of the present theory of maintaining world peace. "2. The popular reaction in all civilized countries."

Public Opinion Counts. "These two facts will go far to bring such a settlement into the bounds of practical statesmanship. The growth of a clear and strong public opinion will do much to further such a conclusion. Such a settlement will demonstrate that as between man and man and between people and people there is much good-will after all; and the world would have entered from a vicious into a virtuous circle, the full nature and consequences of which remain to be considered."

Sermon Thoughts From Portland Churches.

FAITH in the Divine Power, the general theme of a large number of sermons delivered by the Portland pastors yesterday. Dr. Frank L. Loveland, pastor of the First Methodist Church, varied the regular order of services by having as his text, "The Star-Spangled Banner an Agency of the Cross." His was an inspiring address, which was heard by a large congregation. The Rev. J. H. Boyd, First Presbyterian Church, in his morning sermon on "Faith as a Form of Personal Power," made an eloquent appeal to men and women to hold by their faith. He said: "We live not by doubt, but by faith. Many men and women consider their faith is but an incident. I am trying to show you that it is the vital essence of life. It is a vast principle, an inner power that animates, energizes, and realizes of ourselves. In business colleges and training classes for young men emphasis is placed on the passing out of the negative inner which is positive. Doubt is negative. Faith is positive. When man is indifferent to faith his whole life is futile. The passing of faith will leave a dead and dull. Do not lose the divine luster. For those who are going away to college I say, 'I will give you your faith. In its destruction is the destruction of the best in life. We live not by doubt, but by faith.'"

MOOSE ADOPT PLATFORM

DRY PLANK REQUESTED BY WASHINGTON PROGRESSIVES.

Only Controversy of Convention Is Averted When Time Is Granted to Debate Prohibition Resolution.

SEATTLE, Sept. 20.—The Progressive party at its convention adopted a platform Saturday with little or no disagreement. The only controversy was threatened over the rejection of a resolution to insert a prohibition plank in the platform. An effort to dispose of the matter summarily called forth protests against gag rule, and time was granted for full debate. The resolution was rejected by a vote of 183 to 373. The platform adopted demands a National and Presidential primary law; denounces the present state primary law, which requires a voter to make a declaration of party affiliation, and favors enactment of a primary law that will allow free choice of candidates; demands that state county and city appointive offices shall be placed under civil service regulations; pledges the party to enactment of laws to make the initiative, referendum and recall effective; to obtain submission of a constitutional amendment for recall of judges; favors an amendment of the women's minimum wage law which will prevent the payment of a permit; favors a state minimum wage law for all wage earners; favors uniform textbooks for all schools in the state; demands a fair proportion of women on all state boards, including regents of the university and normal schools; pledges the party to enact a law making it a felony for members of the Legislature to exchange votes on bills; favors the budget system of handling state finances; demands for election of the first class full power to conduct and regulate local public utilities; favors submission of a constitutional amendment for commission form of government for counties; favors establishment of state employment agencies and wholehearted support of private employment agencies.

75,000 Ties Float Down River.

VANCOUVER, Wash., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—More than 75,000 ties, cut on the north fork of the Lewis River, have been driven down from the mills of the North Fork Logging Company and the Harvey Mining Company. The ties were taken from the mouth of Lewis River at St. Helens, Or., where they are now being loaded on vessels for Chicago. This drive is one of the largest ever sent down the Lewis River.

Week's Accidents Total 69.

SALEM, Or., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—Labor Commissioner Hector today announced that there were 69 accidents, one of which was fatal, in Oregon industries during the week ended September 14. James Hennessy, of Mount Summit, was killed while engaged in bridge construction work. As usual, the largest number of accidents were to persons engaged in railroad work.

PARISH KEEPS DAY

Church of the Madeleine Honors Third Anniversary.

SOLEMN HIGH MASS SUNG

Assistant Pastor in Birthday Sermon Predicts Bright Future for Flock in Irvington—Life of Magdalene Is Topic.

Founded three years ago at East Twenty-third and Slakivoy streets, the Church of the Madeleine, celebrated its third anniversary yesterday morning with appropriate services. A large congregation attended. Solemn high mass was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. Father George Thompson, assisted by Father Mauras, O. S. B., of Mount Angel, who officiated as subdeacon. The address was delivered by Rev. George J. Campbell, assistant pastor, who returned recently from Rome, where he was ordained a short time ago. The address was based on the life and repentance of Mary Magdalene. It was fitting, indeed, today, that we should be thus reminded, that we are the third milestone in the growth and progress of this parish. That is but a short time, but permanent work for Christ has been done in this parish, and for morality and righteousness.

Bright Future Seen.

"While the fruits of our labor in the past three years have been large, the future has greater things in store for this parish. This has been a prosperous parish, but there is much more to be accomplished. The importance of the church cannot be overestimated. It is the center in our midst, as the temple was an object of veneration and reverence. Wherever there are men, churches are to be built. Whatever other buildings may be built, the churches are the moral and religious centers and they are built for the higher life. The church stands for and teaches the divine truth. It is the shrine of divine mercy and divine love. Where all who are thirsty may drink. Moral degeneracy and unwholesomeness are found where there are no churches, and they are built for the higher life. The church is the center of hope and Christianity."

Repentance First Requirement.

Then followed an account of the life and repentance of Mary Magdalene, the speaker pointing out that without repentance the hope of higher life will be ineffectual.

Repentance First Requirement.

It was announced that the third anniversary will be celebrated further October 6 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Clarkson, at 688 East Twenty-second street, North Me., and Mrs. Clarkson were prominent in the early history of the parish, the first services having been held in their home, part of the house having been turned over to the parish as a chapel.

CHRIST'S COMING FORECAST AT END OF GIANTIC WORLD-WAR.

Turk's Expulsion From Europe Read From Prophecies of Daniel at Adventist Tent Meeting.

ARMAGEDDON IS HERE, THE TURK WILL BE DRIVEN FROM EUROPE, AND THE SEVENTH TROUBLES WILL BE EXPECTED AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE PRESENT WORLD-WAR.

This was the import of a sermon delivered yesterday by H. W. Cottrell, president of the Western Oregon Conference, at the Central Portland Seventh-day Adventist Church.

ARMAGEDDON IS HERE, THE TURK WILL BE DRIVEN FROM EUROPE, AND THE SEVENTH TROUBLES WILL BE EXPECTED AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE PRESENT WORLD-WAR.

"Thus will be fulfilled the prophecy that so long ago that the Turk (Turkey) would be the big abductor of the peace between the seas in the glorious holy mountain, which is Jerusalem," said Cottrell.

ARMAGEDDON IS HERE, THE TURK WILL BE DRIVEN FROM EUROPE, AND THE SEVENTH TROUBLES WILL BE EXPECTED AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE PRESENT WORLD-WAR.

"But the prophecy continues that 'he shall come to his end and none shall help him.' The next event mentioned in the Bible is that when the King shall stand up, that King Jesus shall stand up, probation will close and there will be 'a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation, and that the 'whole world' will be led into a general war ending in the 'battle of that great day of Almighty,' when the Savior shall return in all his glory with 'all his angels' destroying the wicked by the very 'brightness of his coming,' but taking his people with him to the place which he said he went to prepare for them."

ARMAGEDDON IS HERE, THE TURK WILL BE DRIVEN FROM EUROPE, AND THE SEVENTH TROUBLES WILL BE EXPECTED AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE PRESENT WORLD-WAR.

The series of meetings at which these and other prophecies have been studied systematically, held for the past six weeks in the big tent at Third and Morrison streets, came to an end last evening, Milton H. St. John speaking on "A Great War Prophesied."

ARMAGEDDON IS HERE, THE TURK WILL BE DRIVEN FROM EUROPE, AND THE SEVENTH TROUBLES WILL BE EXPECTED AT THE CONCLUSION OF THE PRESENT WORLD-WAR.

REVEREND LUTHER R. DOTT, First Congregational Church, in speaking from the theme, "What Can We Do for Faith?" said: "We are doing mighty poor business, even in the name of religion, when we profess to believe that which we do not practice. Consistency is a jewel which no Christian should render conspicuous by its absence. True faith will make us long to be better in our lives, more practical in our religion."

"In the chasm between theoretical faith and the low standards of our every-day life is the challenge of our strength and sincerity. Anyone who has honest doubts may, if he be sincere, compel 'The Kingdom of God' to progress to give place to an equally honest belief. Our faith is true when its contents are true. Its contents are true when drawn from God, the supreme source of all truth, and when they are better known an honest man. The relative is in what we are when we strive to improve; the absolute real is in the ideal when that ideal is God. Between the relative and the absolute we find God working in us to will and to work for his good pleasure. Then follows the hopeful attitude toward the future. Optimism becomes an honest mood of faith and the growing conception of truth calls for a growing faith. Our faith deeds must commend our creeds."

Just One Application and the Hairs Vanish

(Toilet Talk) Any woman can keep her skin free from unsightly hair or fuzz if she will follow these simple instructions: When hairy growths appear, apply a simple paste made by mixing some water with powdered delatone. Apply this to hairy surface and after 3 or 4 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is a harmless treatment, but be sure you get the real delatone.—Adv.

The Outlook in America

TRULY, it is an ill-wind that blows nobody good. One Continent's "down" is another Continent's "up." The industries of Europe are, generally speaking, at a standstill, and matters will be worse before they can be better.

The whole world is looking to the North American Continent—to the United States and Canada—for much of its provisions, machinery, textiles, boots and shoes, beverages, vehicles, cement, brick, earthenware, fancy goods, furs, glass, garments, paper, soap, tobacco, wood products, and much else. America must get ready to meet the demand made upon her. We have continued prosperity ahead of us if our manufacturers and merchants rise quickly to take advantage of their opportunity.

It is a time for business hopefulness, not for business gloom
