

GRAND JURY ARE MOVING TO SALEM

What Promised to Be Listless Campaign Gives Evidence of Torridity.

NATIONAL LEADERS MISSED

Democrats Evince Anxiety to Have President Inndorse Chamberlain, but Executive Does Not Appear to Hear Call for Aid.

Now that the season of agricultural fairs is drawing to a close, the politician is preparing to take the center of the stage.

Political headquarters will shift this week to Salem, where the State Fair is in progress.

Most of the candidates of all parties contesting in the present campaign will be in Salem at least one day this week.

Others are arranging to be there most of the week. After this week but four weeks will remain for campaign work.

In spite of the war they will be four weeks of strenuous effort. The leading parties have arranged to have their own speakers.

The various county organizations likewise have arranged to have their own speakers. What a hard work they are doing.

What a listless campaign, promises now to develop into a period of unusual activity. Probably the only element lacking to make the coming four-week struggle resemble the old-fashioned contest of the days preceding the days of the direct election of Senators will be the absence of the usual assortment of political speakers from the East and neighboring states.

It is a pity that the element may yet be forthcoming. If Congress adjourns Senator Chamberlain will come back to Oregon prepared to stump the state.

The Democrats are trying mightily hard, too, to get oratorical talent of national repute to help out Chamberlain. What they would like most of all, however, is an endorsement of some kind from President Wilson.

They are trying to make it appear that Chamberlain is needed to represent the state back in Washington, but if the President is dependent upon Senator Chamberlain to carry through his programme he has not said so.

Charles L. Schierlein is secretary. P. F. Tichenor has been placed in charge of the Democratic branch headquarters that have been opened by the state and county organizations at East Morrison street and Grand avenue.

C. N. McArthur, Republican Congressional nominee in the Multnomah County district, expects to attend the State Fair a few days this week. He is taking a personal interest in the fair this year, inasmuch as some of his livestock from his Polk County farm is entered in the prize competition.

"Pat" is developing his latent agricultural talents and says that next to going to Congress his principal ambition is to become a real farmer.

There is one man that I want to vote for this year," remarked a fan at the baseball game last Sunday. "and that is Tom Hurlbut, who is running for Sheriff this year.

He is a man who is wanted to be a ball-player, and all of us who love the National game ought to give him our support.

Tom Hurlbut's days are straight, all right, as in the old days when the "Williamettes," a formidable East Side aggregation, flourished here.

Tom Hurlbut has been a member of the same team. It is related that he pitched and caught between the Northwest to master the curve ball in Portland was a separate city in those days.

On the same night, the "Williamettes" and the "Stars," of the West Side, were keenly contested. The "Stars" were the victors.
