German prisoners taken on the restern end of the line in large numbers show that the reinforcements which have arrived recently consist largely of men who are nearing middle age. On the allies' right, in Southern Woevre, where progress also is reported, the French have been fighting to compel the Germans, who succeeded in crossing the Meuse at St. Mihlel, to return to the eastern side of the river.

For a time the Germans had the better of the artillery fighting, as possessed the bigger guns. This situation is now said to have been overcome, for the French have brought up additional artillery, including some big naval guns, which are credited with being able to outrange the German guns by 700 yards and which are being used to drive the Germans out of their strongly fortified positions.
