THE DALLES, Or., Oct. 2.—(Special.)

—It takes something more than weather to dampen the ardor or dull the enthusiasm of these Dalles people.

It rained as if the bottom had dropped out of old Jupe's water tank all the forenoon, yet there was a large crowdout to see the final bouts in the Rodeo and Wasco County Fair. When I say large I mean to infer that every seat in the three stands was occupied and many hundreds stood around the fences, where they awaited the last event on they awaited the last event on of Wasco County let me not forget that to the people of the neighboring county of Sherman lies a large share of the credit. The people of Klondike, Kent, Grass Valley, Monkland, Moro, Wasco and Rufus, in that county, had made great efforts to come down to The Dalles with a record crowd.

So they had 125 autos signed up to make the trip and join in the procession headed by Pond's band, of Wasco. Wasco town is in Sherman County. When it came to a start during the morning's flood 50 of these turned up missing, but 75 came through in spite of rain and mud.

Let it be noted that a week from today Sherman County will hold its fair

Rodeo but Minor Fair Feature.

Certainly the people of this city have now put on three as good shows of the kind as any city has, everything considered. But remember, the Rodeo, meaning the so-called Wild West stunts, is but a minor part of the annual fair at The Dallas The at The Dalles. The broncho busters, the wild steer riders, the ropers and buildoggers are here today and gone temorrow. Their work is ephemeral, transitory. But go through the booths and see the agricultural exhibits. There and see the agricultural exhibits. There you see the greatness of Wasco County. There is no place in the world where they grow finer cherries than right here close to The Dalles. And within three years from now they will annually produce enough Royal Annes to put one in each cocktail made in the United States. But not alone here cherries—why you ought to get the Wasco County statistics on prunes, a hundred carloads a year, and on her peaches and vegetables.

The track this afternoon was not simply damp, it was a quagmire. Yet simply damp, it was a quagmire. Yet in spite of that there was splenidd sport. Take the bucking contest. There were nine riders and surely all rode. If the matter had been left to the audience to decide I guess there would have een anyhow nine first prizes awarded.

Mack Gaunt Wins on Tango. But it is safe to say the judges did right in giving the first prize to Mack Gaunt, who rode Tango, a horse that not only tangoed but ragged and sun-nished. R. S. Hall got second and John McCoy third. The races were slow and the riders came home covered over with mud, but they came home in good time.

The automobile race and the motorcycle race were declared off. No one dared to try to make good time, let alone fast time, on such a track. But the drivers were ready to start. However, the judges knew it would perhaps mean the loss of life to try it.
Did I forget the weather of the afternoon? It was fine, clear, warm and pleasant in every way overhead.
Nothing but the mud interfered with the sports. But the rain of the forenoon kept at least 1000 persons away from the grounds. About 250 left on the 11:30 train going east. the 11:30 train going east.

Lizzie Javitz Complains Husband Did Not Visit Her to Hospital and Other Spouses Have Troubles.

Charging neglect, extending over a period of several years, Etta E. Kra-mer yesterday filed a motion in the Circuit Court asking that Samuel E. Kramer, lately proprietor of a Portland riding academy, be required to provide means for her to defend the divorce suit lately brought against her, it is stated she is without means and that she and their two children have been objects of charity in New York, where they live.

been objects of charity in New York, where they live.

It is set forth that the two were married in New York City and came to Portland some years ago. After a short residence here Mrs. Kramer and her children retuned East to visit her family. Whenever she would suggest that she return to her husband at Portland, she says, he would discourage her once that if she came to Portland he would fly away to the distant parts of the world to escape her. During the past eight months Mr. Kramer is said to have contributed $180 to the support of the family.

Washington will be asked to again de-tail a revenue cutter to stand guard inside the Columbia River during the oming Winter to be available in the sea, the loss of the steamer Francis H. Leggett last month and reports that some of the passengers and crew must have lived for hours afterward, having directed attention to the demand for directed attention to the demand for an emergency vessel in such cases. Cutters are held on Puget Sound usually and the Columbia River has been favored at times, but shipping men insist that such a vessel snould be stationed in these waters from Fall until Spring, so she could be dispatched immediately along the Coast on the receipt of "S. O. S." calls. A cutter on Puget Sound is too far away to lend assistance at the mouth of the Columbia or south of there, save in cases where ships might be drifting because of the loss of steering gear or propeller.

WINTER SCHEDULE ON TODAY

Bear Leaves for California Ports at 3 o'Clock With Full Load.

More flour for Central America ports goes out aboard the steamer Bear, of the "Big Three" line, which sails at 3 o'clock this afternoon from Ainsworth dock on the first voyage under the Winter schedule. This year the company will send its vessel's away at 3 instead of 4 o'clock so as to reach Astoria earlier to load the last of their cargo.

Besides flour, the Bear carries 300 tons of wheat, considerable paper and a collection of general merchandise that gives her a full load. There is less demand for passenger accommodations, as the vacation season is ended and the tourist moveyment has not reached its greatest volume. In that connection waterfront men are awaiting the 1915 fair travel early next year, as it is felt certain other lines will increase their facilities in competition with the new Hill steamers Great Northern and Northern Pacific.

Boy Some of the speculators have take and this has a tendency to weaken the market.

At the Merchants' Exchange session, however, there was no change in the situation except in the matter of milling wheat. The highest price bid for biuestem was $1.01. and this was later withdrawn. The best offer on forty-fold was half a cent lower than Thursday. For club, the previous days offer on forty-fold was half a cent lower than Thursday. For club, the previous days are willing to pay a cent advance. The coarse grain and mill feed markets were quiet and featureless.

Almost without exception grain men believe that high wheat prices will prevail throughout this season, and that the present luit in all the markets is only temporary. It is believed that before long the upward movement at Chicago and Liverpool will be recorded.

It is pointed out that wheat in America as soid at current levels several times within the past four or five years. SOME WEAKNESS APPEARS

Reason to Believe That Prices Late May Be Heavier-Wheat Not Now on War Basis-Next Year's Prospects.

The past few days has seen somewhat or a buil in wheat trading. The Chicago and Liverpool markets have been receding and builtsh enthusiasm is looking at this end. The demand from California is slower, the mills are inactive and export trade is temporarily checked. With the local docks full porarily checked. With the local docks fun-and shipments by no meants free, grain deal-ers here are not disposed to add to their holdings. Farmers are not pressing sales, but it is said enough wheat could be bought in the country if there were any reason to buy. Some of the speculators have taken to the selling side, and this has a tendency to weaken the market.

At the Merchants' Exchange session, how-

Specifications are out for the new dredge Monticello, which will be equipped with a ten-inch suction as well as a "clamshell" bucket with a capacity of 1½ yards, and bids are to be opened November 5 at the office of Colonel McKinstry, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A. The vessel is to have a wooden hull and be 100 feet long, with a beam of 30 feet.

Plans are also being completed for a stern-wheel steamer that is to act as tender for the Monticello, which will be 100 feet long and have a beam of 20 feet. About two years ago the rivers and harbors bill carried an appropriation of $55,000 for the two vessels, so there are funds available for their immediate construction. They are intended for service on the iributaries of the Lower Columbia River, so will be used mostly in the Cowlitz, Lewis and Clatekanie Rivers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—Dun's review tonerrow will say:
The abnormal business conditions created by war continue and caution and retrenchnent still hait enterprise, yet there is a sctors contribute to this situation. Untoubtedly the improvement in the financial markets is slow, but it is steady and the neasures taken to permit limited dealings in it least the partial opening of the London

Another factor is the active export move-nent of grain.
