TECTION.—A new fire building has just been completed in East Milwaukie just been completed in East Milwaukie, and yesterday a hose cart and chemical fire engine, costing $600, were placed in the new building. The new building is 30x36 feet, of the bungalow type. A room 20x24 has been provided in which to hold elections and public meetings. The Milwaukie Commercial Club probably will occupy this room. The building is on a lot leased from the Southern Pacific railroad and the cost was met out of a fund raised by special tax. Daniel Mazzia is foreman of the hose company and L. O. Warren, foreman of the chemical company. Many additional fire hydrants have been installed in East Milwaukie. Ann Swinburne Back From Europa.

ANN SWINBURNE BACK FROM EUROPE —A telegram was received yesterday by John Ditchburn from his daughter Ann Ditchburn known in stageland as Ann Swinburne, to the effect that after much trouble and a rough trip she has arrived in New York from Europe, where she was caught in the panies following the outbreak of the war. She was held up for a long time in Germany, Austria and Italy because of inability to get passage on trains or boats. She finally got a boat out of Genoa and arrived in New York yesterday morning. Because of the delays the opera in which she is to during the coming season will not be staged until January 1.

FIVE-CENT FARE SOUGHT—Deputy District Attorney George Mowry has prepared two mandamus suits against the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company to compel the enforcement of a 5-cent fare between Watson, a station on the Estacada line, and the First and Alder streets station of the railway. They will soon be filed at the request of the State Railroad Commission. It is believed the suits will be fought by the railway company on the ground that the line on which lower fares are asked provides interurban service and conditions are not the same as on the various lines within the city. to probe alleged actions of students in one or more of the high schools in investigating the charges against the ball players, believe detectives, who have several young men well known in the schools under suspicion. Detective Thomas Swennes, whose investigations led to the exposure, said yesterday afternoon that the detention of two more high school girls was likely. Of the five girls being held two are said to have made statements involving men.

Upon application of George S. Shepherd, attorney for the Portland ball club, the preliminary hearing of Frank Arellanes, pitcher for the Mission team, was set for October 31 and bail placed at $2009 yesterday morning, and in the afternoon bonds guaranteeing Self-Confessed Agent of 'Arson Trust' Continues Story.

WITNESS PLEADS GUILTY

Substantial sums were paid by the insurance companies on all these losses.
The witness entered a piea of guilty yesterday morning to the charge of arson now pending against him and said he hoped by telling the truth to receive the mercy of the court. He had been told by the District Attorney, he said clemency would be suight for said, clemency would be sought for him if he told the truth. This led him to make a confession to the authori-ties some time ago.

Methods of "Trust" Told.

Methods of "Trust" Told.

He told some of the methods of the alleged trust during his testimony, which occupied most of the day. He said the regular rate for starting a successful fire was 10 per cent of the insurance premiums paid. He testified he received 50 per cent of the $400 paid for the burning of the Sax store, for which Albert is now on trial, because he got Albert the chance to make $200 and acted as agent between Sax and and acted as agent between Sax and Albert.

Davis said he earned $100 by taking a quantity of goods from the store of A. Wolfman to his own store prior to a fire Wolfman was arranging, but that he was never paid. On that account, he said, he testified in a case against Welfman, aithough he told him he would not appear in court if he would pay him the $100 due.

Davis, it was developed on cross-ex-amination when attorneys for the de-fense sought to discredit the testimony of the witness, was born at Trovon-ika, Russia, and served a year in a Russian prison at Vilma for horse-stealing. He also was arrested after the came to New York on suspicion of having knowledge of an arson case. He says he unwittingly acted as the holder of money to be paid after a store was burned. Although he neither can read nor write, Davis showed considerable shrewdness on the stand. He asked eagerly to be allowed to ask Attorney Dan Malarkey, who was putting him through a grilling cross-examination, one question, but this was not allowed.

Half of "Profits" Offered. In language reminiscent of the Potash & Porlmutter stories, Philip Davis told on the witness-stand yesterday the part he played as agent for terday the part he played as agent for the alleged "arson trust." Following his plea of guilty, he became at once the star witness for the prosecution. He told of his talk with Max Albert when he offered Alhert haif of the $400 to be earned by starting a successful fire in the store of L. Sax & Son. "He told me," said the witness, "that he was willing to show somebody how to make the fire, but he did not want to do it himself. I told this to old man Sax and he said if Albert would show him how to do this, his son would light the match. "After this, Sax gave his note to the mixture was too rich.

An amusing incident occurred, testified Davis, in connection with setting this fire. Young Sax, he said, was stationed outside the door of the store on guard while Albert spread the gasoline and lighted the candle. Albert was to knock on the door three times when he was ready to be let out.

Sax, it was said, got to talking with a stranger who huppened along at this and he was let out. Davis testified that after the in-Davis testified that after the in-surance was collected, he received his half of the $400 in checks, four of $25 each and two of $50, from the elder Sax. He said he took Albert's $200 from Sax and delivered it to the defendant somewhat later. He said Albert was in need of money at that time for half, as he had been arrested for setting fire to his furniture. for setting fire to his furniture at his residence in Alberta.
