A. W. LAFFERTY.

The people have "on deposit" in the banks of the United States twenty billions of dollars, while the total stock of money in the United States is only three billions and a half, or $35 per capita. By this system of "duplicating deposits" each dollar is deposited over five times. The banks have loaned out at interest three-fourths of the "deposits," holding 25 per cent as a legal reserve. On the three-fourths loaned out, $15,000,000,000, the American people are paying to the banks interest at are paying to the banks interest at the rate of at least 5 per cent, or $750,-000,000 a year. This "interest" which the banks are collecting for the loan of credit, not money, amounts to $7.50 for each man, woman and child in the United States. That is the first toll of the money power. This largely uncarned interest charge falling upon the American people can be saved to them if the Government will act as the fiscal agent to hold securities and issue asset currency at reasonable rates of interest, the interest charged to go to the Government—the people—to reduce general taxation.
