

ACTION BALLOT MAY FREE MURDERERS

Pender and Wilkins to Escape Death and Prison if Noose Is Abolished.

GAP IN MEASURE FOILS

Attorneys Say Amendment, Which Has No First Degree Penalty, Nullifies Sentences and Creates Serious Interim.

Will John Arthur Pender and Lloyd H. Wilkins, under sentence of death for first-degree murder, go free in case the initiative measure to abolish capital punishment, carried November 3, Portland, Oregon, to whom the question was submitted yesterday, were of the opinion that there will be no alternative except to free Pender and Wilkins if their cases were allowed to stand as at present until after the general election, providing the death penalty is then abolished.

Pender and Wilkins are under reprieve from Governor West, who could recall his reprieve, it is believed, and set a date for their execution or commute the sentences to life imprisonment before election.

The reason for the belief that Pender and Wilkins will go free in case the standing of their cases is not altered, and the death penalty is abolished November 3, is that the proposed anti-capital punishment amendment simply repeals Section 1903 of Lord's Oregon Laws, providing that the punishment for first-degree murder shall be death.

Thus, it seems that the crime of first-degree murder would be left without any punishment from November 3 until such time as the Legislature might provide a punishment.

This being the case, there would be no penalty for the crime of which Pender and Wilkins were convicted, say attorneys who discussed the subject yesterday. Any law subsequently enacted providing a penalty could not apply to their cases, and they could not again be tried for crimes for which they had been acquitted.

Another point raised by the form in which the proposed amendment is presented, lacking as it does any substitute penalty for the crime of which the persons might commit first-degree murder in the interim between the abolition of the death penalty and the time that a penalty might be provided in its stead by the Legislature.

Lesser Indictments May Ensnare.

In the opinion of Alfred E. Clark, Dan J. Maloney and other attorneys, such a contingency would be met by prosecutors bringing indictments for second-degree murder, for which the penalty, life imprisonment, would remain undisturbed.

"The crime of first-degree murder," said Mr. Maloney, "of course includes that of second-degree murder, such as slaughter and assault. The technical defect of no punishment for first-degree murder would be met by the prosecutors who would ask for second-degree indictments."

But persons already convicted of first-degree murder and under sentence of death at the time of the passage of a law abolishing capital punishment, said Mr. Clark, could not, it would seem, be punished by the proposed constitutional amendment, if enacted, which would repeal all acts in conflict therewith, and this includes the death penalty.

Freeing Result Probable.

Mr. Maloney was not expected to say, without further consideration, that the effect of the amendment, if adopted, would be to free anyone under sentence of death at the time of its adoption, but said that it looked like such persons would, of necessity, be turned loose.

"I don't believe there is any power that could substitute a punishment other than the one prescribed by the statute in which they were convicted," said Mr. Maloney.

Attorney-General Crawford coincides with the opinion of Portland attorneys as to the effect of the adoption of the amendment abolishing capital punishment. In an interview with The Oregonian's correspondent at Salem last night he expressed the opinion that adoption of the amendment would mean liberty to Pender and Wilkins if they are kept under sentence of death until the adoption of the amendment.

Two May Go Free.

"The only legal punishment for first-degree murder at present," said the Attorney-General, "is death. If this penalty should be abolished by the adoption of an amendment without a saving clause there would be no penalty prescribed for first-degree murder. The men could not be arrested, nor retried, nor hanged. They would go free."

John Arthur Pender was convicted of first-degree murder for killing Mrs. Daisy Wehrmann and her young son, Harold, on the evening of September 4, 1914, at their home three and one-half miles southeast of Seaside, in Columbia County. According to the evidence, Pender entered the house in the absence of Mrs. Wehrmann and her son, who is a baker in Portland. The woman was shot three times, and her skull was fractured. The boy also was shot three times. The State Supreme Court was that the boy was slain to prevent his testifying against the slayer.

Seratches First Clue.

Seratches on Pender's face after the murder gave the first clue as to the identity of the murderer. He lived near the Wehrmann home. The shooting was done with a pistol which had been taken from a cabin of friends of Pender, and it was shown that he had once borrowed the pistol and knew that it was kept in a trunk in the house. In the absence of the residents of the house, the house was searched and the pistol was taken. The weapon was unloaded at that time. Later it was found loaded in the trunk.

Pender was tried twice and his conviction was affirmed by the State Supreme Court, June 20, 1911.

Lloyd H. Wilkins was convicted of the murder of Lou L. Winters, was sentenced by Judge Morrow, of the Multnomah County Circuit Court, January 5, 1914, to hang March 24, 1914. He appealed to the State Supreme Court, which affirmed the conviction June 22, 1914.

Winters was killed early Sunday morning, October 12, 1912, soon after he stepped from a car in front of his home at 433 Milwaukee street, Portland. Wilkins was suspected almost immediately, and was arrested three days later at Vancouver, Wash. He confessed that he had had an altercation with Winters the night of the murder, but declared that he only struck him with an umbrella.

The cause of Winters' death was a fractured skull. The prosecution alleged that Wilkins had struck Winters with a club.

Three reasons were assigned by Governor West, August 4, for his consideration of postponing the executions of

LAND SHOW READY TO OPEN ON TIME

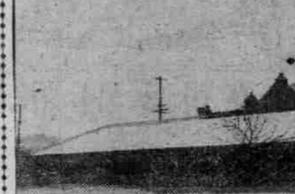

Buildings Rushed to Finish as Displays of Products Begin to Come In.

DECORATORS ARE AT WORK

Outlying Towns to Have Special Days When Clubs Will Visit Exhibit in Body—Fiddlers' Contest May Be Held.

"The exposition will be more than 60 per cent complete by Friday and ready in every detail opening day, Monday," said Louis W. Buckley, general manager of the Manufacturers' and Land Products Show, yesterday.

GREAT PAVILION FOR MANUFACTURERS' AND LAND PRODUCTS SHOW BEGINS TO TAKE SHAPE.

ager of the Manufacturers' and Land Products Show, yesterday.

"The temporary exhibition buildings are ready for the exhibitors," he continued, "and the work of decoration has commenced. Booth-building will be well under way by Wednesday and by Next Sunday more than 80 per cent of the exhibits will be in place."

Exhibitors Sign Up Readily.

"Portland's greatest exposition since the Lewis and Clark Fair, a week before the opening of its doors to the people of the Northwest gives promise of living up to all claims made for it. We have more than 300 exhibitors signed up and the entertainment features are such as to provide amusement of a high-class character afternoon and night during the progress of the show."

The Armory and temporary buildings were a scene of life and action yesterday. More than 75 painters, decorators and carpenters were at work yesterday and this force will be increased greatly today. The general offices of the land show yesterday were moved from the Commercial Club building to the Armory.

Pioneers of Portland and the state have taken up with the land show management the question of a fiddlers' contest at the exposition. F. W. Prapp has agreed to take charge of this feature and entries sent to him will be considered. All old fiddlers are requested to make themselves known to the land show offices at the Armory.

MORE PREACHERS ASKED

BAPTIST SECRETARY SAYS NEED IS FOR MISSIONARIES.

Grants Pass to Hear Reports on Successful Year and Request for Further Co-operation.

More missionaries, more independent churches and a more thorough realization of each church's financial responsibilities will be urged upon the state convention of Baptist ministers at Grants Pass today.

Secretary O. C. Wright in his report to the conference reviews the work of the year and points out the course that the denomination should follow to make its plans bring results during the coming season.

After telling of the additions to the church and the success of the various enterprises under denominational direction, the secretary calls attention to the field that is open for the small and struggling Baptist church. He decries the wall that some of the churches have made that the members are moving away and their places taken by foreigners and points out that the mission field is by immigration brought to the doors of every church in the state.

During the course of his review, he says that many baptisms have been made during the year, some of the converts being immersed in the waters of the Pacific Ocean.

Church buildings have been constructed at Junction, North Lake, Newport and Springfield. Most of these have been dedicated from debt. The Baptists at Lafayette purchased the building of large churches and the Presbyterians. The association is free from debt for the first time in many years. Pastors of large churches are urged to extend their activities to the smaller fields.

The report with those from various committees and heads of departments will be heard before the convention at Grants Pass. Every Baptist church in the state will send delegates.

STOCK SHOW PLANS MADE

Northwest Exhibit at Lewiston to Be Doubled This Year.

LEWISTON, Idaho, Oct. 19.—(Special.)—A meeting of the executive committee of the Northwest Livestock Association was held here in the Commercial Club rooms, and final arrangements for the great exhibition to be held November 30 to December 5, inclusive, were practically completed.

Secretary W. L. Carlyle stated the entries now on file show an increase of one-third over the animals exhibited last year. It is expected the show this year will be twice as large as a year ago, and the attendance will be increased proportionately. Exhibitors will come from every state in the Northwest.

Those who attended yesterday's meeting were President E. Flood, Rosalia, Wash.; Vice-President E. S. Sweet, Grangeville, Idaho; Treasurer E. M. Rothrock, Spokane, Wash.; Secretary W. L. Carlyle, Rosalia; and those of the executive board were W. D. Roberts, Spokane; John McGrover, Hooper, Wash.; J. H. McCroskey, Sprague, Wash.; J. F. Smith, Pullman, Wash.; and D. S. Wallace, Lewiston.

COUNTY 'O. K.' REQUIRED

PLATS FOR CITY STREET CHANGES ORDERED SUBMITTED.

Ruling by District Attorney's Office Says Object Is to Assist Assessor in Listing Property.

That the plat for the opening, widening, extension or vacation of a street, when filed by a municipal corporation, should be approved by the County Commissioners and the County Assessor, is the ruling just made by District Attorney Evans' office in response to an inquiry on the subject from Assessor Reed. Deputy District Attorney Murphy, who wrote the opinion, construed sections 250 and 264 of the Portland charter, in connection with the state law governing the filing of plats.

Mr. Murphy says the state law was enacted not to entail needless work on the county officials, but to protect the public against fraud, to provide a uniform and satisfactory method of public improvement and to keep the taxing officers of the state fully informed as to the ownership and legal description of all taxable property.

Discussing this decision yesterday, Assessor Reed said: "All plats of additions heretofore filed for record carry on their face the certificate of the County Treasurer or the Sheriff that all general taxes for 10 years past have been paid. Plats filed by municipalities in regard to the opening, widening, extension or vacation of streets hereafter will follow the same course as plats of additions and require the same approval."

Copies of the decision were sent yesterday to County Clerk Coffey and to the City Engineer.

COOS FIRST AT EXHIBIT

Display for Oregon Building at San Francisco Is on Way.

Coos County has sent to San Francisco the first exhibit for installation in the Oregon building at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. It was shipped yesterday on the steamer Nan Smith, and consisted of 25 boxes of fruit, vegetables, grains and grasses.

A 200-box exhibit from Salem is preparing and will be shipped in a few days to San Francisco for storage.

BALLOT 35 INCHES LONG

Order for 324,000 Placed to Be Delivered Next Monday.

DECORATORS ARE AT WORK

Outlying Towns to Have Special Days When Clubs Will Visit Exhibit in Body—Fiddlers' Contest May Be Held.

Bearing striking resemblance in size to the old roller towel that used to hang at the kitchen door of the farmhouse, the official ballot to be used in November was approved yesterday by County Clerk Coffey and a large supply was ordered for use at the November election. The ballot is 14 by 35 inches in size. Glass & Prudhomme were awarded the contract of supplying 132,000 official ballots and 185,000 sample ballots. This are expected to prove ample to fill the needs of voters of the 226 precincts in the county.

A notable saving in the cost of printing the ballots was effected by the arrangement just made by Clerk Coffey. The entire supply will be furnished at a cost to the county of $950. Two years ago, at the last general election, ballots cost $1488. At that time only 85,488 official and 84,460 sample ballots were used. There were then but 191 precincts in the county. The ballots for the coming election will be delivered next Monday to Mr. Coffey and will be delivered shortly thereafter to the various election boards throughout the county.

NEGRO CRIPPLE NEEDS AID

Appeal Made for Funds to Send Man to Relatives in California.

Mrs. E. D. Cannady, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People, cooperating with the Associated Charities, is endeavoring to raise funds to send George Shaftner, a negro cripple, who is destitute and in serious need, to California, where he has relatives.

The Associated Charities undertook to locate the man some time ago, when Shaftner was arrested for peddling shoestrings without a license. Judge Stevenson paroled him on condition that arrangements should be made to return him to his relatives. There is need of sufficient funds at least for the payment of his railroad fare to London, for his maintenance, which Mr. Cannady is editor, a request is made that all colored people in Portland who are desirous of helping George Shaftner in his need communicate with the editor or with the Associated Charities.

WOMAN WARNS AMERICANS

Donations of Clothes Spoil British Plan for Idle, Says Mrs. Wilder.

Mrs. Frank Wilder, 384 Thurman street, who has returned to Portland from Europe, where she was held in London for her part in the outbreak of the war, has brought the message that American women are adopting the wrong methods in aiding the British Red Cross, by making and sending garments to England.

Mrs. Wilder says the factories of England are running to provide employment and they are selling their output to the nation at greatly reduced prices. By Americans making garments and sending them abroad the work of the factories is defeated. The clothes, she says, are providing the factories at a price less than what they can be made in America and sent abroad.

MUSICIANS HEAR ADDRESS

A. G. Clark Advocates Honesty in Advertising as Paying Proposition.

Twenty-two members of the Portland Musicians' Club met at the Portland Hotel yesterday and enjoyed a luncheon-talk, under the direction of William R. Boone, president of the club. A. G. Clark, formerly president of the Portland Ad Club, delivered an address on "Advertising." Mr. Clark said that only "honest" advertising pays and that the motto of the up-to-date advertiser is "honesty."

SOAP ON HAIR CAUSES DANDRUFF, SCALP GETS DRY, HAIR FALLS OUT

Girls! Get a 25-Cent Bottle and Try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse."

After washing your hair with soap always apply a little Danderine to the scalp to invigorate the hair and prevent dandruff. Better still, use soap sparingly as possible, and instead have a "Danderine Hair Cleanse." Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one strand at a time. This will remove dust, dirt and excessive oil. In a few moments you will be amazed, your hair will not only be clean, but it will be wavy, fluffy and abundant, and possess an incomparable softness and lustre.

Besides cleansing and beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; stimulates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.
