

AUSTRIAN FAILURE AT SAN REPORTED

Petrograd Tells How Forces Were Unable to Negotiate Crossing of River.

VIENNA CLAIMS SUCCESS

Official Austrian Account Says Conflict Progresses Favorably and That Forces Are Gaining North of Przemysl.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 19.—The Russian general army headquarters makes the following announcement:

"On the front in East Prussia and on the Vistula there is nothing new. Austrian attempts to cross the San River have failed. South of Przemysl the fighting continues. At several points there were bayonet attacks in which we captured Austrian officers and more than 1000 soldiers.

"Austrian reinforcements are reported in the passes of the Carpathians.

LONDON, Oct. 19.—"The battles on the line running through Stary, Stry and Metya and in the River San are progressing favorably to Austria, as are also the operations against the Russians along the Dniester River north of Wyzakow. The Austrians were again attacked and repulsed."

This was the text of the official Austrian statement on the operations in Galicia, forwarded Saturday noon from Vienna via Amsterdam.

"At Synowkowskye our troops forced a crossing of the Stry River, conquered the heights north of Synowkowskye, and pursued the enemy. We further occupied the heights north of Podbusz, southeast of Stary and Stry, and captured the heights north of Stary River are progressing. North of Przemysl, on the east bank of the San River, our troops are gaining ground. The Russians were again attacked and repulsed."

RUSSIAN FIRE DECIMATES FOES

Concealed Guns Sweep Vistula When Germans Try to Cross.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 19.—(Via London, 2 A. M., Oct. 19.)—The latest details of the fighting on the Vistula, as announced by reports from the front, show the Germans were thoroughly beaten and that hundreds of German prisoners have been taken in to Warsaw. In the center the fighting consisted chiefly of artillery duels.

Between Josefow and Ivangorod the battle has continued for nearly five days. Near Josefow the Russian commander, it is said, learned that the Germans were preparing to cross the Vistula. He exposed some guns about 17 miles from the river and ordered the Germans to make the river the Russian front.

During the night, according to the official version, Russian infantry with quick firing hid in the dense bushes near the river, while some distance back 16 field guns were concealed.

The Russians allowed two battalions of Germans to land, preceded by a detachment of sappers to prepare a landing, which were within yards of the concealed Russian guns.

The Russians then opened a gun and rifle fire which it is asserted, accounted for nearly every man across the river. The German losses being more than 2000. The affair ended in a bayonet attack.

The Germans on the opposite side of the river could not fire without risk of killing their own men. Russian quick firing mowed down the men backed on the rafts and many of those who jumped into the river and tried to swim ashore were killed by rifle fire.

At an unmentioned place south of Warsaw, the official report says, the Russians and Germans strove simultaneously to cross the river. The Russians succeeded under a terrible bombardment, suffering heavy casualties, but eventually they silenced the German guns and repulsed the German division covering the crossing. Apparently the report concludes the Russian heavy field guns outranged those of the Germans.

Today was "Tobacco day" in Petrograd, large quantities of the luxury being contributed by the populace for the soldiers at the front.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—"All the Austro-German attempts to force the crossing of the Vistula have failed and the enemy have been compelled everywhere to assume the defensive," says a Petrograd dispatch to the Daily Telegraph.

"They appear, however, to have retired in good order and are likely to make a stubborn fight in prepared positions before allowing themselves to be driven off Russian soil.

"With an enormous mass of artillery the Germans kept up a terrific bombardment which ceased neither day nor night.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 18, Via London, Oct. 19, 4:30 A. M.—After fighting their way to within five miles of Warsaw the Germans were hurled back with heavy losses. Warsaw is virtually unshaken without heavy guns.

A main action is reported in the upper Vistula region, where the Germans are attempting to march toward Krasnik and Lublin. A battle is officially reported as developing south of Przemysl, chiefly with the Austrians.

WIND IS GALE AT ASTORIA

Inbound Vessels Await for Milder Weather at River's Mouth.

Rough weather, stirred up by a wind which reached a velocity of 75 miles an hour Saturday night, prevailed off the mouth of the Columbia River Sunday. The weather moderated yesterday morning, although the wind was still blowing 55 miles an hour at Astoria.

The steamer Breakwater waited five hours for daylight. The ill-fated Santa Catalina, burned and sunk up the Willamette, also is reported to have been delayed. The Strathdene temporarily was intercepted near Astoria.

No vessels were expected yesterday. The steamers Maverick, Yellowstone, and Daisy Gadsby are reported bound at Astoria.

Detailed information of the launching of the new steamship Northern Pacific, scheduled to ply between Flavel, Or., and San Francisco, was received Sunday by A. D. Carlton, assistant general passenger agent of the Northern Pacific Railroad. The ship was built at Cramp's shipyard in Philadelphia and was launched Saturday.

The Northern Pacific will have accommodations for 753 passengers, and a crew of 200. The arrangements provide for first, intermediate, and third cabin passengers.

The steamer has five decks. On the boat-deck are the pilot-house, the officers' quarters, the wireless station, the officers' wardroom, and the life-saving equipment.

4 BARRAGE BOATS ON EASTERN WING

Railway Between Colmar and Muelhausen Is Cut as Fighting Rages.

SUPPLIES ARE THREATENED

Alsace and Lorraine, as Well as Region of Vosges, Scenes of Bitter Fighting—Allies' Line Is Still Unbroken.

FROM BATTLE FRONT, via Paris, Oct. 19.—What in previous wars would have been called great battles were fought Sunday on the eastern wing of the fighting line stretching from the Belgian Coast to Switzerland.

In this great battle of nations, however, the fights are regarded merely as incidents. The fighting always has been of the most forceful nature in this district, owing to the strenuous efforts of the Germans to obtain possession of the strong fortresses of Verdun, Toul and Epinal in order to open a way from Metz into France.

Germans Repulsed Near St. Die. St. Die, on the Meurthe, 32 miles northwest of Epinal, was the center of Sunday's attacks, which resulted in a repulse for the Germans with heavy casualties.

The borders of both Alsace and Lorraine also felt the shock of battle and in the Vosges the famous French Alpine regiments were in contact with German columns. These mountain troops, usually known as the German-busy utilizing all remarkable mountain guns and baffling their efforts to drive them out.

Their greatest achievement in the recent operations was the cutting of railroad communication between Colmar, capital of Upper Alsace, and Muelhausen, Prussia, thereby increasing the difficulties of the Germans in sending their wounded to the rear and bringing up supplies.

Heavy Mortars Brought Up. The Germans have brought up 10-inch mortars in this area, and are expected for an intended eventual siege of Belfort. In view of this possibility the French have renewed their attacks from the south and again advanced beyond Altkirch. A great part of the theater of operations in Southern Alsace is illuminated by the searchlights of the Swiss frontier caused by shells falling across the border.

Along the entrenched line, where the armies have been face to face for six weeks, nothing beyond a desultory bombardment occurred today; but farther north, on the western wing, where the German efforts to break the allies' lines have been unsuccessful, the fighting still continues.

French Capture Captors. In a dense fog which overhung the battle line, hindering operations on both sides, a section of French infantry, under cover of the fog, recently made a dash on the Germans on the Somme River, surprising the men in the trenches and among the first line with the bayonet. The French pursued their advantage but fell into the hands of a reserve battalion of German infantry who captured all of them.

The fog thickened and prevented the Germans from moving and they formed a hollow square around the captured men, and stacked their arms to await the clearing of the atmosphere.

The Germans then bivouacked and absolute silence reigned for some time. Then a voice rang out from among the prisoners: "To the guns, comrades." Every Frenchman thereupon rose and rushed to the stack of guns, the butts of which could be seen beneath the fog.

Own Bayonets Turned on Germans. The German commander and a dozen men who were standing guard tried to resist the French, but their own bayonets, and the entire German battalion, dazed by the onslaught, surrendered. The French took them back to the French lines after the fog lifted.

On another part of the line, where 800 Germans were well burrowed in quarries, the French general ordered 200 Turco volunteers. In the night the Algerians discarded their rifles, crept in with bayonets between their teeth and surprised the Germans, of whom only eight escaped.

The number of spies in the war zone seems undiminished and there are frequent executions of them, particularly in the east.

Officers Shot as Spies. Recently a German colonel and a captain appeared in a French camp dressed in uniforms of French privates. They said they had been separated from their regiments and requested to be permitted to serve at the front in any command. They replied without accent to all questions and their identity was revealed only when they said they knew the commander of the regiment to which they had applied for service.

They said they had seen the commander at a certain place, but the commander not having been there the spies were forced to admit that they were German officers. They were shot.

EZEMA SPREADS LIKE CHICKEN'S BOO

Game on Face and Caused Disfigurement. Clothing Aggravated Trouble. Itching Burning Sensation. Could Not Sleep. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

1177 Market St., Chohalla, Wash.—"My little nephew was cross and cried and complained of itching. The eczema broke out with a rash, reddish looking. It spread until it was all over his body, and it came on his face and caused disfigurement. His hands had to be tied to keep him from scratching. His clothing aggravated the trouble and made the breaking out worse. He was so covered with eruptions he didn't look natural. There was such an itching and burning sensation he could not sleep and kept someone with him continually. Weeks and months passed by and we had almost given up in despair.

"One day I read about Cuticura Soap and Ointment being good for eczema and all skin troubles. I sent for a free sample and immediately we discovered a change for the better. Before the sample was used up there was such a remarkable change that I bought a box of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. The eruptions healed, the burning and itching ceased and by the time the Cuticura Soap and Ointment were used up he was a well boy."

AMERICAN SHIP IS HELD

British Capture Brindilla as Prize of War.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 19.—The steamer Brindilla, flying the American flag, was brought into port Sunday as a prize of war by the British auxiliary cruiser Caronia. The Brindilla was formerly the German steamer Washington.

She cleared from New York for Alexandria, Egypt, last Tuesday and was captured in this bay by a British auxiliary cruiser. Later she was transferred to the charge of the Caronia, which placed a prize crew on board.

She is reported to have contraband on board. The Admiralty Court will consider the case at once.

When David T. Warden, manager of the foreign department of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey was informed tonight that the Brindilla had been captured, he said he would take the matter up with officials in Washington. Mr. Warden said the vessel's cargo would be of no use as fuel for war purposes, as it consisted of illuminating oil and the vessel herself was a coal burner.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The steamer Brindilla, taken into Halifax as a prize of war by the British auxiliary cruiser Caronia, is believed to be a Standard Oil tank steamer.

On September 21 it was announced here that the German tank steamer Washington of the Riederman line of Hamburg had been bought by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and would be placed under the American flag.

The Washington, as she used to be, was one of the fleet of German steamers tied up in this port by the beginning of the war. She arrived here July 29 from Liverpool and sailed for Alexandria, Egypt, on October 8 under her new name. It was said at the time of her announced purchase by the Standard Oil Company that, although added to the American merchant marine, she would continue to be manned by German crew and officers.

The Brindilla was captured at an unmentioned place in the Atlantic by the American warship, the name of which has not been disclosed, sent a crew aboard and then ordered the oil tank steamer to return to port. She was kept close by until the Caronia, which was several hundred miles distant, came in response to a wireless call and was ordered to bring the Brindilla to this port.

According to unofficial reports trouble developed in the cabin-room of the prize ship, and as a result the Caronia sent more men aboard to assist in working her and frustrate a suspected plot to open the sea cocks. Early on Thursday the Caronia took the Brindilla in tow. As the weather was heavy, progress was slow and the hawsers parted several times, causing further delay.

The captain of the Brindilla, who is said to be an American citizen, was in communication tonight with the United States Consul here. He said that he hoped to procure the release of his vessel.
