A CHARMING and delightful tea given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. C. W. Sherman called forth a large assemblage of smartly gowned women during the hours of 4 to 6 o'clock. A charming decorative scheme was developed in the drawing-room, with quantities of chrysanthemums in shades of pink deepening into dark red. The attractive tea table was adorned with a clever arrangement of Madame Aaron Ward roses and dainty ferns, and was presided over by Mrs. James D. Hart, Mrs. Merritt L. Holbrook, Mrs. M. A. M. Ashley and Mrs. Sanderson. Present, Mrs. William C. Knighton, a popular matron of Salem, who is visiting Mrs. Sherman, and Mrs. Samuel S. Montague assisted in the drawing-room. Fascinating and dainty little Folly Sherman assisted her mother in receiving the guests. Mrs. Gilbert Durham was stationed at the punchbowl, and the hostess was further assisted about the dining-room by Mrs. Andrew D. Norris, Miss Katherine Hart, Miss Rhoda Rumschlag, Miss Gertrude Holbrook and Miss Helen Harmon.

Many Portland matrons and maids will motor to Vancouver Barracks tomorrow afternoon to attend the tea for which Mrs. Adrian S. Frisbie is the hostess. It is to be a large and elaborate affair.

Mrs. Charles T. Whitney has issued invitations for an at-home for Friday afternoon, October 30, from 3 until 5 o'clock, at Alexandra Court.

Mrs. May Catherine Beaver has returned after visiting several weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Woods, of Amity, and Miss Jennie Hartman, of Scotts Mills. She also passed several days at Whitcomb Springs.

The children of the Church of the Good Shepherd, under the auspices of the Chancel Guild, will present a dramatized version of "Snow-White and the Seven Dwarfs" and "Little Red Riding Hood" on Wednesday evening, October 28, at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Graham and Vancouver avenues.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Webber left for San Francisco last night. They will close their present tour in Salt Lake and will return to Portland about December 1.

Clan Macleay, Order of Scottish Clans, and Ladies' Auxiliary will give a Halloween concert and dance in Knights of Pythias Hall, October 29, in aid of Red Cross funds.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Foulkes were hosts for a charming dinner party Monday evening in the Arcadian Gardens of the Multnomah Hotel, preceding the Monday Musical Club reception in the royal suite of the hotel. Their guests were Miss Bessie Ricketts and Mrs. Ida Foster. Mrs. Foulkes is the new auditor of the club.

Congratulations are being showered upon Mr. and Mrs. Ewart E. J. Cound upon the birth of a son on October 14. He has been named Donald Ewart Willmott.

The women of the Holy Redeemer Parish will entertain their friends this afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock in the church hall, Williams avenue and Portland boulevard. Cards will be the diversion of the afternoon.

Women's Clubs

By Edith Knight Holmes

THE Coterie held an interesting meeting in the Hotel Benson yesterday morning. Mrs. G. H. Husted read a paper on the "Boy and Girl Problem," and music was provided by Mrs. A. B. Davis and Mrs. E. E. Covert. Judge Gatens spoke on the "Juvenile Court and some features relating to its work." In part he said:

The State Federation of Women's Clubs recently adopted a report urging that the Judge of the juvenile court should have authority, after having committed a child to an institution, to revoke such commitment. Their reasons for taking such power from the Judge are as follows: "The child is never taken from its parents unless the parents are found delinquent; the child is placed in a good home; he learns to love his parents and they to love him; after a time the parents turn over a new leaf and appeal to the Judge to revoke the commitment; new ties are broken and the whole tenor of his life is disturbed. This looks good in print and seems reasonable, just on the face of it. However, the juvenile court records prove this statement to be untrue. The larger percentage of children are sent to institutions because of dependency rather than delinquency. These parents are good and love their children, but are unable to care for them because of poverty, or because of the death of the father, or the mother. Perhaps it is the father, who, on account of the mother's death, is temporarily unable to properly care for his loved ones, but when he has bettered his condition, by marriage, or other means, should he not regain possession of his child? Not if the heads of some institutions have their way.

When a child is permanently committed to such an institution and given out for adoption, it is forever lost sight of by his parents, brothers and sisters and all blood relations.

Let me cite an instance. About four years ago a woman of the underworld, living in the North End of this city, was before the juvenile court fighting for her child. She had placed the child in a good family and was paying for its keeping. It was suggested that the court take her child from her permanently. When the mother came before me she said if I would not take the child away from her she would turn over a new leaf, would leave such a life and would devote the rest of her life to her child. That woman did leave the North End to make an honorable living and today is married and living a respectable life. The thought of losing her child forever was the means of causing her to reform.

Judge Gatens then cited other instances and explained the findings of the Hotchkiss committee in Chicago. He concluded with a short talk on the status of illegitimate children, saying: "I believe the law which requires that the woman bear the burden of all the disgrace is unjust from every point of view. In the first place, it recognizes the double standard; then, again, it does not equalize the burden of responsibility.

Whereas, in many countries there are laws for the protection of illegitimate children, with a view of giving them a fair chance in life and to realize it.

What we need in Oregon is a law to compel the fathers of illegitimate children to do their part toward securing the future of such children. I would suggest a divorce law which would require that a man refuse, the court to declare them husband and wife, and by the same decree grant the woman a divorce—be it any thing toward the support of the child, thus legalizing it.

The anxious women's organizations in the state should see that some law is enacted to protect the legitimate child, so as to remove, as far as possible, the many obstacles now thrown in its way by many people.

Sunnyside Parent-Teacher Association will give a reception tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in compliment to Principal Curtis, the teachers and patrons of the school.

The program will include an address by Superintendent Alderman; reading, Miss Elizabeth Eugenia Woodbury; address, E. D. Curtis; violin solo, Miss Katherine Davis, and address, Mrs. E. E. Bondurant.

A number of prominent clubwomen, social service workers and society people are interested in a card party which will be given November 4 in the crystal dining-room of the Hotel Benson. The afternoon has been arranged by a committee of which Mrs. R. E. Bondurant is chairman. The funds derived will be used to purchase shoes and clothing for the poor. Those who are lending patronage to the venture are Mesdames McKinley Mitchell, W. B. Ware, Martin Wagner, F. P. Waring, J. W. Toff, Frank Menefee, E. P. Weaver, C. L. Ross, J. C. Costello, H. O. Pitteku and others.

gonian unsolicited from a grateful woman, now of Portland: "I have read that some persons object to Senator Booth's nomination for United States Senator on the ground that he is not a friend of the laboring man. I beg to differ with them. I have been situated so that I could see Mr. Booth's life in his home as a husband, father, son and brother. Never was there or will there be a more conscientious man in his true love and devotion.

"And about his men who work for him. I have been in his camp, my husband working under him, as well as myself. Perhaps none of us received as much wages as we wanted, but we felt Mr. Booth was paying us as well as any one else was paying for similar work.

"I have known him to help widows and orphans, and you never read a big write-up about it, either. He did it from his inmost heart. I was a widow myself years ago, and he and his wife, whom he always confides in, came to me and said: 'If ever you are in real want, let us know. If you cannot educate your boy, we will, if you only ask us.'

"So at one time I needed $50. I wrote them and received it by return mail, and they never expected any favors in return. It came from their big, generous hearts. They never let their left hand know what their right hand doeth in helping destitute people who are worthy.

"I sincerely believe Robert Booth never bought any timber land in any way only that he thought was right, and as any other man would have done if he had had the same chance. This land, the way I understand it, was seemingly of value only for timber, and the timber was of no use to the people who took it up, as they could not go to the expense of hauling the logs to the mills. So consequently they sold the land to the Booth-Kelly Lumber Company. I am sure Mr. Booth will be the workingman's friend and work for his interest.

BOOTH CHILDREN'S FRIEND

Candidate for Senate Pledged to Protect Them and Aid Schools.

"In our children we have our greatest asset and our highest hopes," says the platform of Robert A. Booth, Republican nominee for the United States Senate. "To them we pledge unflinching interest and generous action for their protection and education."

One of the chief characteristics of Mr. Booth's life is his interest in the welfare of children. Throughout his private and public career he has done much to provide modern education for the boys and girls. Years before he became a candidate for Senator he was a liberal contributor to various schools and universities in the state, and has assisted scores of students in a financial way, to complete their college training.

He has taken an advanced stand against child labor as it is practiced in many of the Southern states. In repeated utterances he has pledged his conduct, if he is elected to the Senate, in the interest of the home.

In this connection he has assumed a determined attitude in favor of better schools, better roads and a better system of rural credits in the agricultural districts, so that children of farmers may have all the opportunities of improving their conditions as possessed by children living in the cities.

SAYS COFFEE DRINKERS HAVE REAL DRUG HABIT

Physician Declares Food Value Is Nil and People Use It Only for Stimulation.

"That many people are slaves to tea and coffee appears from a statement of Dr. C. J. Douglass, of Dorchester, Mass. 'They do not distinguish the difference between drugs and food in their effect on the system.

"There is no substitute for an enervating drug. When the effect of one dose has worn off, another dose of the same drug must be taken or discomfort follows, but if nutrition is wanted, a hundred different foods will supply the demand with equally satisfactory results.
