

FELICITATIONS POUR IN CHAMBERLAIN

R. A. Booth and C. B. Moores
Among Those to Extend Congratulations.

GRATITUDE IS EXPRESSED

Four of State With Colleague Proposed to Get Idea of Local Requirements, Particularly for River and Harbor Aid.

CONGRATULATORY MESSAGES RECEIVED YESTERDAY BY SENATOR CHAMBERLAIN.

The vote just given you by the electorate of our state, re-elected you to the United States Senate, is highly complimentary to you. I wish you a pleasant and successful term.—R. A. Booth.

"I shall remain in the future as in the past permanently on the job and to the best of my humble ability look after the matters that affect the individual citizens as well as the matters that affect the general interests of the state," declared Senator Chamberlain yesterday after his re-election had been assured.

Senator Chamberlain was in his offices in the Chamber of Commerce building all day and had a busy time of it meeting a constant stream of friends who called to offer congratulations, and in answering telegrams, letters and telephone calls.

He received scores of letters and telegrams from residents of Oregon and numerous messages of congratulation from his colleagues in the Senate, including Senator Lee, of Maryland, Senator O'Gorman, of New York, and others.

But none of the many words of felicitation that poured in upon him caused him greater pleasure and happiness than the messages from Robert A. Booth, his Republican colleague, C. B. Moores, chairman of the Republican state committee, each of whom complimented him upon his remarkable vote and wished him continued success. Senator Chamberlain long has been on terms of personal friendship with both Mr. Booth and Mr. Moores, and replied to them in kind.

Trip Through State Proposed.
Now that the heat of the campaign is over and the excitement attending the election has passed away, Oregon's senior Senator proposes to turn his attention to official duties. He will rest for a few days at his home in Portland, and then, in company with Senator Lane, his colleague, may visit one of the sections of the state that are in need of river and harbor improvements.

"I certainly feel deeply grateful to the people of Oregon for the splendid vote of confidence given me," he said yesterday. "I would like to thank them individually, but can only do so through the medium of the press."

In referring to the work now before Congress, he called attention to the fact that much has been accomplished by the Wilson Administration in the last 18 months.

"Much has been done," he said, "to take our Government out of private control and place it in the hands of the people through the instrumentality of boards such as the Interstate Commerce Commission, which are vested with large powers."

"Further instances of this kind are enactment of the currency law and creation of the Federal Trade Commission."

"The first of these now is recognized as the greatest piece of financial legislation ever enacted by Congress. The second will put an end to unfair competition and conspiracies in restraint of trade."

Important Matters Pending.
"But there remains some legislation of national importance to dispose of at the next session of Congress, which Oregon is immediately interested in: Appropriations for rivers and harbor improvements, and do hope that I may have the support of the press as well as the people."

"The river and harbor bill may be denounced as a pork-barrel proposition, but our people might as well understand now as at any time that we cannot denounce appropriations for river and harbor improvements in other states and expect to procure assistance for the waterways of Oregon."

"There have been items in every river and harbor bill which might have been eliminated in the public interest, but instances of that kind are rare."

Protests Blamed to Railroads.
"The opposition to these appropriations usually comes from the transportation companies, which recognize the danger of river and harbor improvements, because improved waterways mean freight rate regulations."

withdrawn from public use as they are now under the present system. "Yet, it must not be forgotten that the lands in the reserves belong to the people, while immense bodies of land under syndicate control are withdrawn from the people."

"Under the efficient administration of Secretary Lane I have no doubt that a general legislative programme will be adopted to relieve the conditions now complained of with respect to forest and other reserves and kindred subjects from the people."

Section 9 Opposed.
"Reclamation work is progressing in Oregon and elsewhere in the semi-arid regions with such haste as is compatible with healthy development."

"Nearly every candidate for Congressional office in Oregon, and for nearly every other office for that matter, has been promising if elected, to reinstate section 9 of the original reclamation act, which declares that the Secretary of the Interior is compelled to expend the major portion of the funds arising from the sale of public lands in each state or territory for the benefit of the arid lands within the limits of such state or territory."

"These promises never can be performed, and they ought not to be, for the simple reason that some of the states which have no feasible reclamation projects have been large contributors to the reclamation fund. Therefore, the funds which would have gone to other states for expenditures in experiments now go to states which, like Oregon, have feasible projects."

Reclamation Service Curbed.
"Further than that, Congress has gone one step, and at the last session it took away from the reclamation service the expenditure of reclamation funds. Hereafter, all appropriations for reclamation work will be made by Congress."

"As a matter of fact, Oregon has fared better than any other state in the matter of expenditure for reclamation work. The reclamation record for April last shows that 82 per cent of the money paid into the fund by Oregon has been spent in Oregon."

"Compare the records of some of the other states: Oklahoma has got back only 3 per cent; North Dakota 19 per cent; Kansas 42 per cent; South Dakota 40 per cent; and California 52 per cent."

"So it will be seen that Oregon has received a larger percentage of moneys that she contributed to the reclamation fund than any other state in the union."

"All this talk, therefore, by aspirants for political office of Oregon losing $8,000,000 through inattention of representatives of Oregon, Washington and other Western states, is nothing but nonsense."

SCHOOLS AND ORCHESTRA BOARD ALSO FAVORS PLAYROOM FOR LADD CHILDREN.
Educational Value of Music Recognized and $1000 Will Be Given if Law Does Not Spoil Plan.

Members of the School Board went on record yesterday at the regular bi-monthly meeting in favor of appropriating $1000 to help support the Portland School Orchestra and in favor of allowing the children of the Ladd School to play on the park blocks in front of the school premises.

"The need of funds to defray the expenses of the Symphony Orchestra was explained by William D. Wheelwright, honorary president of the orchestra; George D. Ramsdell, president of the Commercial Club; Charles F. Berg, president of the Portland Ad Club; J. C. English, president of the Rotary Club; A. H. Averill, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Jacob Kessler, president of the Progressive Business Men's Club."

"If it is found legal to donate $1000 to the orchestra in return for the musical instruction given the students who attend the Friday morning rehearsals of the orchestra, there is little doubt but that the money asked will be subscribed by the board."

"That the pupils of the Ladd School have the friendship of the entire personnel of the board was evidenced yesterday when the question of playground privileges came up."

"There is no law or ordinance that the people own those park blocks and the children who attend Ladd School and who need that playground space are representative of Portland families."

"The City Commission a year ago gave us permission to allow the children to play on that block," said Director Sommer. "Since Commissioner Brewster has seen fit to fence off the property I move that we send a communication to the Mayor and the Commissioners requesting the use of the two park blocks on either side of the forbidden ground in such a manner as the seeded ground on the original play site has become settled."

"The board officially admitted about 150 pupils who made out of Multnomah County to the Portland schools. Of these 42 needy pupils were exempted from tuition."
