NEAR CAR PLANS SUP

Stark Street May Be Used for Loop Instead of Washington.

DEAL WITH UNITED PENDS

Hill Road Proposes to Relinquish Down-Town Trackage if Not Compelled to Start Line Hillsboro Franchise Requires.

Elimination of the present system of looping all streetcars crossing the Broadway, Harriman and Burnside bridges on Washington street from Broadway to First street, and establishing the line on Stark street, is part of the present tracks of the United Railways Company, is part of a general plan being considered by the City Commission as an outcome of a conditional agreement of the United Railways Company to give up its Stark-street tracks.

The United Railways' franchise, as it stands at present, requires the extension of tracks on Macadam road southward to Hillsboro, inasmuch as it is to be under the same control as the United Railways Company, now goes to Hillsboro, the additional line is held to be unnecessary.

While it has not yet been made public it is said the chief interest of the city in the matter is to get an abandonment of the United Railways' interurban tracks on Stark street so that the cars of the Portland Electric Railway & Power Company may be routed over that street, between Broadway and First streets, and relieve the present congestion on Washington street.

Washington Street Crowded. Congestion on Washington street has been increasing rapidly, it is said, and the city has seen the necessity of making changes in the routing of cars to eliminate the congestion on Washington street.

Good Things in Markets

A HINT of the "holidays" is in the air. The first of the Japanese, or Mandarin, oranges is offered. They carry a suggestion of Christmas tree decorations.

New also for the season are Smyrna pulled figs, at 75 cents a box of two and a half pounds. Pomegranates and perlimmons are 5 cents each.

Autumnal desserts are considerably in evidence. Ripe Winter Nellis, 15 cents a dozen; the Keefer (a small, seedling pear) at four pears for 10 cents; fine eating pears, 25 cents a dozen, and Buerre Boss, labeled "the best pear grown," at 40 cents a dozen.

Apples are going off splendidly. Prices are low, and something very like a combination of state pride and neighborliness has developed. If the markets for our growers has been restricted, we'll eat all the more at home.

Good cooking Baldwin can be had for 75 cents a box, and Spitzenbergs, "small but good," at the same figure. Oregon Red, 85 cents a box; extra fancy Belleflower, $1, and equally fancy Spitzenbergs, $1.50. Golden Orley, $1, $1.50 and $2 a box; Red-checked Pippins, also of the extra fancy grade, are $1.10 a box.

Each of these varieties and several others, including the Canadian Snow apple, can be had at 40 and 50 cents a bushel in the market, or not less than eight for 5 cents.

Chief among squashes this week is a Zepplin (named for its grower). This really splendid product weighs 65 pounds, and was raised at Mount Scott. It is a cross between a yellow squash and a pumpkin, and sells at 2 cents a pound, or $1.25 entire.
