GATTLE DISEASE IS FOUND AT SPOKANE

Shipment From Chicago Is Put in Quarantine and Held for Observation.

DEPARTMENT FUNDS LOW

Cost of Campaign Against Foot and Mouth Epidemic, to Date, Is More Than $700,000 and Congress May Be Asked to Aid.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Nov. 17 .- The Department of Agriculture was advised by telegraph today that a shipment of cattle from Chicago had been held up at Spokane because of the discovery of foot and mouth disease. The representatives of the Bureau of Animal Industry at Spokane reported that this shipment had been quarantined and would be held under observation and that present the present of the property of t cautions had been taken to prevent spread of the disease. In view of this announcement, the department will not place a Federal quarantine on the State of Washington unless it is discovered later that the disease is spreading from Spokane.

To date the Federal and State Governments have spent approximately $750,000 in the campaign against the livestock foot and mouth epidemic. Of this about $400,000 has been borne by the Federal Government, almost exhausting the available funds of the Department of Agriculture. An emergency appropriation of probably $200,000 will be asked of Congress when it meets to complete the work of stamping out the disease.

ing out the disease. Experis of the department estimate that about $700,000 alone has been spent for slaughtering condemned cattle, one-half of which is borne by the Federal, the other half by the State Governments. The last outbreak of the disease, that of 1908, cost the Federal Government alone $300,000. The infected states then included Pennsyyvania, New York, Michigan and Maryland. On reports from field inspectors that an outbreak of the disease had oc-curred in the State of Washington and in the District of Columbia, department officials prepared today to place the affected areas under quarantine. Action was withheld, however, pending receipt of more definite information.

FINES WILL GO TO GIRL

in England with the Parisian laxity. At length our anger is satiated. Our victim is ruined and heart-broken, and our virtue goes quietly to sleep for seven years more.

"It is clear that those vices which destroy domestic happiness ought to be as much as possible repressed. It is equally clear that they cannot be repressed by penal legislation. It is, therefore, right and desirable that public opinion should be directed against them. But it should be directed against them uniformly, steadily and temporately, not by sudden fits and starts.

There should be one weight and temporately. measure.

General Punishment Advocated

"Decimation is always an objectionable mode of punishment. It is the resource of judges too indetent and hasty to investigate facts and to discriminate is a shame when things of this kind are done. If I were to be revengeful I would put you in jail, but that would do no good. Consideration for the girl is the only reason impelling me to this nicely between shades of guilt. It is an irrational practice, even when adopted by military tribunals. When adopted by the tribunal of public opinion it is infinitely more irrational. It is good that a certain portion of disgrace should constantly attend on certain bad actions. But it is not good that the offenders should merely have to stand the risks of a lottery of infamy, that 99 out of every 100 should escape, and that the hundredth, perhaps the most innocent of the 100, should pay for all.

"We remember to have seen a mob assembled in Lincoln's Inn to hoot a gentleman against whom the most oppressive proceedings known to the English law was then in progress. He was hooted because he had been an unfaithful husband, as if some of the most popular men of the age, Lord Nelson, for example, had not been unfaithful husbands Example Is Selected.

"'We remember a still stronger case. Will posterity believe that, in an age in which men whose gallantries were universally known and had been legally proved, filled some of the highest offices in the state and in the army, presided at the meetings of religious and benevolent institutions, were the delight of every society and the favorities of the multitude, a crowd of moralists went to the theater, in order to pelt a poor actor for disturbing the conjugal felicity of an Alderman? What there was in the circumstances, either of the offender or of the sufferer, to vindicate the zeal of the audience we could never conceive. It has never been could never conceive. It has never been supposed that the situation of an actor supposed that the situation of an actor is peculiarly favorable to the rigid virtues, or that an Alderman enjoys any special immunity from injuries such as that which on this occasion roused the anger of the public. But such is the justice of mankind. "Punishments of this kind are not uniform and are not steady. If the girl in this case had had an influential father or brother it is doubtful, indeed it is almost certain that she would not girl in this case had had an influential father or brother it is doubtful indeed it is almost certain that she would not have been allowed to tell her would not have been allowed to tell her and made to tell the history of her conduct it would be a sad, indeed a lamentable state of affairs. The girl in this case was not able to protect herself, nor was she through her father or mother able to secure protection. I sometimes ask myself in cases of this kind: Supposing this girl were my alster, would ilke her story published to the world? Of course I would mot! I would not permit her to bring destruction upon herself while bringing it upon others. Thou I certainly would not ask it of somebody clae's sister.

Deterrent Is Virtue.

This is the only good that punishment were certain, uniform and steady I should say that it might act as an example, but to have it enforced now and then to refrain for a long period from punishing for similar of fenses would take from its effect as an example.

"A vory great wrong was done this girl by each of these defendants, and about in the same degree. The indict-ment charges that it was done against the 'peace and dignity of the State of CARRANZA AGREES the 'peace and dignity of the State of Oregon,' but those of us who know anything about it know that this clause of the indictment was taken from England, where the charge was that it was done against the 'peace, majesty and dignity of our lord and King.' Infractions of the sexual moral code, against the 'peace, majesty and dignity of our lord the King,' has a satirical sound, in the light of the conduct of some of the kings the world has known. The peace and dignity of the state,' after all, is a good deal of a fiction, as employed so often in cases of this kind.

THE HOUSE OF LOVE

By ELIZABETH CHENEY
Price, net. $1.25, poatpaid.

"The story is aweetly religious, distinctly wholesome, and very well told. Doris is not a spineless, milk-and-water character, without force, vitality, and capacity. She is an intensely active normal child, who, by some keen intuition, grasped a great spiritual truth. She some way learned that we may dwell in the house of God's all-embracing love, and that he who trustfully dwells there is safe.

I know of nothing in late fiction that teaches a more beautiful lesson in a more beautiful way. It should have a large sale and a wide reading. While it is a story for the young especially, it is a story that all will enjoy "—(Rev.) Daniel McGurk, Dayton, Ohio.

THE STORY OF MARCO
By ELEANOR H. PORTER

Size, 12mo (41x7) inches). Illustrated Pages, 326. Binding, cloth

Author of "Pollyanna"

Marco, the hero of this fascinating tale, a famous violi sist, was brought up in a gypsy camp. By rare good fortune, a philanthropic artist heard him play and immediately determined to bring him in contact with a cleaner and higher life, and give him a finished musical training. His development into a great setiest, and the supreme event of his life—meeting again, through the playing of an old nir, the girl who was his constant companion in gypsy camp days—are related with true literary skill, and form the basis for a novel of unusual interest.

ON AND OFF SHORE

By GEORGE W. D'VYS

"It is a capital story, clean and inspiring, filled with adventures on sea and on land, but sound and healthy in all its teachings. The opening incident is a key to the spirit of the book. The hero scores the winning run for his school on a close play in a baseball match, and the umpire calls him safe. He, however, publicly acknowledges that he was sound, and so stands for fair play to the loss of the game. There is considerable mystery and some stirring trips on the sea with a real Gloucester flavor, but in the end the hero clears up the past and readers bid him farewell on the threshold of a successful business career with his character fully developed. All boys will like this story, and girls and grown-ups too will read it with interest and profit."—Somerville Journal, Mass.
