2 German Corps Believed Captured

The morning papers are scattered with news of the capture of two German corps, the 9th and 12th, on the Western Front. The capture of these corps is a major blow to the German military, and it is expected that the French and British will launch a counteroffensive soon to take advantage of the situation.

Other Forces Surround

Entire Vistula-Warthe Front Retreats: Route Resemblcd

The retreat of the German forces on the Vistula-Warthe front has left a trail of destruction and desolation. The retreating troops have left behind them a path of chaos and destruction, with villages and towns left in ruins.

Carpathians Are Crossed

Carr's Troops Make Capture South of Nambuca, in Austria, but Placed in Hungary by Dutton Back with Heavy Loss.

London, Nov. 25—The morning papers are scattered with news of the capture of two German corps, the 9th and 12th, on the Western Front. The capture of these corps is a major blow to the German military, and it is expected that the French and British will launch a counteroffensive soon to take advantage of the situation.

The retreat of the German forces on the Vistula-Warthe front has left a trail of destruction and desolation. The retreating troops have left behind them a path of chaos and destruction, with villages and towns left in ruins.

Carr's troops have crossed the Carpathian Mountains, capturing several German positions. However, the loss of life has been heavy, and the troops have had to retreat back with heavy losses.

London, Nov. 25—The morning papers are scattered with news of the capture of two German corps, the 9th and 12th, on the Western Front. The capture of these corps is a major blow to the German military, and it is expected that the French and British will launch a counteroffensive soon to take advantage of the situation.

The retreat of the German forces on the Vistula-Warthe front has left a trail of destruction and desolation. The retreating troops have left behind them a path of chaos and destruction, with villages and towns left in ruins.

The Carpathians are a formidable barrier, and the crossing was a difficult task. However, the troops have managed to cross and are now moving towards the Eastern Front, where they will continue their fight against the Germans.

London, Nov. 25—The morning papers are scattered with news of the capture of two German corps, the 9th and 12th, on the Western Front. The capture of these corps is a major blow to the German military, and it is expected that the French and British will launch a counteroffensive soon to take advantage of the situation.

The retreat of the German forces on the Vistula-Warthe front has left a trail of destruction and desolation. The retreating troops have left behind them a path of chaos and destruction, with villages and towns left in ruins.

The Carpathians are a formidable barrier, and the crossing was a difficult task. However, the troops have managed to cross and are now moving towards the Eastern Front, where they will continue their fight against the Germans.