Christmas is not always a day of pure joy. Santa Claus doesn't come down the chimney of a house when a wolf is at the door, unless he is accompanied by a generous person, who will chase the wolf away long enough for the gentle Christmas saint to slip up the porch to the roof and down the chimney with his stockingful of cheer. Sometimes, even when a charitable person has driven away temporarily the howling wolf of poverty and hun-ger, Christmas cannot be at best an exceedingly happy day except through the tenderest consideration and help-fulness extended to those who are suffulness extended to those who are suf-fering from a keener pang than that of hunger or cold.

Such a home as this is one that comes under the ministry of the Associated Charities, and which, through the me-dium of its Christmas Relief Fund, is an opportunity for the generous of Portland to dispense charity.

A man lies dying, after a long time of filness and helplessness. It seems doubtful even that he will be with his family until another Christmas day has come. He has a wife and five children, the oldest only 15 years old and the youngest 5 years old. The family is destitute, for its savings have gone in the father's struggle to regain health and life so that he might work to support his flock. They are now practically without clothing and food.

Opportunity 29. Father Seeks Work in Vain.

A strong, willing workman, a fine type of Hungarian peasant, has been walking the streets for weeks, seeking vainly for employment. His family is out of food supplies and the water has been turned off the house because he has not enough money to pay the waater even if work could be had. Opportunity 30.—Family May Lose Heme

The rent has been overdue for months and the landiord has announced that fit will be necessary for him to order the family out. In this home are a man and his wife and two children. The children are six and four years old. The rent is only $8.50 a month, but the father has been unable to get work for a long time and now has not even money to obtain the bare necessities of life. Efforts must be made at one of a life. Efforts must be made at one of a life family along until work can be found for the father.

"I don't want charity, but I do want work," is the persistent plea of a man, who has been driven in desperation to seek relief at the Associated Charities. Day after day he walks the streets and day after day he comes hopefully to the Associated Charities asking if anything for his to do has been found. His wife is desperately iii. She has just returned from the hospital, where she was obliged to undergo a serious operation and is unable to be out of bed at all. The youngest boy, four years old, is in the hospital now, suffering from pneumonia. There are three other children and the family is in need of food and clothing.

The Christmas relief fund of the Associated Charities already is being used in the effort to meet the demands for relief that are coming in with increasing numbers as the Winter advances, and out of this fund such cases as those mentioned are to be cared for, so far as the fund will re-those mentioned are to be cared for so far as the fund will go.

Response Is Hearty. Thus far the response of charitable residents of Portland has been encouraging. Food, clothing, supplies and generous denations of money are coming in continually.

Herman Metager notified the Associated Charittee restances

ated Charities yesterday that he would send a carload of dry wood, and arrangements have been made for free transportation of this contribution over the Oregon Electric. Among other donations of supplies P. J. Smith sent in a hed and some clother. a bed and some clothing, the Philip Hotel donated a supply of clothing, the Arlington Club sent aboes and clothing and a Mrs. Barnell provided carpets, clothing and preserved fruit.

LAST LICENSE DAY HERE :

Saloons Have Today to Ask for Renewals of Permits.

Today is the last day of grace for saloons that intend to continue in business after December 31 to file applications for renewal of license for 1915. All holders of licenses who do not have their applications for renewal in the hands of the license collection bureau or in the mail before 5 o'clock this afternoon will lose their permits automatically.

b o'clock this afternoon will lose their permits automatically.

While it is estimated by License Collector Hutchinson that about $5 saloons will go out of business January I he expects practically all of the present saloons to file applications for renewals. This can be done because no money has to be paid in until the latter part of December.
