A MID a most artistic setting of palms, ferns and blossoms in a profusion of riotous coloring, several hundred stylishly gowned women called yesterday afternoon to greet three new and stunning additions to the smart set—Mrs. Jacob Gray Kamm (Florence Bonnell), Mrs. Walker W. Kamm (Louise Roberts) and Mrs. Philip Schuyler Kamm (Marie Roberts)—who were formally presented to local society by Mrs. Charles Tilton Kamm and Mrs. Jacob Kamm, mother and grandmothers, respectively.

The affair was delightful in every way, the floral decorations being done under the capable supervision of Miss Ella Stephens. The walls of the drawing-room were decked with gold baskets filled with huge white chrysanthemums, mauve chrysanthemums, pink roses and baskets of pink carnations being arranged about the room. In the living-room a color scheme of yellow was developed with roses and chrysanthemums. The reception hall was adorned with flaming poinsettias and clusters of holly and red carnations. In the dining-room the decorations were particularly attractive, a color scheme of pink being used throughout. On the top table an unusually attractive and graceful arrangement of exquisite Killarney roses was combined with pink boucardia and pink lilac.

Model Made from Moritox Baby Lamb

Presiding at the handsomely appointed table were Mrs. William C. Alvord, Mrs. C. S. Jackson, Mrs. H. M. Esterly (Carrie Norcross) and Miss Carrie Holbrook. Assisting in the dining-room were Miss Margaret Mackenzie, Miss Isabelle Gault, Miss Nan E. Bunting, Miss Jean Brownlie, Miss Mary Robertson, Miss Katharine Hart, Mrs. Alfred Aya (Grace Honeyman), of La Pine, Or., Mrs. Charles Hindman, Mrs. Harold Strong (Hilda McElroy) and Mrs. Carl L. Wernicke.

Mrs. Luther Steel and Miss Margery Hoffman were stationed at the punch-bowl, and Miss Stephens, Miss Valentine Frichard and Miss Genevieve Thompson assisted about the drawing-rooms.

Mrs. Kamm, Sr., was distinguished in a black brocade gown, trimmed with rare old lace.

Mrs. Charles Kamm's gown was a soft shade of yellow charmeuse, trimmed with fur and lace.

Mrs. Jacob Kamm was admired in an exquisite gown of white satin, silver lace and embroidered net. She carried an armful of exquisite copper-colored roses.

Mrs. Walker Kamm was stunning in a beautiful gown of cloth of silver, with bodice of tulle over net, heavily embroidered with pearls. A long flaring tunic embroidered in a conventional design with pearls and silver was vastly becoming to her distinctive style. She carried an armful of Alpine violets and lacey fern.

Mrs. Philip Kamm, also a handsome young woman, was greatly admired in a white brocade gown, with a flaring tunic outlined with sequins. Her bouquet was also of white Alpine violets.

All three of the recent brides possess an unusual charm of manner, are vivacious, with the rare gift of affability which will make them as popular in this city as they have been in others, the latter two coming from the South.

With unusual charm of manner and a fascinating subject, "The First Phase of the Outbreak of the European War," Mrs. Tameyhill gave the second of her talks yesterday. By the use of maps she showed just where the armies were situated. The talk was attended by a number of well-known women, and will make them as popular in this city as they have been in others, the latter two coming from the South.

Miss Azalia Wood's class of girls, the Loyal Daughters of Millard-Avenue Presbyterian Church School, were entertained Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Yost, at 5129 Seventy-second avenue Southeast. Games and contests and music provided by Lillian Yost formed the part of the entertainment. Unique costumes were in evidence. Georgia Brown, who represented a woman celebrating her 75th birthday, carried out the party admirably. Mable Shuss, as King Cole, and Lillian Yost, as the queen of hearts, made a charming couple. Lucille Marsh, as a fashionable lady, and Agnes Murray, in a Japanese costume, made a striking pair. Florence Shuss, as a 5th Hopkins makeup, and Ruth Weldon, in an owl costume, furnished the principal amusement for the younger ones present. Mildred Moline played the part of an old maid to perfection. Mrs. Yost assisted her daughter, Lillian, in serving refreshments.

Those present were Miss Azalia Wood, Lucille Marsh, Lillian Yost, Georgia Brown, Florence Shuss, Mabel Shuss, Ruth Weldon, Claudine Moore, Agnes Murray, Mildred Moline, Ona Allen, Eleanor Jean Shaw, Mrs. E. L. Yost, Mr. and Mrs. George Cone, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Shaw, Mrs. J. D. Moore, Mrs. W. T. Stout, Harold Shaw, Paulus Shaw, Stanley Yost and Percy Yost.

A committee from each district is working in the district in which it is appointed and efforts are put forth to have no child left out of the holiday giving. Mrs. Una M. Stuchell is a representative of the Oceley Green Parent-Teacher Association and is one of its most earnest workers in the social service department.

Enchire Discarded; Women Sew.

ASHLAND, Or., Dec. 15.—(Special.)—About a month ago the Fortnightly Bridge Whist Club, the leading woman's card organization of the city, dumped their entire decks into the discard and inaugurated a systematic plan of sewing for the destitute Belgians. As a result, many new garments are ready to be forwarded with Ashland's other donations of flour, dried fruits and provisions. These will be dispatched in time, it is hoped, to reach the Massachusetts for its December sailing. The Commercial Club is handling the relief measure work here.
