

WOUNDED IN LONDON FROM RAIDED PORTS

Refugees Pour Into Metropolis and York Day Following German Bombardment.

CALM RESTORED IN TOWNS

Preparations Made to Meet Similar Attacks, Say Mayors—Woman Tells of Shell Passing Over Her Head in Kitchen.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The news of the German raiders' arrival was promptly sent to the military authorities of all coast towns and prearranged steps were immediately taken everywhere so as to be prepared in case a raid developed at other points.

For instance, the Mayor of Tyne-mouth, on the North Sea, eight miles East-northeast of New Castle, immediately ordered the gas supply turned off, directed the police to round up a large number of aliens and issued a proclamation instructing the populace as to what to do in case of attack.

There is much speculation in London as to how far the German raiders succeeded in creating a feeling of uneasiness or panic in other coast towns.

Coast Towns Prepare.

One of the London newspapers telegraphed to the Mayors of all coast towns asking them what effect the news of the enemy's visit had. All replies received so far indicate that no panic is felt. Among the replies are the following:

Pelzstowe—"Complete arrangements have been made here for all eventualities. Business is going on as usual."

Great Yarmouth—"We have taken all necessary precautions to protect the inhabitants in the event of a bombardment here. The people are quite calm."

Harwich—"The city is calm and normal."

Hull—"The excitement over the raid soon subsided here. We have full confidence in the navy."

Lowestoft—"The raid has not affected our nerves. The emergency committee has taken every precaution. No attack is expected but we are prepared for any emergency."

Refugees Reach London.

A number of refugees and travelers arrived in London from the bombarded towns during the night. Some of them showed signs of the raid in bandages covering minor injuries sustained.

Arthur Wood, manager of the electric light company at Scarborough, had his head swathed with bandages to cover wounds where pieces of shell had struck him in two or three places. His son, who accompanied him, was also wounded in two places. The elder wood said:

"I was standing in front of my house when a shell burst a few yards away and fragments ricocheted through a window sill and hit both myself and my son. I took my family to the cellar, where we looked up the wounds and remained there until all sounds of the bombardment had ceased. We then decided to leave town for a rest."

"It is my impression that the damage to the fine houses along the waterfront was very heavy. The town has scarcely a window pane left."

"At the first sound of the firing our soldiers were ordered into trenches to prevent any attempts to land troops."

Shell Passes by Housewife.

Another woman from Scarborough was a cool, young housewife, who said:

"At daybreak I glanced out of my kitchen window and saw three warships lying quietly in the haze a mile or two offshore. It never occurred to me that they were anything but English ships, so I went quietly about my preparations for breakfast."

"About 8 o'clock I heard the sound of guns but paid no particular notice. A few minutes later there came a shock—I cannot think of a better word for it. The shell had struck the house and passed straight through the room I was in."

"I was poaching eggs at the time. I looked up and saw a bright light near the walls near the ceiling indicating the course of the missile. I was puzzled for a moment and then suddenly realized that the Germans were shelling Scarborough."

"I took the family to the cellar, where we remained for an hour, during which one more shell struck the roof and fell into the drawing room, smashing the furniture. Another shell ploughed up our garden."

Refugees Arrive in York.

A dispatch from York says:

"Refugees from Scarborough were still arriving at York and Leeds early today, although the bombardment of Scarborough by German warships began at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and lasted but half an hour. Scarborough's streets last evening were filled with crowds and even the moving picture houses were open, but all the people were discussing the attack, in which five children, five women and seven men perished, and 30 were wounded and over a hundred houses were hit. Among the dramatic incidents was that in which one family of four was wiped out. The father died in a hospital, but his wife, son and nephew were killed outright."

"During the bombardment of Scarborough there was great excitement, but calm soon prevailed again. The inhabitants here were not subjected to a terrific thunderstorm, it appearing as though the Germans intended not to leave a house standing. The people were herded out of the lower part of the city, the poor quarter, by soldiers, as this section was a prominent target. Notices were published by the police asking residents to report all unexploded shells which were found, and several were brought to police headquarters."

RUSSIAN RULER NOW MORE CONFIDENT THAN EVER.

Trans-Caucasian Populace Said to Have Given Rousing Welcome on Nicholas' Arrival at Kars.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 16.—Official announcement is made that Emperor Nicholas, having finished his tour of inspection of the Russian army fronts in the Caucasus, left that region December 15.

A communication from the staff of the army in the Caucasus, dated December 13, says that engagements of the Russian forces have been insignificant.

TIFLIS, Transcaucasia, Dec. 15 (via Petrograd, Dec. 16).—The officer in command of the Russian forces in Tiflis has received the following telegram from Emperor Nicholas at Kars: "I have just spent what, for me, are memorable days among my brave troops in the Caucasus. "I was happy to be able to distribute personally to my men decorations of the Cross of St. George at a point not many miles distant from the fighting line. With such troops I am confident that with God's help we can be sure of victory."

KARS, Transcaucasia, Russia, Dec. 15.—(via Petrograd).—Emperor Nicholas reached here December 15 from Petrograd. He was welcomed at the railroad station by the military authorities and received with enthusiasm by the populace. He drove through the city and visited the local hospital, where he distributed medals to the wounded. Later he looked over the fortifications of Kars and thanked the local commander for the excellent condition in which the fortresses were being maintained.

The following day the Czar went to Sarakanyche, which is the head of the railroad leading to the positions occupied by a large proportion of the Russian troops in the Caucasus. Along this line are concentrated large numbers of reserves and supplies of munitions of war and food.

The Emperor, in an automobile, then proceeded to an army post at the front. Here were assembled a group of soldiers who had won distinction in fighting in the Caucasus. To these men His Majesty personally distributed decorations of the Cross of St. George and thanked them sincerely for the noble services they were rendering the country.

TENINO STONE UNLIKELY

TREASURY DEPARTMENT TO CONSIDER OREGON PRODUCT.

Both May Be Excluded in The Dalles Building—Senator Jones Charges Encouragement of Monopoly.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Dec. 16.—The Treasury Department is not strongly disposed to order the use of Oregon stone in the erection of the new public building at The Dalles, but regardless of what may be the ultimate decision as to Oregon stone, it seems certain that Tenino sandstone, quarried near Tacoma, Wash., will not be the material approved.

Senator Jones, of Washington, recently wrote the Treasury Department suggesting the use of Tenino stone at The Dalles. In replying to this letter the Secretary of the Treasury wrote Senator Jones, in part, as follows:

"The question of the use of local materials in public buildings is a matter of great concern as well as occasional embarrassment to the department. Tenino stone is known and has been used by the department—recently in the building at Olympia, Wash. In the latter case the results were not satisfactory."

"The building at The Dalles is in the State of Oregon. At Olympia Tenino stone was considered because it was a Washington product and the department is to be consistent it must give careful consideration, and intends to give careful consideration, to Oregon products for the building at The Dalles. In any event, the entire matter presents such difficulties, because of the methods employed by producers of various materials, that the department may be compelled, for its own protection, to ignore all materials except one or two standard products, such as Bedford limestone."

Senator Jones has written in reply condemning the attitude of the department, intimating encouragement of monopoly.

6 RAIDERS SEEN BY 1 MAN

Running Fight Kept Up After Germans Departed, Says Writer.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—According to the Morning Post's Middlesborough correspondent, the German vessels numbered six, but it could not be seen whether the fire from the shore batteries had any effect on them.

The correspondent adds that as the German vessels steamed away a running fight was kept up for some time.
