GREAT IRISH TENOR SINGS AT HEILIG TONIGHT.

JOHN M'CORMACK. John McCormack, the incomparable Irish tenor, sings in recital tonight at the Heilig under the direction of Steers & Coman.

"It has been well said that it is the treating of the commonplace with the feeling of the sublime that gives to art its true power," is the comment of a well-known newspaper editor of the East.

"John McCormack takes the simple folk-songs of his native land, instills into them a feeling of the sublime, and thereupon enfolds the hearts of his audience in emotional fetters."

Caruso attended a McCormack recital in New York a short time ago, and when the great Irish tenor gave "Ah, Moon of My Delight" from Liza Lehmann's "Persian Garden," the joy of the Italian was unbounded.

Christmas Books

More books are sold in December than in any other two or three months put together, A properly-chosen book always makes an acceptable gift and one whose price is not high.

It can be made the most sentimen-tal, most expressive of all gifts, for the book lover is flattered by a visit from a favorite author. The array of books is so dazzling that the great problem seems to be "how to make a selection." Perhaps the advertising in The Oregonian can help you choose.

Certainly it will guide you to the right store.
