

SOME OF HIS BOTH BEAR

Pioneer Merchant and Oldest Oddfellow in Oregon Passes at Home Here.

BUSINESS CAREER ACTIVE

Friends Recall Loss of Fortune in Early Days Due to Honesty in Grain Trade—Widow and 7 Children Are Bereaved.

Samuel Lowengart, a resident of Oregon for 55 years, died at 5 o'clock yesterday at his home at 523 Irving street. He was 89 years old.

Mr. Lowengart was born in Germany in 1824. In 1855 he came to the United States, sailing from Bremen to New York. There he met his brother, Joseph Lowengart, with whom he engaged later in business in Oregon. In 1859 Mr. Lowengart sailed for Oregon by way of the Isthmus of Panama and San Francisco and engaged in mercantile pursuits in Hillsboro. The trip across the isthmus took 99 days. On the trip up the coast the boat took fire, and Mr. Lowengart helped to throw overboard a quantity of powder.

After several years in Hillsboro, Mr. Lowengart moved to Portland. With his brother, Joseph, he built a warehouse on Front street, near Morrison street, where the two began buying grain on commission. Later the establishment was expanded by the installation of a meat-packing department.

While Mr. Lowengart was dealing in grain, it is related by friends, he purchased a large cargo of grain to be sold in San Francisco and returned to the voyage to San Francisco, which occupied a week, the price of grain dropped to such an extent that Mr. Lowengart lost heavily on the bargain. He made good the price he had promised the farmers, however, although this implied the loss of his warehouse in Portland and heavy retrenchments in his other business. It is said that this trip cost him about $30,000.

Realty Trade Taken Up. After the death of his brother, Mr. Lowengart, he turned to the realty business. Later he took up real estate and continued as an independent dealer till his death.

Mr. Lowengart was the oldest Oddfellow in Oregon. With five others, he joined the first lodge formed in Portland, in 1854, at the Germania hall. He was a member of the Congregation Beth Israel. At one time he was trustee in that church.

Mr. Lowengart is survived by his widow and seven children. The children are Mrs. Sarah Dilsheimer, Mrs. Fred Langerman, Mrs. M. E. Reisman, and Harry, Gustav and Caroline Lowengart, all of whom live at 523 Irving street, and Mrs. Caro W. Jacobs, of San Francisco. Four nephews, Ignatz and Philip Lowengart and Moritz and Philip Feldman, all of Portland, also survive. Funeral arrangements will be made today.

COMMUNITY TREE READY

ST. JOHN'S RESIDENTS TO HAVE A PUBLIC CELEBRATION TONIGHT.

Elaborate preparations have been perfected for the community Christmas tree celebration to be held in St. John's tonight.

A large and imposing Christmas tree has been erected on the principal business thoroughfare, illuminated with many-colored electric lights.

The community Christmas tree project was originated by Mrs. George M. Hall.

The following programme has been arranged: Band concert, C. O. Churchhill, director; songs by audience, "All Hail the Power," and "Joy to the World"; prayer by Rev. Mr. Borden; children's choruses, by St. Clement's Sunday school; male chorus, direction L. P. Clark; remarks, Mayor A. W. Vincent; soprano solo, Miss Fay Wentz—(a) "Christmas Song," (b) "Home Sweet Home"; remarks, Rev. J. A. LAND SALE AUTHORIZED

PERMIT GIVEN CENTRAL OREGON COMPANY OVER LEWIS' PROTEST.

Question of Whether Excess Acres Shall Be Watered Is Declared to Be Up to Supreme Court.

SALEM, Or., Dec. 24.—(Special.)—Notwithstanding the protest of State Engineer Lewis, the Desert Land Board today gave the Central Oregon Irrigation Company permission to sell 25,525 acres of land in the Central Canal unit. The board recently agreed to return to the company 129,000 acres of settlers which were held as a guaranty of good faith and stipulated that it could sell a certain number of acres.

Jesse Stearns, manager of Lewis' land, promised that he would obtain the consent of the directors of the company to the stipulation. A few days later the president wrote that the company desired to exclude 2725 excess acres. The excess acres are those which it was at first believed could not be irrigated, but which it was found later could be.

According to the president of the company these lands were not included in the original agreement and there is no reason why they should be watered now. It was announced that the question of whether the excess acres should be watered would be determined by the Supreme Court and the General Land Office, and the Desert Land Board would be compelled to abide by those decisions.

ACTORS TO FIND CHEER IN CHRISTMAS PARTIES

Baker Players, Lyric Company and Vandeville Artists All Plan Merry Fetes—Hellig Folk Have First Free Holiday in Year.

BY LEONE CASS BAER.

SOMEONE is going to write a whole book some day on the "Sorrows of Actors," and Christmas day will take up one entire chapter. Probably it will be the list of Thanksgiving day, a close second, and birthday had enough, but there's nothing that can quite take the sting of loneliness out of a Christmas day passed miles away from kith and kin or sometimes even friends. Occasionally the rule varies, if only to prove that rules do have exceptions. For instance, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Delmore, of the Marcus Loew Express, have landed in Mrs. Delmore's home city for Christmas, and will have a big tree and festive dinner party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Zidell, in Montavilla.

As a contrast, however, every other member on the Express bill is thousands of miles away from home and last night the lonely bunch got together and had a great big merry party at the Ritz Hotel, with Ed Ford, of the Daning Fords, as host. A huge tree and supper and the evening performance, with presents or everyone, provided joy for the gay party.

Manager Pierong, of the Express, is having a wonderful Christmas party today at his Laurelhurst home for his little daughter, Mary Jane. Among the many gifts little Miss Pierong received today was a beautiful chair, carved by one of the stage hands.

Baker Players Kept Busy. The Baker Players are tremendously busy Christmas day, for besides the two performances they give there is a lot of studying to be done for next week's play. Manager George L. Baker and Mrs. Baker will have a family dinner party at their home, with a few outside guests. Among the fortunate diners at the Baker home will be Edget Baker, who, of course, have her Christmas dinner at home.

William F. Powell, Brandon Evans and Eileen Wilson also will have a gay little party at the Nortonia. Lloyd, who is English born and bred, is the guest of friends today at a real old England Christmas dinner with a great plum pudding that was sent to them from London weeks ago.

Actor Host for Wards. Clarke Silverman is a philanthropist. He is at dinner time the band of boys he found at the Muts' headquarters. Walter Siegfried and Mrs. Siegfried, who is professionally known as Marie Haslam, and to have a regly Christmas reunion at Mr. Siegfried's mother's on the East Side.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Seaman will have a family dinner party. So, too, will Mr. and Mrs. Walter Reed, with a big tree and a lot of small gifts. This Christmas is the first in a dozen years that will give the Hellig-byterian Church has carried baskets of provisions and Christmas dainties to more than 50 poor families and shut-ins during the past week. Dolls have been distributed to many small children and clothing for all sizes and ages has been brought to the church and distributed by the officers and teachers to worthy families.

SANTA STOPS AT JAIL, TOO

Inmates to Get Some Delicacy and, Maybe, Gift From Friend.

A day of cheer is in store for the inmates of the city jail today. As usual, a big dinner is being planned, and, although nothing as elaborate as turkey and "fixin'" will make up the bill of fare, something out of the ordinary will be served on the Christmas fare of prisoners.

Those who have friends will fare better perhaps than the rest. Yesterday a number of gifts and letters were left for some of the inmates. After a short session of court yesterday, in which he released a number of vagrants as Christmas gifts, Judge Stevenson boarded the train for Forest Grove for a re-union of the family.

The hospital for the city has observed, too, Christmas arrangements have been made at the St. Vincent and Good Samaritan to have a tree for the little girls who are able to send little gifts will not be forgotten by Santa Claus and today all "kiddies" will be cheered.

EUGENE FORGETS NO ONE

Christmas Dinner for All and Pupils Parade Today.

EUGENE, Or., Dec. 24.—No person in Eugene will be allowed to go without a Christmas dinner tomorrow. Under the leadership of Mayor Vora, the Assorted Charities of the city has distributed thousands of dollars worth of food and clothing to the needy families. Contributions have literally swamped the committees and for two days wagons have been busy distributing the supplies that have been gathered during the past two weeks.

Children will march through the streets of the city singing old-time Christmas carols and in the evening a municipal Christmas tree gathering will be held.

ARTIST COMMITS SUICIDE

Despondency and No Work Blamed for Death of Arlington Man.

ARLINGTON, Or., Dec. 24.—(Special.)—J. W. Case, a painter and artist of some ability, committed suicide at his home in this city last night. Despondency and a despondent mood, he took down a rifle and stepped outside the door of his home. Lack of work, despondency and drink are blamed for his action. He is survived by a widow and two small children.

Lutherans to Give Programme.

In St. James' English Lutheran Church, corner West Park and Jefferson streets, at 7 o'clock, pastor, Christmas services will be held this morning at 7 o'clock. There will be music by the senior and junior choirs and an address by the pastor. There will be services by the Sunday school at 7:30 P. M. The programme will consist of Christmas carols, the usual recitations and readings, tableaux, Christmas trees and treats for the scholars.

ROSA ROSARIO START AT INITIATION

Six Candidates Fearful of Ordeal Before Train Is Off for South.

CITIES PLAN NEW 'STUNTS'

Organizations in California Charter Special Cars to Add to Portland Excursion as Party Goes Toward San Francisco.

Half a dozen embryo Rosarians are entertaining feelings of mingled fear and pleasure in anticipation of the initiation that they are going to get just before the California-bound special train leaves the Union Depot next Monday night.

This sextet consists of Edward Boise, of the Portland Hotel Company; C. M. Clark, John P. Logan and W. L. Thompson, members of the Oregon commission to the San Francisco fair; S. C. Lancaster, highway engineer, and Dr. Henry Waldemar Mized.

They feel something like the prodigal son about to return home. They don't know whether they are due for a figurative spanking or whether they are to be initiated into the mysteries of the Rosarians have framed up a nice bill of initiatory exercises that will be staged at the station before the train starts. But that will be the beginning of the fun. Every minute from then until the party returns will be taken up with elaborate entertainment.

At Oakland, for instance, the Royal Oaks, who came to the Rose Festival here a few years ago by the carload, will have charge of the party. In fact, the Oaks will be the more you chew the Southern California trip, for they have chartered two special cars to be attached to the Rosarian train on the route to Los Angeles, Pasadena and San Diego.

Party to Grow as It Travels. The Oaks and the Rosarians will join in the big New Year's day pageant at Pasadena and take them on to San Diego. Although the Panama-California Exposition opens with the actual birth of the new year, the big celebration in connection therewith will not take place until the following day. A parade will be one of the big attractions, and the Knights of the Rose Tournament of the city will be the big attractions in the parade.

Just to show what importance the San Diegans attach to the visit of the Rosarians, they have chartered next Saturday, January 2, Portland day. Of increasing importance, however, is the fact that the Rosarians will be on more or less of an official aspect. The Rosarians will dedicate the Oregon building at the World's Fair grounds in San Francisco which takes the Oregon commission, who will take immediate charge and prepare for the reception of exhibits. On this occasion Governor E. C. Young, builder of Multnomah County's great scenic asset.

This pictorial presentation, it is expected, will do much to attract the attention of tourists who travel to the Northwest and to influence many of them to include Portland and other parts of Oregon in their 1915 travels.

Meals served by Chewing Them. Every day at Mr. Fletcher's house, 26 Avenue Terwerven, which he has named Dreadnaught Coming Tower, his 12 apostles assemble. They are the first Rosarians in the city. They are Belgians, who, without Mr. Fletcher's experimental meals, would have a hard time finding anything to eat. They eat light meals a day and they earn their money by spending two hours or more in chewing each.

His experiments have already excited the interest of the National Relief Society and to a still greater degree that of the Belgian inhabitants of Eugene, who, however, are less interested in the scientific side of the problem than in the contrast they draw between the plight of Mr. Fletcher's apostles and the conduct of the German officers, of whom Bruges is full and whose un-Fletcherizing appetite bids fair to bankrupt every restaurateur in the city.

Horace Fletcher is nearly as well known in England and Northern Europe, where he has spent most of his time for several years, as in America, the land of his birth. He is now 65 years old. He is reputed to be a millionaire, but never attracted much public attention until, on retiring from business, he devoted himself to globe-trotting and hobbies.

His first hobby, which he called "menticulture," which expounded the theory of the power of mind over matter, never gained many followers, but his exploitation of the art of chewing, which began about 10 years ago, has attracted world-wide attention, gained the endorsement of many scientists and has been adopted by thousands of persons.

This theory is, in brief, that every body eats too much and you must cure yourself by chewing more thoroughly everything you put into your mouth.

WIFE THOUGHT SUICIDE

MRS. LORA HADHL SHOT AFTER QUARREL WITH HUSBAND.

Young Woman Found Dead at Home Following Dispute and Note Placing Blame Discovered Later.

Following a quarrel with her husband over a proposed visit to his relatives, Mrs. Lora Hadhl, aged 22 years, killed herself at 7 P. M. yesterday at her home at 742 Vanderbilt street, the police say, by firing a shot through her heart. Her husband, Henry Hadhl, 26, employed at the Metropolitan Insurance Company, was taken to the Police Emergency Hospital suffering with hysteria. He is 24 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Hadhl had been married about a year. They have one child, a boy, 10 weeks old. The police say the writing was addressed to Goltz that his wife went to her room and shot herself after they had quarreled over a visit he wanted to pay his parents at 807 Everett street. He heard the shot and broke down the door. His wife lay on the floor with a bullet wound in the forehead. By his side lay a note, scrawled on an old envelope.

"I have done this myself. Lora," it read. The police say the writing has been identified as that of Mrs. Hadhl's. During the mid-day meal, Hadhl told the officers, he suggested a visit to his parents. His wife, he said, refused to go.

"Now, we haven't been to see my folks for six or seven days," he protested, according to the officers. "If you won't go, I'll take the baby and go myself. You can stay home."

At these words, according to the report, his wife rose from the table and went to her bedroom. Hadhl heard the door slam and went to investigate. The body was taken to the morgue. An inquest probably will be held later.

Mrs. Jennie Palmer, 1529 Chautauque street, is caring for the baby. She said to have identified the note as written by Mrs. Hadhl.
