Lodge Blames Wilson's Personal Hostility to Huerta for Present Conditions.

RELIGIOUS PHASE INJECTED

Stone Accuses Roosevelt. Borah Says United States Must Protect Its Citizens Whereever They May Be.

WASHINGTON, Jan. WASHINGTON. Jan. 6.—Mexican troubles were the subject of another sharp debate today in the Senate. Senator Lodge, ranking Republican member of the foreign relations committee, made a speech criticising the Administration's attitude and declaring that it was all but too late for the American government to adopt any policy toward Mexico other than military occupation.

This drew a vigorous reply from Senator Stone, chairman of the committee, who branded the Massachusetts Sena-tor's attack as a purely partisan out-

Berah Joins in Discussion.

Senator Borah joined in the discussion and it was indicated that there would be a general presentation of views on the Mexican situation in the near future.

Senator Lodge reviewed the whole history of the disturbance in Mexico from the inception of the Madera revolution to the present strife between the Villa and Carranza factions, and declared anarchy existed now. He insisted that the animosity of President Wilson against General Huerta had directed the course of the Administration toward the Southern republic and that the failure of the President to mention Mexico in his last annual message to Congress had left it to be presumed that he had no policy to advance now that Huerta was out and revolt and tumult raged along the border.

sharp Reply Drawn Out.

Sharp Reply Drawn Out.

Senator Lodge said that it was impossible to expect the organization of an orderly government in Mexico and that anything looking to that end was an impossible dream. Senator Stone sharply arraigned the Massachusetts Senator for precipitating the discussion of the foreign relations of the United States at this time, when every possible effort was being made to keep the Nation at peace while war raged in many parts of the world.

Senator Lodge had incorporated in his remarks a recent article by ex-President Roosevelt attacking the Administration's Mexican policy and making mention of the religious persecution alleged to be in progress in Mexico. Senator Stone heatedly referred to the article "as a remarkable creed in which the ex-President sought to inject religious passions into our international relations."

Religious Phase Deprecated.

"It is detestable." he declared, 'that a former President of the United States and his coadjutor upon the floor, the Senator from Massachusetts, should attempt to incite religious passions in consideration of foreign affairs. There is too much of that going on now, both by Protestants and Catholics. I protest against it. I can think of nothing more dangerous to our political and civil life. It is time for patriotic Senators to arise and do something to check the onward movement of this great religious conflict. This is not the age and this is not the country where Religious Phase Deprecated. age and this is not the country where propagands of that kind should be en-ouraged.

Of the charge that President Wilson's animosity against Huerta had brought about present conditions in Mexico. Senator Stone asked why President Wilson should feel such hostility. The question answered itself, he said, and he added that the presumption that the President entertained such a feeling was a "bald fabrication."

Senators' Views Changed. Senators views tanged.

Senator Borah read extracts from speeches by Senator Stone during the last Republican Administration, remarking that the Missouri Senator had completely changed his views with the completely changed his views with the change in party power, as he had charged Senutor Lodge had done. The Mexican situation had come to a point, he insisted, where it must be debated fully in the light of the duty of the limited States to protect the lives and wherever they

"I should like to see the policy es-tablished, whether Democratic or Re-publican," Senator Borah added, "that then a man called out to a passerby in foreign city that he was an American n foreign that the shown that his life and his rights would be fully protected by this Government; they would not be molested then."

"Fifty-two Americans recently have been killed or wounded on the border at Naco," the Senator continued. Congestion of Traffic Unparalleled on Manhattan Island Results. People Fight Guards in Effort to Reach Street.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 .- The worst accident in the ten years' history of New York's subway occurred during the morning rush hours today, when 700 passengers in two stalled trains were stricken with panic in the darkened tubes as a result of the dense smoke and acrid fumes from a short-circuited cable.

In the ensuing struggle to escape ome 200 persons were injured, onevoman-fatally. Others were overcome and were rescued, unconscious, by poice and firemen, while scores of others struggled to the street, unnerved or ysterical, their clothing torn and faces blackened by smoke.

Traffic Blockade Unparalleled. As a result of the accident the city was in the throes of a transportation blockade tonight without parallel in its history. The hundreds of thousands of passengers the subway ordinarily carries were di-verted to the elevated and surface syssems and when the home-bound rush began tonight neither system had ade-junte facilities to accommodate the remendous crowds which sought transportation. There were no subway trains at all running to Brooklyn and a dense mass of humanity, concentrating at the Brooklyn bridge, prolonged the rush hour period for two hours in a strug-gle to board trains and cars.

Nearby theaters, stores and automobile garages were commandeered by the police as temporary hospitals for the less seriously injured, while dozens of ambulances carried away to hospitals those needing skilled attention. Some of these were reported in a serious condition tonight. Miss Ella Brady, the only person to lose her life, died in an ambulance. The lives of several undoubtedly will be saved by the use of pulmotors, physicians said.

tional amendment for woman suffrage. When a delegation of Democratic women, who declared they had helped to elect him, presented the sixth formal petition the President repeated his previous declaration that he considered suffrage a state issue.

Mrs. George A. Armes, president of the District of Columbia branch of the Wilson and Marshall League; Miss Alberta Hill, of New York, and Dr. Frances McGaskin, spokesman for the delegation which called at the White House, reminded the President that the House would vote on the suffrage amendment January 12, and asked that he lend his moral support to the movement.

Weemen Inspire Admiration.

"I am most unaffectedly complimented by this visit that you have paid me," the President told the women. "I have been called on several times to say what my position is on the important matter that you are so deeply interested in. I want to say that nobody can look on the fight you are making without great admiration, and I certainly am one of those who admire the tenacity and the skill and the address with which you try to promote the matter that you are interested in.

"But, I, ladles, am tied to a conviction, which I have had all my life, that changes of this sort ought to be brought about state by state. If it were not a matter of female suffrage, if it were a matter of any other thing connected with suffrage, I would hold the same opinion. It is a long-standing and deeply matured conviction on my part, and therefore I would be without excuse to my own constitutional principles if I lent my support to this very important movement for an amendment to the Constitution of the United States."

Wisdom of Course Doubted. "Frankly I do not think that this is the wise or the permanent way to build. I know that you perhaps unanimously disagree with me, but you will not think the less of me for being perfectly frank in the avowal of my own convictions on that subject, and own convictions on that subject, and certainly that avowal represents no attitude of antagonism but merely an attitude of principle.

"I want to say again how much complimented I am by your call and also by the confidence that you have so generously expressed in ms. I hope that in some respects I may live to justify that confidence."

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Jan. 6.—(Special.)—Tom Cornwall, who was to have been operated on today for an attack of bloodpolsoning as a re sult of a football game in Portland with the Multnomah Club team, Im-proved to such an extent through the night that the physician in charge of his case declared that an operation would not be necessary if Cornwall continued to grow better. Neverthecess, everything was in readiness for the operation at Mercy Hospital this morning, until the doctors arrived and morning, until the doctors arrived and made their final examination. The improved condition of the athlete's leg was wonderful and the football star is spared for a time at least from a knife of the surgeon. Dr. Kerron, former Oregon athlete, said of Cornwall's case:

"He is out of danger at present, but one can never tell how soon a turn for the worse may show; his injury is one of the bone and if new complications set in an operation is inevitable."

"But the Russian positions are equal was row of the strong, as a landwher battalion discovered to its cost when it stormed the first line of trenches and suffered heavily under a strong fire from the second line. It is now comparatively quiet along the Donajec."

Today is SHIRT SALE DAY in Portland

-This store is ready-the occasion is a semi-annual event, notice of which is issued far ahead.

-Today the newspapers will contain announcements of shirt sales, from the modest two-column advertisement up to half-page displays. Some stores will claim recordbreaking affairs-wonderful price reductions-marvelous assortments-greatest stocks in this city-opportunities for economy not to be found elsewhere.

As a Matter of Fact, Gentlemen, the manufacturer sends out to one and all alike a notice whereon is printed the reduced prices, and every mother's son of a merchant abides by these prices and retails them at the same figures.

-On these particular shirts our prices are identical with the smallest haberdasher, who could only order a few dozen.

Where We Excel

is that this store has a men's wear buyer whose intimate knowledge of style and good taste enables him to select smarter styles, more beautiful colorings, a more varied assortment and snappier patterns than you will find in most stores.

Added to This Advantage

we do not restrict men from just selecting from one line of shirts. Bear this in mind. We have added many lines of shirts sold exclusively to this store-shirts that have won for this house the reputation for distinctiveness. As one man fittingly remarked: "If you want to buy a shirt that's not shown in every show window in the city, you have to go to Lipman-Wolfe's for it."
