James A. Patten Gives to Charity Above What It Costs to Live.

People Cry "Long Live France!" and "Down With Germany!" and Garibaldi Flags, Seized by Police, Are Recaptured.

ROME, Jan. 7.—It is estimated that at least 300,000 persons took part Wednesday in the funeral of Lieutenant Bruno Garibaldi, grandson of the patron.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Two wealthy Chicagoans give to charity all they make above what it costs them to support themselves and their families and what they use for permanent investment. The two men are Julius Rosenwald, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and James A. Patten, wheat king. The story of the alliance between big business and charity came to light as the result of the coup that Mr. Patten executed on the wheat pit—a coup that was said to have left him by evening $40,000 richer than he was in the morning.
