Drys at Olympia Vote Down Effort to Prevent Change in Prohibition Measure.

SURPRISE TACTICS USED

Proposal to Suspend Rules to Adopt Resolution Loses, 55 to 41-Caucus Said to Have Decided on Move Taken by Party.

STATE CAPITOL, Olympia, Wash., Jan. 14.—(Special.)—Attempting by surprise tactics to seize the liquor question as a party issue, House Demo-crats late today introduced without warning a proposal to bind the Wash ington Legislature to consider at tide sersion no measures contemplating amendment or repeal of the prohibiamendment or repeal of the promoter tion law. Backers of the proposal were defeated, mustering 41 votes on a rolicall to suspend the rules for im-mediate adoption of the resolution, while 55 negative votes were recorded.

The vote, while affording to some extent an indication of the "wet" and "dry" lineup, was not a fair test. Republican organization leaders resented the action of the Democrats in attempting to make political capital of the liquor question and several regu-larly scheduled as "drya" voted against Issue Presented as Surprise.

The entire question came up like a flash. Representative Reeves, of Wen-atchee, Democratic floor leader, introduced joint resolution No. 3, reciting that since the voters of the state adopted state-wide prohibition by declaive vote last November, "in obedience to the will of the people this Legislature does hereby declare its detarmination not to consider or enact any bill or measure whatsoever dealing with or relating to the said liquor traffic or submitting or resubmitting in any form anything purporting to amend, modify or supersede the existing enactment of the people, thereby permitting this new law to have a full and fair trial, according to the true spirit of American institutions."

Speaker Conner ordered the bill referred to the committee on public morals. Reeves, arguing that the Legislature should clear the decks at once claive vote last November, "in obedi-should clear the decks at once lature should clear the ceeks at once of the liquer question and get to other business, moved for suspension of the rules to place the measure on passage. Every legislator was in his seat, with the exception of Rotch, of King County, who is zeriously ill in Seattle and has not yet attended the session.

Progressives Vote Solid,

Twenty-three Republicans, 11 Democrats and 7 Progressives voted for suspension of the rules, making a total affirmative vote of 41, whereas a vote of 67 or two-thirds of the House membership was required.

Fifty-three Republicans and two Democrats voted "no" and the resolution went to the public morals committee. This committee is supposed to be "wet" and it is improbable that the resolution will emerge.

Adams of Kittitas, and Urquhart of Grant, the two Democrats who voted against the resolution, were not present in the caucus and had not been told of the caucus action. Backers Pleased at Lineup.

Far from being disheartened at the result of the vote, the backers of the conflittion cause were inclined tonight prohibition cause were inclined tonight to view the matter favorably. Representative Halsey, of Asotin County, one of the Republican leaders and himself a "dry," although voting in opposition to the resolution, predicted that judging from today's vote the House probably would be "dry" when the question of a special election or submission of new liquor measures comes up.

Other prohibition advocates pointed Other prohibition advocates pointed out that the test vote will chart the 'drys' to center their missionary work on those who voted against the resolution today, after first ascertaining whether their opposition was based on disinclination to vote for a Democratic party plan or affiliation with the "wets."

mandination to vote for a remoterate party plan or affiliation with the "wets."

History is Repeated.

The action attempted by the Democrats today is a parallel of action taken by "wet" forces four years ago, when the Legislature in the first weeks of its session adopted a resolution declining to consider any liquor measures. This action was taken to prevent consideration of proposed county unit amendments to the local option bill. The resolution affered today would have no legal binding force, as the Legislature has no authority to refuse to consider any question that may be submitted in proper form.

The Senate today had a discussion consuming several bours of oratory when Senator Taylor attempted to prevent the Legislature from printing the consider in the first degree against C. W. House Makes Salary Changes.

House Makes Salary Changes.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 14.—(Special.)
—Increased salaries for practically every position in the gift of the Legislature have been arranged by the patronage committee of the lower house. The chief cierk will receive $10 a day as against $7.50 at the last session; the sergeant-at-arms $7.50, male stenographers $5.50, and women employed in the same capacity $4.50.

Members of the committee say economy will be effected despite the increased rates of salary, pointing out that fewer pages and janitors will be used than formerly. The number of these employes was increased radically at the last session of the Legislature, to afford more patronage to distribute to members of the House organization. To enable the Legislature to distribute the necessary patronage, salaries were the necessary patronage, salaries were reduced, and the present patronage committee says the increased rates constitute only the reinstatement of the former rate of pay.

J. W. Staples, fireman on a westbound freight, was run over by a boxcar side-tracked on a flying switch at this place last night about 11 o'clock and died at the local hospital a couple of hours later. He was conscious until about 20 minutes before his death and requested that his wife be sent for at once, realizing that his time was short. She arrived a short time later from Glenns Perry, where his home was. The widow will accompany the body to Missouri for interment.

THE DALLES, Or., Jan. 14.—(Special.)—Two citizens of Mosier, Or., Vic E. Lindberg and C. B. Aplin, were fined $50 each in Justice Court here today on the charge of bootlegging. Unable to pay their fines, they were remanded to the County Jail.

Their arrest was the result of several complaints which were sent to Sheriff Chrisman by Mosier citizens. The Sheriff, accompanied by District Attorney Bell, went to Mosier Wednesday and raided the "lunch counter" of Lindberg & Aplin. Several gallons of whisky jugs and empty booze bottles were said to have been found by the officials under a stairway. A barrel filled with empty bottles also was found in the place, the officers say.

Lindberg has been a previous visitor at the County Jail, having been charged with passing worthless checks. His case was settled out of court last November. Both men are said to be ex-saloonkeepers of Portland.
