

GEORGE A. WHITE MADE ADJUTANT GENERAL

W. E. Finzer Resigns to Enter
Business After 12 Years
at Head of Guard.

CHANGE DUE FEBRUARY 1

New Commander Is Portland Captain, News Writer, Authority on Military Subjects, Winning Recognition From High Rank.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Jan. 15.—(Special.)—W. E. Finzer, Adjutant-General, at his own request, will be relieved from duty as Chief of Staff of the Oregon National Guard February 1. General Finzer made this known in an official communication to Governor Withycombe, who today named Captain George A. White, of the Third Oregon Infantry, to succeed the retiring Adjutant-General.

In his letter General Finzer explained that he has for some time been contemplating this action. His friends have known for many months that he intended to leave the active life early in the fall to engage in business. In deciding to precipitate this action, General Finzer explained in his letter that he thought it might be for the best interests of the Oregon National Guard for his successor to be installed during the legislative session and at a time when Governor Withycombe is formulating new military policies, looking toward the relief of the National Guard from all duties other than those of preparing for service as a unit in the system of National defense.

Promotion to Be Made at Once.
Captain White will be advanced at once to the rank of Brigadier-General and will take up his new duties February 1, in the meantime devoting his time in familiarizing himself with the details of the office. The new Adjutant-General is a resident of Portland and has 12 years' military service to his credit. The past eight years he has been an officer of the Oregon National Guard. He also served through the Spanish-American war. His appointment under the military code holds until he reaches the age of retirement.

General Finzer, who has been in his present post for the past 12 years, has issued the following statement to the members of the National Guard on the matter of his retirement.

Change Made at Own Request.
"I am at this time requesting the Governor to place me on the retired list for the following reasons: Governor Withycombe has just been inaugurated, and in view of the fact that for some time past I have contemplated retirement, I feel that just now the new Governor should have the opportunity to name a man who necessarily will have to obtain such appropriations from the Legislature as are needed for the support and maintenance of the Guard, and to co-operate with him in working out policies which will continue the Guard at the present high rating which it has with the War Department. "I wish to take this opportunity to express my sincere appreciation of the splendid way in which the officers and men of the Guard have co-operated with me in building up the duty, which have gone so far to make our organization a credit to the state and Nation. For their support and aid, I desire to make full acknowledgment."

Captain White Praised.
"I shall make every effort to accept the suggestion of the Governor, and to remain in association with the Guard, in charge of constructive projects, which I have inaugurated."

"The Governor has told me of his choice for my successor. Of Captain White I can speak with real satisfaction. Governor Withycombe has made a wise selection, and I shall co-operate with the new Adjutant-General to the best of my ability, further the best interests of the Guard."

Captain White entered the National Guard at the age of 15 years, enlisting as a private in the First Utah cavalry and serving later with the Spanish-American war. He was enlisted in the Utah Volunteer Field Artillery, and then returned to service in the National Guard, and was First Sergeant of his company during his term of enlistment.

Successful Tests Passed.
He entered the Oregon National Guard eight years ago and shortly afterward went before the examining board and passed the required examination for Lieutenant. He was assigned to the ordnance department, and attached to the Third Oregon Infantry. In 1911 he was commissioned Captain of Infantry after passing the prescribed examination and since has served as inspector of small arms practice, except as details as regimental commissary. He has served twice as range officer at the National matches at Camp Perry, O. At the annual meeting of the National Guard Association of 1909 he was mentioned in general orders for valuable services in the interest of the Oregon National Guard during that year.

As a writer on military subjects Captain White has attained a considerable reputation, many of his articles having been reproduced in the United States service journals and in Eastern magazines.

Captain White is a native of Illinois, where he was born July 18, 1880. He was educated in the public schools of Utah. All Hollows College and the Students Art League at New York. He has been a resident of Oregon for the past 12 years, his home being at Portland. He is a newspaper and magazine writer by profession, and for several years has been Sunday editor of The Oregonian and a writer of editorials on war and military policy.

In this work he is said to have attracted the favorable attention of many Army officers, including Major-General Wood and Secretary of War Garrison.

"It will be my own aim as Adjutant-General to maintain and develop the effectiveness of the Oregon National Guard as a unit in the National defense," said Captain White, following the announcement of his appointment.

Service in Army First.
"The greatest function of the National Guard is to prepare for the possibility of service in support of the United States Army. The citizen soldier should not be called upon to perform police duty within the state, I believe, and following the suggestion of Governor Withycombe as indicated in his recent message to the Legislature, I intend to proceed at an early date to have the Oregon National Guard relieved from all police duties."

NEWLY APPOINTED AND RETIRING ADJUTANTS-GENERAL, OREGON NATIONAL GUARD.

National Guard has been most valuable and who, I am certain, retires with the hearty good will of the National Guard, a good will that has been gained through a policy of strict fairness to all the officers and members of the organization."

General Finzer's Record Good.

General Finzer has been connected with the Oregon National Guard for the past 29 years. He enlisted as a private and a few days later was commissioned a First Lieutenant in the Second Oregon Volunteers. After serving through the Spanish War and Philippine Insurrection he returned to service in the Oregon Guard with the rank of Captain. For several years he commanded Company I at Woodburne. He was appointed Adjutant-General by Governor Chamberlain in 1903 and has served continuously since then. Recognizing his service the War Department in 1910 named him a member of the National Militia board, in which capacity he served for several years. He is at present vice-president of the National Guard Association of the United States.

General Finzer has been an ardent supporter of rifle practice and has been active in bringing the Guard riflemen up to their high ratings in the National matches. He is a director in the National Rifle Association, and in his state he has originated the policy of building armories and it was through his efforts that the rifle range at Clackamas was purchased by the Government and developed.

JUNKET PROPOSAL LOST

REPRESENTATIVES DECIDE NOT TO VISIT STATE SCHOOLS.

Mr. Schuebel and Mr. Littlefield Erefer Staying in Salem and "Sawing Wood," and Win.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Jan. 15.—(Special.)—In its zeal to enforce its economy programme the House voted this morning to send its official "regrets" to the faculty of both the State and the Oregon Agricultural College.

The invitation from the Agricultural College to visit that institution already had been accepted by the Senate, and was sent to the House in the form of a resolution. The invitation from the university was read before the House this morning in the shape of a telegram from President Campbell.

Some members wanted to accept both invitations, and proposed to set next Friday as the date. Another element, led by Mr. Schuebel of Clackamas and Mr. Littlefield of Portland, urged the legislators to stay at Salem and "saw wood," and allow the committee on ways and means to visit the schools in the due process of its deliberations on the proposed expenditures for those institutions.

"We wouldn't learn anything if we went there, anyway," said Mr. Littlefield. "They would be on dress parade and some estimable men and women would provide for our comfort, but we wouldn't know any more about the schools when we left than when we arrived. I am in favor of legislating to the advantage of the schools, but I think we can do them more good by staying here."

This sentiment prevailed by a decisive majority.

INCORPORATION BILL IS UP

Change in Articles of Societies Without Inconvenience Aim.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Jan. 15.—(Special.)—A bill that will give the Oregon Historical Society and other corporate bodies not organized for profit power to amend their articles of incorporation without inconvenience was introduced in the House this morning by Plowden Stott, of the Multnomah delegation.

The present law requires such an organization to serve notice upon every member before any changes can be made. In a large body this is impracticable. The Oregon Historical Society proposed a few minor changes in its articles at its annual meeting in December, and the proposed law will permit these changes to be made without notifying every member.

NEW JUDICIAL DISTRICT ASKED

Proposal Is to Detach Clatsop and Columbia From Clackamas.

STATEHOUSE, Salem, Or., Jan. 15.—(Special.)—Another judicial district, the 14th—is proposed in a bill introduced in the House today by members of the Clatsop delegation.

The measure aims to detach Clatsop and Columbia counties from the present Fifth Judicial District, calling it the 14th. The bill also calls for Clackamas County alone as the Fifth District. James A. Campbell would be retained as the judge of the proposed 14th district, and James A. Eakin as judge of the Fifth District until their respective successors are elected in the election of 1916.

BILL AIMS AT BONDING FRAUD

Olson Offers Measure to Prevent "Improvement District" Scheme.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Jan. 15.—(Special.)—Real estate promoters who organize "improvement districts" in the suburbs of Portland and other

Oregon cities will have to conform to the present municipal bonding laws, if a bill introduced in the House today by Representative Olson, of Portland, is passed.

Mr. Olson declares that in the past enterprising real estate operators have paved large blocks of streets and then bonded the improvements for about 50 per cent of their actual cost. Purchasers of property have been obliged to pay for the improvements at the advanced price and in cases of default the city has come in and attached the property, thus becoming a party to the fraud.

"My bill will put an end to all such practices," says Mr. Olson.

DEFENDER BILL INTRODUCED

House to Consider Multnomah Attorney for Needy.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Jan. 15.—(Special.)—Representative Lewis, of St. Johns, today introduced in the House the bill prepared by Thomas McCusker, of Portland, providing for the office of public defender in Multnomah County.

The proposed official is to be appointed by the Governor for a term ending after the next regular election. The bill provides that the public defender is not only to defend persons charged with crime who are unable to employ their own counsel, but to give free legal advice to poor persons generally. He also is supposed to inquire into the merits of the cases and direct his efforts that property be returned to the tax rolls. In this way, it is expected, the office will become self-supporting.

NEW BILL HITS PRESS

RESTRICTIONS REGARDING PUBLICATION OF DECISIONS DESIRED.

Representative Olson Defends Measure on Theory That Courts Object to Reversing Themselves.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Jan. 15.—(Special.)—A bill that is expected to curb the power of the press in some courts has been introduced in the House by Representative Olson, of Multnomah. While it is intended primarily to prevent law book publishers from printing the decisions of the State Supreme Court pending applications for rehearing, it is so worded that it will throw the same restrictions around the newspapers.

Representative Olson explains that the measure is not aimed at the newspapers, but admits that it would hit them. He defends his bill on the grounds that under present conditions newspapers and law book publishers are given the full text of the court's decisions immediately after they are rendered and that the publicity thus given such opinions may cause the court to stand on its "judicial pride" and refrain from reversing itself when there may be presented, upon rehearing, just cause for doing so.

ANTI-PLAGUE FUND IS TARGET

Mr. Barrow Would Cut Off $5000 for Medical Aged in Orient.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Jan. 15.—(Special.)—Once again the ax of economy has been applied. This time Representative Barrow, of Coos and Curry, is swinging it. He is aiming a blow at the present continuing appropriation of $5000 a year to prevent the spread of bubonic plague.

In fact, the present statutes contain two laws carrying such appropriations, one passed in 1911 and the other in 1912. But the first law has no provision for the expenditure of money. The Barrow bill introduced today aims to repeal both.

Under the law of 1912 the State Medical Society has had a man in China and other parts of the Orient studying plague conditions and working to prevent the spread of the disease to the State of Oregon.

THREE PROHIBITION BILLS ASSURED

Two Are Pending and Third Will Come From Ora H. Porter, of Douglas County.

DIFFERENCES NOT GREAT

Hotel Men's Measure to Be Introduced Next Week and Lobby Is Reaching Salem, but Will of People Is to Be Respected.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Jan. 15.—(Special.)—At least three prohibition bills will be considered in the House this session. Two of these already are pending and the third is up the sleeve of Ora H. Porter, Representative from Douglas County, who may introduce it early next week.

These measures do not include the bill that the hotelmen of the state promise to bring before the Legislature asking for reestablishment of the prohibition question to the voters at a special election.

The advance guard of the hotelmen's lobby made its appearance in the legislative halls here this afternoon and interviewed some of the House members who are on the committee to consider the traffic. The hotelmen asked members of this committee to withhold action on the pending bill prepared by the Committee of One Hundred and introduced in the House by Representative Anderson until they can introduce their own bill.

Mr. Lewis Has Bill.
Members of the House committee are planning to begin hearings on all bills next Monday evening. They now have the bill by the Committee of One Hundred before them and probably will have referred to them a bill introduced in the House this afternoon by Representative Lewis, of St. Johns. The Lewis bill includes many of the essential provisions contained in the bill drawn by the Committee of One Hundred, which is popularly referred to by House members as "Number One," as it was the first bill introduced in the House. However, it differs from it in some essential particulars. It is more drastic in some places and less so in others.

For instance, "Number One" gives the Attorney-General of the state the right to appoint assistant prosecuting officers in the various counties, to aid in enforcing the law, while the Lewis bill makes no such provision.

Advertising One Difference.
On the other hand, "Number One" permits newspapers to advertise liquor for sale outside the state for shipment into the state, while the Lewis bill prohibits such practices. Both measures permit smugglers to sell wine to clergy men for sacramental purposes and prescribe strict regulations against the sale of liquor, excepting alcohol, for scientific purposes by druggists or others.

Representative Porter's bill is more stringent than either of the others, as it prescribes strict regulations against shipping liquor into the state. As "Number One" was the first to be introduced it probably will have first consideration by the House committee. It is certain that it will be amended in some minor particulars. Members of the committee that drafted it themselves have suggested some changes and these, no doubt, will be made.

That the Legislature will adopt a strict prohibition bill is evidenced by the sentiments expressed by the members. The disposition seems to be for a stricter bill than "Number One," rather than one more lenient.

Hotelmen's Bill Discussed.

Members of the House who are beginning to consider the reported provisions of the hotelmen's bill that hotel representatives who were here today said they would have ready for introduction early next week. While this measure, it is understood, merely asks the Legislature to submit to the voters the question of whether or not to operate under certain restrictions, members of the House are inclined to consider the bill on the merits of the proposed amendment rather than on the mere question of permitting the people to vote on it.

"I think we are morally bound to maintain the integrity of the people expressed at the polls last fall," said Dr. Anderson. "The people, to my mind, want prohibition. They don't want an opportunity to vote on the question again, and to have the fight all over again."

James S. Stewart, of Wheeler County, feels the same way about it. "The hotelmen are going to let the people express their opinion on the question," he said. "I promised not to pass judgment on their bill until I had seen it. They said they would have it here by next Wednesday. However, the people have spoken, and I am not in favor of asking them to vote on the question again."

BILLS IN HOUSE YET BOB UP

Regulation of Appeals in Land Cases Is Aim of One.

SALEM, Or., Jan. 15.—(Special.)—The following bills were introduced in the House today:

H. B. 67, by Lewis—To provide probationary suspension of judgment.

H. B. 68, by Lewis—Providing District Courts in counties where the population is less than 10,000 by Lewis—To regulate appeals in land cases.

H. B. 69, by Lewis—Levying special tax on motor trucks.

H. B. 70, by Lewis—Providing public defenders in counties of 10,000.

H. B. 71, by Lewis—To increase number of challenges in jury trials.

H. B. 72, by Bowman—Governor employment of Supreme Court reporter.

H. B. 73, by Stott—Giving non-profitable societies privilege of changing articles of incorporation.

H. B. 74, by Towne (by request)—Defining crime of conspiracy and fixing penalty.

H. B. 75, by Olson—Relating to bonded assent.

H. B. 76, by Olson—Conferring right of eminent domain upon certain persons.

H. B. 77, by Olson—Exempting certain personal property from attachment.

STATE PLANTS ADVOCATED

Sam H. Moore, of Corvallis, Wants Activities Extended.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Jan. 15.—(Special.)—That the state may acquire by purchase or condemnation deposits of power, coal and other fuel supplies, for the purpose of building roads and manufacturing and distributing for the manufacture of cement and other materials.

The measure provides that the Governor, Attorney-General and State Highway Engineer shall constitute a state board of highway construction; that the Governor shall appoint a general superintendent to enforce a uniform system of road and bridge construction and that the board may divide the state into districts with plants for the manufacture of cement and other materials.

Women's Bill Introduced.
STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Jan. 15.—(Special.)—Representative Olson, of Multnomah County, introduced in the House the bill prepared by various bodies of women and other interested parties in welfare work in Portland fixing the rights of illegitimate children. It gives the mother of such a child the right to assume the father's name if the paternity can be proved and gives the child the same legal rights as children born in wedlock.

Dr. Marcellus is Health Officer of Portland. According to reports forwarded, there entire co-operation between the departments, and the Governor thinks that the appointment of Dr. Marcellus will give better satisfaction and efficiency by having a member of the board officially connected with the Portland health department.

The appointment harmonizes with the suggestion in the Governor's inaugural message, in which he advised the consolidation of the state and city laboratories in Portland, to eliminate duplication of work.

The holdover members of the board are Drs. W. B. Morse, of Salem; E. B. Pickley, of Medford, and E. A. Pierce, of Portland, whose terms will continue for two years.

OATS AT $1.55 AT BAKER

Barley Rises, Too, Going to $2.7 a Ton With Few Sales Resulting.

BAKER, Or., Jan. 15.—(Special.)—Oats and barley have shot up to new high levels and buyers are finding it almost impossible to buy, despite the high prices offered. Oats went up 15 cents a hundredweight today, advancing from $1.40 to $1.55, while barley also went up $1 a ton, offerings for day being at $2.7 a ton with almost no sale resulting.

Heavy demand for oats by foreign shippers is said to have sent the price forward. Local buying of barley by farmers who need the grain for feeding hogs is at prices even greater than those quoted and in some cases as high as $2.50 a ton.

The price of wheat here remained at $1.25 a bushel, with the available supply virtually gone. Farmers who still have a supply of wheat on hand seem content to hold it and some have said they would not sell until a price of $1.50 a bushel is reached.
