It is expected that the steamer will be dispatched in about a week.

The Oregon committee reported yesterday generous contributions from many sources. Both money and provisions were received. A letter from the Belgian relief committee, Preston, Idaho, accompanying contributions, read:

"This flour has been secured by donation from nearly every family in the county, each giving one sack of flour or lix equivalent in money. In area Franklin County is the smallest county in the state, but it has a class of citizens that for public spirit and enterprise cannot be surpassed in Idahe.

Depth Is Abundant. It was agreed that the space between dyke at the head of it, was suggested, but as that waterway is traversed by small steamers, and by sternwheelers when ice in the river blocks the main channel, dumping there was not fa-vored. Like Mock's Bottom, there were several sites viewed at which it would be necessary for barges loaded with ashes to be landed and the debris moved by wheelbarrows ashore. To such a scheme an objection was raised that those acting as scavengers did not receive sufficient pay for each barge load to warrant towing it a considerable distance and then una considerable distance and their analysis and their analysis of the United States authorities fook action against the owner of a launch that had been used in towing a barge of ashes from a tramp steamer lying here, which was dumped in the stream near the Spokane, Portland & Scattle bridge.

Launch is Libeled.

The launch was libeled in the amount of a maximum fine provided, $2500. Meanwhile the owner is prevented from using the launch until the case is disposed of. In defense of the action in disposing of ashes in that vicinity it has been pleaded that there was no definite place designated for the purpose, that ships lying in port were prevented from dumping ashes over the side owing to the danger of shoaling in front of docks and that in some cases when ashes had been retained aboard to be dumped when the vessels in makings consuments in grades with the two case under the manufacture by affidavit that he was duly and regularly married at sea, because the ministry who performed the ceremony has falled and neglected to forward a certificate of marriage.

Captain Edward Jahnsen, commodore of the McCormick fleet, was master of the Klamath, at the time and is said to have objected to appearing in the role of a marrying skipper, arguing that the young couple could be "spliced" at the first port. Falling to induce the navigator to pronounce the binding words, the groom found a parson of Portland Commission and Commis-sion of Public Docks, suggesting their co-operation in determining the most suitable place. If the recommenda-tions are adopted launchmen handling ash barges wil be prohibited from de-positing the debris elsewhere.

managing owner of the schooner J. C. Cousins when she was used as an opposition pilot boat, and almost continuously until his last illness he was in the service as a pilot or tugboat captain. In 1889 he was detailed to make the trip to San Francisco as mate with Captain R. E. Howes on the steamer Alaskan, which was wrecked in the voyage, 30 of those on board losing their lives.

For a time Captain Wood was an officer on the old barkentine Jane A. Falkenberg, plying between Portland and Honolulu, Other vessels on which he served were the steamers R. P. Elmore and Geo. W. Elder. Captain Wood was married in this city December 15, 1869, to Sarah F. Weich, who survives him, He is survived also by a daughter, Miss Alice Wood, of San Francisco, and a brother, Charles Horace Wood, of Boston, Mass.

Captain Wood was a member of the Astoria Lodges of Masons and Elks and the funeral will be held Wednesday morning, under the auspices of those orders.
