OLYMPIA, Wash., Feb. 4.—(Special.)—Senator Sutton, author of the resolution calling for investigation of the Cheney Normal School and the institution for Feeble-Minded, recently adopted by the Legislature, said tonight that following receipt of word from Spokane he was convinced there was no ground for charges that the Cheney School is of faulty construction. On account of these charges State Auditor Clausen had declined to issue warrants on estimates of the contractor, about $96,000 still being unpaid.

"I said when introducing the resolution that I thought the state was getting a splendid school building and I learned from Cheney that the architect selected by the investigating committee upholds this view, testifying that the building is above the average in construction," said Senator Sutton.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Feb. 4.—(Special.)—After much delay in both houses, the Washington Legislature today passed the Campbell memorial urging Congress to pass the immigration bill over President Wilson's veto. The memorial failed to pass the Senate yesterday on a vote of 18 to 18, but was reconsidered today and adopted, 26 to 19, the Democrats and four of the Republicans voting "No."

Under suspension of the rules the memorial was transmitted to the House, where the measure first received 48 votes, one short of a constitutional majority, then was reconsidered and adopted, 53 to 41.

Abandoning policies, both branches got down to serious business today. The lower house passed three constructive measures recommended by various state departments, including an appropriation of $75,000 for deporting alien insane and the bill allowing the state to regain lands acquired by oyster cultivation, but used for other purposes.
