Garrison in Syria Wildly Excited Over Cruiser and Its Aeroplane.

WAR MADE INTO COMEDY

Shouting, Shooting and Imprecations Fail to Frighten Enemy, Which Coolly Makes Reconnaisance and Then Sails Away.

LONDON, Feb, 6 .- (Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The panic of the Turkish garrison and population of small port near Beirut over the arrival of a British cruiser and its accompanying acroplane is described in a letter from a young woman mission-

"A two-funneled cruiser came sight from the south at 3 o'clock this morning," she writes, "At once there was great excitement. Everybody who had a roof went up on it and crowds lined the seashore. Panic-stricken lined the seashore. Faith and Moslem women, carrying bundles and babies, ran for the orange groves. Carts belonging to an orange man tore up belonging to an orange man tore up the street loaded with disheveled, distance with their officers. tracted soldiers, while their officers galloped alongside.

the High Commander, his great that at expring out of his vehicle, dashed past in his carriage, recently 'captured' from an English lady resident in the city. All were making for the trenches to the south among the sand hills.

"Meanwhile, however, the cruiser had passed the southern end of the city and was opposite the northern suburbs. That was most troublesome, for the commander, the Bedoulns and the soldiers all had to rush back down the streets and frighten her away from the north end of the town. Their tactics were evidently effective, for the cruiser turned slowly and came back again to the south. Of course they all followed her there. The boat stopped and anchored opposite the northern end of the town.

Aeroplane Causes Surprise. Then came a new development.

Aeroplane Gauses Surprise.

"Then came a new development. A neat, small thing, like a brown bird, dropped over the side of the cruiser into the sea, skimmed the water, and gracefully rose up into the air. The soldiers hid under cactus hedges and fired their rifles at it, the Bedouins galloped about, shouting and firing; the commander himself fired at it, but it paid no attention. It hovered over the town a few moments and then disappeared toward the interior.

"The town waited and watched the motionless warship. An hour and a half passed and the seaplane returned. It seemed to circle affectionately around a group of English buildings to which the commander had transferred his household at the beginning of the war. That was a trying coincidence, so immediately more orange carts were brought and the commander's baggage, every scrap of it, including also some things 'captured' from the former English occupants, was taken away off inland to a place of safety.

Ramming Submarine Encouraged.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—One of the leading British shipping journals has offered a reward of $2500 for the officers and crew of the first British merchant vessel to succeed in disabling a German submarine by ramming it. Submarines, the paper points out, are the most vulnerable form of craft afloat. A ship may easily eacape torpedoes by running in a circle, and may thus find a favorable opportunity, for ramming its adversary.
