John J. McGraw and Ban Johnson Among Those Making Up, Matty Points Out.

Noted Pitcher Says Deal Is Stroke of Two Great Leaders and Blow to Outlaws-Stallings Also Forgets Old Grudges.

BY CHRISTY MATHEWSON, The Giants' Famous Pitcher,

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(Special.)— The Federal League has healed many breaches in the ranks of organized baseball, and the men behind the two big leagues are standing shoulder to shoulder against the outlaws. Two of the hardest fighters in organized baseball used to be enemies. Now the war has made them friends. I mean Ban Johnson president of the American League, and John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants. Every war seems to work that way. Look at the allies in the big conflict, Japan and Russia, England and France.

As is well known by followers of the game, McGraw was with Johnson in the early days of the American League, and the two did not jibe. McGraw finally quit the league after some difficulties. Johnson and he were not friendly until last Fall, although the feud had been gradually cooling for some time. It was McGraw who first got Captain Huston and Colonel Rup-icans, and John J. was present at most of the conferences throughout the long to the probability and the also realized that the successful transfer of the club depended largely con what John McGraw advised his two friends to do. Johnson is too farsighted to let personal feeling stand in the way of business. McGraw and Ban worked together on the deal, and the old feud had passed away from lack of exygen when it was finally completed. The sale of the Yankees has resulted in a strong fighting combination. It was a stroke of two great basehall leaders and is a big blow at the Federals, because it means that both New York clubs will have the strongest kind of backing.

In spite of the reports which were noised around about the time the last world's series game was over that Stallings had made various assertions about Ban Johnson and what he would do if he met him. I happen to know that these were not true. It is a fact that when Stallings was ousted as the manager of the Yankees to make room for Hal Chase, he felt that Ban Johnson was behind the move. Once before he had been pushed out of the American League, and that time, too, he thought Ban Johnson was the man behind the push.

Stories Called "Rot."

The Coast League head said he undoubtedly would take some action concerning the prohibition of the emery ball before the season opens, but has not determined what penalties for the true the safety of using the "emery ball" is subject to a $100 fine and 30 days sushing the force the season opens, but has not defent of the American League, and that time to do about the ball with the 'emery ball' is subject to a $100 fine and 30 days sushing the prohibition of the manager of

Therefore, he was bitter, but right after his team had won the big championship last Fall, Stallings said to me:
"These stories about me making any remarks knocking Ban Johnson are all rot. Johnson is all right. I haven't any hard feelings against him or anybody else now, and I don't think I have body else now, and I don't think I have any right to grouches. I'm not sore at setting a new result of the second annual Northwest open championship tournament last night with Ray Hogue, of Seattle.

The score was 250 to 69, Bisaillon setting a new result of the second annual Northwest open championship tournament last night with Ray Hogue, of Seattle. any right to grouches. I'm not sore at 'Connie' Mack, as some of the nowspapers would have you think. I would have been glad to shake 'Connie's' hand have been glad to shake 'Connie's' hand if he had seen fit to come over to our bench after the last game of the series. But he might have had some feeling then. I guess he is all over it now, though."

Sould be a substantial to shake 'Connie's' hand of the series had seen fit to come over to our brought a deep groan, and even an ordinary shot brought applause.

Hogue won the 'lag.' made the billiard from the opening shot.

So all the old baseball feuds have been healed by time and the Federal League. Stallings and Johnson, Mcbeen healed by time and Johnson, Mc-Graw and Johnson, and the next thing we will hear that John J. and "Hank" O'Day were seen walking down the sireet arm in arm. But that combination of McGraw and Johnson is a fighting one, and I think it a great thing for organized baseball that the two have come together. It is also liable to be a tough thing for the Federal League. All Nice to Stallings.

In connection with Stallings' old bit-terness toward the American League, it is funny how the wheel revolves. When terness toward is funny how the wheel revolves. When is funny how the wheel revolves. When is funny how turned away from the Yankees, he had to go back to the minors and take a club there. Chase was the king pin then. Now Chase is forgotten, practically. Frank Farrell is out of baseball, and Ban Johnson calls on one of Stallings' best friends, "Cap" Huston, to take the important American League franchise in New York, which is really the key to the whole campalgn against the Federals. Also, George has won the world's championship. Everybody has to be nice to Stallings these days.

ship. Everybody has to be nice to Stallings these days.

Whother Jack Johnson wins his fight from Willard in a walk, as many fight fans predict he will, or whether the championship comes to Willard and destroys what is now known as the "White Hope" brigade, the gathering at Juarez wil have its picturesque features. General Villa showed himself to be such a fight enthusiast that he announced some time ago he would capture Tampico if necessary to give Johnson a port of entry into the country.

conception of sportsmanship Villa's conception of sportsmanship is certainly a broad one when he offers to capture a port just to let in a prize-fighter in order that the arriving guest way keep his engagement, and incidentally in order that Mr. Villa may get his "bit." But it seems to me that Jack Johnson will not be in a pleasant position after the fight, win or lose. He can't get away from Juarez via the position after the fight, win or lose. He can't get away from Juarez via the United States. From what I have gathered about various citizens of Mexico who are in control of different sections down there, a man with $30,000 or $40.000 in real money traveling through that country has about as measure. that country has about as meager a chance to get away with it as moon-light has of shining on Broadway.

Giants to See Fight.

With all these elements in it, the fight should be picturesque, and the spectators will not be quite sure whether to expect a battle inside the ropes or one between the revolutionary factions. Therefore, I intend to take it in, having had my life insured and understanding that the jump to El Paso is easy for a man who stands solid.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COL-LEGE, Corvallis, Feb. 23.—(Special.)— Overlapping basketball by a few weeks and demanding, along with basketball and wrestling, the attention of the stu-dent, baseball appears on the Oregon Agricultural College horizon.
