"That was the last she heard from him."

Bride Is Runaway From Home.

Mrs. Clements, then Miss Dixie Nunnally, became well known in San Francisco when it was learned, before she was married, that she had run away from her Atlanta home, following a disagreement with her stepmother.

The second of a series of farmers' open meetings was held here last week and proved a great success. Nearly 150 ranchers and business men were present to discuss diversified farming, the discussion bringing out many helpful points.

The young helress (she is only 20) is the daughter of an Atlanta candy manufacturer. Two years ago she decided to see something of the world rather than live with her stepmother and journeyed to the Pacific Coast and then to Mexico. Her father cut off her allowance when she refused to return home, so she drew on her own estate for her expenses.

She had been in San Francisco a month when an exchange of messages induced her to move to Los Angeles, where she had met young Clements be-
