Joint Laboratory Advised.

Maintaining of a free dental clinic for maintaining of a free death through a six half-days each week; the increasing of the school medical inspection force; the combining of the city and county hospital work; the merging of the city and state bacteriological laboratories and the employing of an additional state of the city and state bacteriological laboratories and the employing of an additional state of the city and state bacteriological laboratories and the employing of an additional state of the city and city and state of the city and city an tional fumigator are recommendations made by City Health Officer Marcellus made by tity Heatth Officer Marcellus in his annual report submitted yes-terday to Mayor Albee. The report gives a summary of the work of last year and outlines needs for the present

"Some interesting things have been accomplished by the bureau of health," says Dr. Marcellus in the report. "Many campaigns for the improvement of the health conditions of the city have been inaugurated and have brought splendld results. Taking our mortality table, we find that the crude mortality rate from all causes for 1910 was 11.2 to the 1600, while for 1914 it was only 9.5 to the 1900. In nearly all the communicable diseases there is a decrease in the mortality rate. in the mortality rate.

School Inspection More Detailed.

"Medical inspection in school has been carried on during the year as before except that a more detailed record of the service rendered has been kept. The force of only four medical inspectors and one nurse is ridiculousinspectors and one nurse is ridiculously small when the school attendance of approximately 30,000 is considered. Tuberculosis work is sadly neglected in Portland. Only one nurse is employed by the city for this important activity. The medical profession should aid the hureau of health by cautioning their tubercular patients about handling foodstuffs and take the greatest care in issuing certificates of health to all such employes, as well as those suffering from other contagious and infectious diseases.

"Rapid strides have been made in milk inspection work, due largely to the increased force of instructor-inspectors and veterinarians. The general sanitation about the larger majority of our dairies is most commendable. The installation of sterilizers has done more than any other one factor to produce these excellent results.

Portland Takes First Prize.

"In a contest between cities of the Northwest at North Yakima, Wash., in October, Portland carried away the first "In a series of three contests under the supervision of the dairy division of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry during the year the bacterial counts were low, some of them below 1900 to the cubic centimeter and none counts were low some of them one higher than 250,000 a cubic centimeter. An analysis of the mortality rate among infants under I year of age reveals no increase during the hot Summer months, which speaks well for the milk supply. The total number of deaths under 2 years of age from glarrhea and enteritis was remarkably low, only 15, or 26 in 1000 births, while in 1900 it was 32.6 a 1000 births. The total number of deaths from all causes per 1900 births was only 63.4. During the coming year a united effort will be made to lower this even more.

preparations for celebration of Arbor Day in Portland next month, and will endeavor to have a general plan outlined before the end of March.

The tree planting features of the Arbor Day celebration are to be linked with the general movement for the planting of flower gardens throughout the city, and sub-cammittees in each district of Portland will co-operate with the schools in the work.

A meeting of the committee is to be called this week at which arrangements for the garden planting will be considered and methods of handling the Arbor Day programme will be thoroughly discussed. The programme will include probably addresses at the schools followed by ceremonies of tree planting by the children. The committee will endeavor to have arrangements made and the ground prepared for planting some time before Arbor Day.

NOTED MEN VOICE VIEWS

William Allen White, James Keeley, E. S. Beck and W. W. Harris Among Those Expressing Appreciation of Modern System.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, March 22,—(Special.)—The reason why schools of journalism are succeeding have just been stated by a dozen great editors of the East to the secretary of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism. Not one of them ex-pressed doubt of the large possibilities in Journalism teaching. Some of the expressions have just been printed in the monthly news letter of the association and are in part as follows:

City Council having decided upon the provisions of an ordinance to regulate the operation of jitneys in Portland, it is probable the measure now being prepared by City Attorney LaRoche to conform to the Council's ideas will re-William Allen White, editor Emporis Gazette-I am of the old school. many years I have thought that schools for journalism did not teach much that caive official approval at the regular weekly Council meeting tomorrow. It is expected it will be read first and sec-ond time and sent along for final paswas important, but I have had forced upon me a modification of my views. I believe that the best school of journalism, following a college educasage two weeks later.

At a series of meetings the Council has discussed the subject of what the ordinance should provide and the important parts of the proposed regulation have been decided upon. Inasmuch as the jitney problem has been before the Council for several weeks, the members are getting anxious to have it disposed of and regulation provided for the property of the period of the provided the property of the period of the provided the journalism, following a college education, is practical aid in an intelligent newspaper office. But so many newspaper offices are not intelligent and the training that boys get is so bad that I believe that, in the long run, better results may be obtained on the average by sending a boy to a school of journalism after he has had a college education than trusting to the luck of the newspaper offices. A first-class newspaper beats a first-class school of journalism as a training ground. But the average school of journalism beats the average newspaper office as a the average newspaper office as a training ground, and anything beats a poor newspaper office.

Sentiment More Favorable.

it disposed of and regulation provided for the business. It is believed the measure as it will be presented to the Council tomorrow by City Attorney LaRoche will be in the form in which it will be passed finally.

Although several threats have been made by jitney drivers that they propose to invoke the referendum on the measure, sentiment of the jitney interests is beginning to turn against that plan. It is said the majority of the jitney people now favor regulation because, it is said, it will drive the reckless and indiscriminate jitney operator out of business. It is said that the business materially and regulation that will minimize accidents is favored. It is said that most of the accidents are due to inexperienced drivers.
