worth, convicted February 12 of murder in the second degree for the shooting of J. C. Parsons in the courtroom at Cashmere, yesterday was arraigned on a dramatic trial lasting three days, which had aroused intense interest all over the county on account of the prominence of the principals. The jury returned a verdict of murder in the second degree against Carr on the charge of shooting Parsons. The defendant attempted to prove that Carr, owing to mental strain, which he had undergone before the shooting, was temporarily deranged or insane at the time of the shooting, but has since recovered.
