By Gertrude P. Corbett

PLANS for charitable affairs and preparations for Spring wardrobes are occupying society folk to the exclusion of all other diversions. There are many of the younger matrons and belles enjoying soft matches in the early mornings and an occasional morning with a picnic luncheon in the woods suggesting the warm summer days. Today will find many of the smart set enjoying the day at the dinner-dance tonight at the Waverly Country Club will call forth a merry gathering of beaux and belles.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Spaulding, of Pasadena, Cal., are being entertained extensively in an informal way during their sojourn in Portland on Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Frank Edward Hart were hosts for an informal dinner honoring the visitors, and small tea, luncheon and motor trips have marked their visit here.

Miss Jennie Neerksen left on the steamer Great Northern for San Francisco yesterday to visit her sisters, Mrs. Misher and Mrs. Van Husen. Later she will make her home for the summer in Oakland with her sister, Mrs. E. J. Seely, and family. Miss Blaise Brown gave a surprise party for Miss Neerksen on Wednesday night, inviting a number of friends to bid adieu.

A pleasant surprise was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Campbell, at their suburban home at Risley, by the Deaconess Girls yesterday. The evening was passed with cards and music, after which refreshments were served. Each guest was presented with a bouquet of daffodils by Mrs. F. M. Youngs. Those present were, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Campbell, L. P. Campbell, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Youngs, Trudy Moffat, Lottie Chapelle, Minnie Shelland, Blanche Roark, Gertrude Kulzena, Edith Dart, Mina Smith, Evelyn Youngs, Elizabeth Bird and Marie Youngs.

Miss Ethelind Risley, Miss Norma Graves and Miss Vera Redmond are passing the week-end in Eugene. They went up to attend the Tri Delta ball, given at the Hotel Osburn.

The residents of the Old People's Home will be entertained Monday night with a delightful musical and literary programme. Friends and patrons of the home are invited to attend. There will be an orchestra and some excellent vocal selections.

The old people are looking forward to this evening as a forerunner of the Easter silver tea which will be the all-important event not only for them, but for Portland society, on Monday, April 5.

The women of St. Lawrence Parish will give their annual Easter supper at St. Lawrence Assembly Hall, Third and Sherman streets, on the evening of April 13 from 6 to 8:30, which will be followed by a dance. Following are officers of the committee: Mrs. W. J. Smith, chairman; Mrs. W. P. Lillis, secretary; Miss Daisy Fleming, treasurer. They will be assisted by the Young Ladies' Sodality.

The first annual Easter ball given under the auspices of the Hibernian Building Association will be held in the new Hibernian Hall, 340 Russell street, Friday evening, April 9.

Mrs. W. H. Stalger, a charming young matron of Mount Tabor, recently gave a large tea honoring Mrs. Harold Johnston, of Seattle. She frequently entertains and is in demand at large social functions.

Mrs. J. R. Brodie, who has been traveling in California, recently returned and is domiciled at 419 Alder street.

Dr. Viola May Coe will entertain with an informal reception at her residence, 841 Lovejoy street, this afternoon from 2 to 4 o'clock for the members of the Great Socialist Equity.

THE SANDMAN STORY FOR TONIGHT

By Mrs. F. A. Walker

RUTH was a little girl only 8 years old, but she was a great help to her mother.

She was telling this story to the little boys as well as the girls, because boys in these days often wash the dishes or scrub the floor and steps, and do many things to help their mothers on Saturdays.

Ruth's mother kept one maid, but the house was large, and her mother had a great deal to do.

In the morning Ruth would bob up her hair and take her bath without any assistance from her mother, and then she would dress herself and comb her hair ready for her mother to braid.

You see that helped her mother very much in the morning, when there are so many things to do.

Ruth went to school, of course, but on Saturdays she dusted her room and cleaned the kitchen, and she had a great deal to do.

But one day cook left, and the next morning Ruth's mother awoke with a sick headache.

"I'll go downtown for my breakfast," said her father. "Can you manage to fix yours?"

"Yes, indeed," answered Ruth. "I can make toast and boil eggs."

along to school that morning. Her face looked sunny and happy.

"I am glad I can help mother," she said, "for I guess I was a great deal of trouble to her when I was a baby."

Of course, all the boys and girls may not have an opportunity to do just what Ruth did, but there are many other ways to help mother, especially on Saturdays. If you take the baby out for a little while that helps, and if you dust a room that helps, too.

Then every day when you come from school if you put your hat and coat in the proper place, that saves mother many steps, and your muddy boots well wiped on the hall mat will save her work as well.

Putting your books and toys in the corner where they belong after you have finished with them saves mother much work.

I hope the story of Ruth will make some little boy or girl more thoughtful of his mother and that you will try to help her with the many things she has to do.

The Business Woman Who Sees Not.

A friend was telling me the other day of an acquaintance of hers who is a salesgirl in a large department store. The saleswoman, it seems, is of that class of women who label themselves as being in "reduced circumstances."

She was brought up in a home of wealth, but at her father's death his affairs were in such a condition there was little left for herself and an invalid sister. Her education was of the unpractical sort of many years ago, for she is a middle-aged woman now, and there was little she could do. As there were no near relatives to come to her aid, she had to support herself.

But my friend was lamenting that she did not know what would become of her saleswoman friend, that the future looked rather blank for her. For she had not kept up with the times. She has lived in her past. She has relied on her old position and the position she once had and the social position that once was hers to give her prestige. She thinks that because she is who she is, she is sufficient. And she is not decidedly frumpy, dowdy, old-fashioned and somewhat set in her ways.

And progressive department stores do not want such salesgirls. They do not want over-dressed salesgirls, but they want neat, smartly-attired, bright-looking women back of their counters.

Her age would not be against her had she made use of the opportunities age has brought. Her experience would be valuable had she learned all she might have learned in her decade of selling, about the goods she handles. And if she would use her eyes to note how the other salespeople about her dress, and then add a simple smartness to her 10 years of experience, a bright future instead of a dark one would be ahead of her in the business world.

But she doesn't. She is oblivious to the change that in the last few years has come over the selling force of our stores. Because she is who she is and believes this has value, she thinks it doesn't matter if she is frump and untidy. She thinks it is of little importance if her hair is not neatly arranged, her dress not brushed, her hands not so immaculate as they might be.

PASSOVER FEAST NEAR

SERVICES TO BE HELD AT TEMPLE BETH ISRAEL NEXT WEEK.

Festival Symbolic and Historical in Character—Rabbi Wise to Conduct Meetings Open to Public.

The famous Feast of the Passover, the seven days' festival observed by Jewish people in the early Spring in commemoration of the exodus from Egypt, will be observed by the various synagogues of Portland. The public, regardless of religious faith, is invited to attend.

Rabbi Jonah B. Wise will conduct services at Temple Beth Israel. Services will be conducted at 6 P. M. Monday and 10 A. M. Tuesday. Rabbi Wise will speak Tuesday morning.

In ancient Jewish life, the Passover was the first of the three Pilgrim festivals, upon which every male Jew was required to present himself in person at the central sanctuary in Jerusalem.

It is the great independence day of the Jew; the first event in his national history, an event which became fundamental in all his thinking, too, as evidenced by the frequent reference to the great deliverance.

The festival is ushered in by a family service, called the Seder, at which certain symbolic ceremonies are observed. Each participant—and the least is privileged to sit at the table that night—is required to drink four glasses of wine, in memory of the promises made to redeem Israel from bondage.

On the table are the unleavened cakes (matzo), the shin-bone of a lamb (roasted on the coals), commemorative of the Paschal sacrifice, a roasted egg, a mixture of apples and nuts (charoseth), to symbolize the mortar with which the Egyptians made bitter the lives of the fathers, and bitter herbs (maror), reminiscent of the unhappy days in Egypt.

In some an story, the tale of the oppression and the deliverance is rehearsed. Psalms of thanksgiving (halil), strike the keynote of the occasion. The services, interrupted by the family dinner, closes with a number of merry folk-songs, expressive of the character of the celebration.

During the week of the festival, unleavened bread is eaten instead of the usual leaven. In orthodox homes, great care is taken that all traces of leaven be removed before the beginning of the festival. Sets of dishes, otherwise unused, are provided.

Services are held in the synagogue and sermons preached in keeping with the thoughts of the festival. Excerpts from, or in some cases, the whole of the book of "The Song of Songs" are read.

ARTIST ADMIRES PORTLAND

R. W. Van Boskirk, of New York, Lauds Council Crest Panorama.

Robert W. Van Boskirk, of New York, a noted landscape artist, and Wilson S. Arbuthnot, a Pittsburg capitalist, were the guests of the Multnomah Hotel yesterday, having stopped over to enjoy the view from Council Crest.

"I went up to Council Crest to see the view and was agreeably impressed," declared Mr. Van Boskirk. "I have never seen a view taking in so much of the four points of the compass. In fact, it was most wonderful. The weather, unfortunately, was a little bit against me, as it was a trifle hazy. But, withal, it was one of the most impressive panoramas I have ever witnessed."

LOUIS MICHEL IS TO SPEAK

German-Jewish Orator to Discuss War Tonight.

Louis Michel, German-Jewish orator, will give an address under the auspices of the German Societies of Oregon at the Central Library tonight at 8 o'clock on "The European War, Its Causes and America." Mr. Michel, who has made a study of the war and who has a first-hand knowledge of Germany and the other European countries involved, will take up the war from the standpoint of the man, who was formerly a citizen of Germany, but who is now an American. He is touring the West and is now on his way to California.

Transforms Complexion; Wins Social Favors
"Had I been unable to transform my complexion so quickly, so completely, by an unique process, I had just learned of I never could have attended the Char. Hall."—a certain social favorite, a picture of loveliness at the great event, told me this. "I had been much run down," she said. "When I beheld myself in the mirror after a night's troubled sleep, I saw I was becoming heavy-eyed and pale. I could not take, and attend the ball, the long rest, my physician advised. A friend suggested I get an ounce of mercurochrome at the drugstore, and use it as I would cold cream. I did—the result is apparent. In a week I was my former self. The wax took off the old skin so gradually, there was no discomfort. Now you see the fresh, bright under-skin, with its youthful glow and expression."
