Thousands, Full of Regret, Bid Vice-President Adieu as He Leaves Fair.

SCHUMANN-HEINK IS HEARD

Children Crowd Great Festival Hall to Listen to Hugg Singer—Mrs. Marshall Is Guest of Honor at Luncheon Before Departure.

BY ANNE SHANNON MONROE

INSIDE INN, Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, Cal., March 28.—(Special.)—A week ago all San Francisco and its visiting guests, commissioners, representatives of the Army and Navy, in a pagoda that glittered with gold lace and clanking swords, accompanied by the striding majesty of many bands, welcomed to the Exposition City the Vice-President of the United States and his official party. Today thousands of people, with regret written on their faces, bidding good-bye to Thomas H. Marshall and his wife.

Mr. Marshall is a little man, a sort of a mousey gray. He is a quiet scholarly, little man; a literary man; a philosopher, who, when he speaks, lets fall jewels of thought clothed in apt expressions. He is a man of vision, of broadness of mind, of a quiet study in some quiet nook not far from the alleys of the road, where the world of men goes by, but which seems to him to be a vast, wide, and open road-side, wandering, but in hand, and feeling the soft breezes in his soul as well as on his brow; you see him everywhere there is beauty, high ideals and vision.

Luncheon Honors Mrs. Marshall.

At a luncheon yesterday in honor of the wife of our Vice-President, I met such a delightful little woman, who, when she learned I was from Oregon, she said she had been to the wedding journey was to Oregon, just 49 years ago, she said, all tremulous with emotion. "Talk to me about Oregon," she said, "I want to know about her, for she was so small and dainty and dear, such a quaint little figure—so modern with it all—that I found in her a real personality."

She Was Mrs. W. A. Finley, Wife of the First President of the Oregon Agricultural College.

Her husband, who died three years ago, organized the school and planned the grounds, and buildings at Corvallis. "His picture must still hang there," she said, half questioningly, and I assured her it did, for I knew it must. "If I could only live there," she said, "the memories are so dear. I told her how the college had developed, and she is to make a visit to the Oregon building, where she will pass most of her time in the school displays and seeing the college boys and girls. She is an aunt of William Finley, of bird and field fame.

A real personality marking itself on the great Exposition life is Mrs. Marshall.

She is a charming, delightful woman. I have had many visits with her, have talked with her of many things, and find her versatile, broad and above all humanistic. She is directing every particle of her energy and her great gifts—for she is a rarely gifted woman—to the work of bringing about world peace.

Word: His Unconquerable Impulse.

This is felt in the master groups, "The Nations of the East" and "The Nations of the West," where the Sun and Sunset arches of the Court of the Universe; in the Fountain of Energy, where a super-horse is represented carrying a sun-disk through rushing waters; in his column of Progress, where the upward urge of the race to go farther, climb higher, reach out and ever out to greater heights, is depicted wondrously in figures of men and women pushing their way up, a few to emerge at the top of the column, while the bottom with his bow stands, a fine hero figure against the sky.

As Mr. Calder says: "The unconquerable impulse that forever impels man to strive on, assailing in endless generations the confining barriers of existence, his eternal optimism and stern joy in effort—these are the thoughts that have inspired the conception of the Column of Human Progress, and that are embodied in its sculptural friezes and crowning group."

Mr. Calder is a slender man with snow-white hair, fair pinkish skin and clear blue eyes. He dresses in whitish-gray, which accentuates his fair coloring, but with it all he appears young. Perhaps a true artist knows no age.

WIND TEARS FLAGS AT FAIR

Stars and Stripes Over Oregon Building Swept Into Bay.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 29.—(Special.)—A terrific windstorm today sent every flag on the grounds tearing and whipping at a rate that demolished many and left others in ribbons. The porter of the Oregon building was in the act of furling the big Oregon flag, which floats from the tallest flagpole in the world, when it was torn from the rope and went sailing far out into the bay. A launch quickly went to the rescue over the choppy water and brought it safely back to the Oregon building. It can be mended, and when the wind relaxes will again float in the breeze.

RAILWAY APPEALS CASE

REVERSAL OF OREGON-CALIFORNIA LAND RULING ASKED.

Company Opposes Forfeit on Grounds of Inactivity by Government—Brief Covers More Than 1300 Pages.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Attorneys for the Oregon-California Railroad Company in an 800-page brief filed today in the Supreme Court, asked the court to reverse the decision of the Oregon Federal District Court, forbidding the railroads to forfeit 2,400,000 acres of land, worth, according to one estimate, $50,000,000.

The Government contends forfeiture because of a clause in the grant requiring the railroad to sell the land to "actual settlers" at not more than $2.50 an acre. Counsel for the railroad argues that all rights of the United States to forfeit has been waived by inaction on the part of the Government.

The brief is one of the longest ever filed in court, and in addition thereto the attorneys filed a second brief of 70 pages devoted to the facts of the case.

The suit of the United States against the Oregon & California Railroad Company in the celebrated land grant case was filed in 1903. Judge Walter Vinton decided in favor of the Government and directed that the railroad's title to the land grant be canceled. An appeal was taken to the Circuit Court of Appeals, and, as it had been declared that in any event the decision of that court would not be filed in court, and in addition thereto the appellate court certified the record to the United States Supreme Court, where the merits of the suit will be argued next month. Constantine J. Smith, special counsel for the United States, will represent the Government at the coming hearing.

HOOD RIVER GROWERS ELECT AND DISCUSS PROBLEMS.

Erection of Warehouse is Opposed, as Decision is Made to Lease Unoccupied Plant.

HOOD RIVER, Or., March 29.—(Special.)—At a meeting of the stockholders of the Fruitgrowers' Exchange today the board of directors were re-elected—E. E. Stanton, E. W. Sweeney, T. W. Buff and Kenneth McKay, J. O. Mark is the new member.

In a discussion of possible savings by orchardists, A. I. Mason declared that Bordeaux spray material could be manufactured here at a saving of $2 a barrel. Mr. Mason suggested that the raw materials be purchased and that the spray be mixed by a local manufacturer.

When it was proposed that the exchange erect a warehouse an indignant protest was made by a number of the members, who declared that Hood River already has sufficient warehouse space controlled by the Apple Growers' Association. It was decided to lease, if possible, the old warehouse of the Apple Growers' Union, which never has been used by the association. Final action will be taken at a meeting Saturday night, when W. F. Gwin, manager of the Northwest Fruit Exchange, will speak.

The Fruitgrowers' Exchange is affiliated with the Northwest, and while no decision as to next year's connections has been made, it is probable that the members will vote to continue the affiliation.

MILWAUKEE IS TO EXTEND

TACOMA-EASTERN TO BUILD LINE WEST OF MORTON SOON.

Connection With Lumber Company's Road Reported, While Highway Also Near Completion.

MORTON, Wash., March 29.—(Special.)—Unofficial announcement has been made that the Tacoma-Eastern branch of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad will build down the Tilton River, west of Morton, to connect with the road of the Onalaska Lumber Company, the Carlyle-Pennell concern, which has erected a large sawmill 21 miles west of Morton.

Added significance is given to this announcement by the industrial activity at Napavine, where a company has been incorporated to develop that vicinity.

One of the highest officials of the Milwaukee Land Company, who was in Morton a few days ago, confirmed the report that the line will be extended, probably not later than 1916. He said that recommendations for it have been made by the administrative heads of the Western division of the Milwaukee road.

A few days ago a local civil engineer completed resetting the right-of-way line to the west Morton's population is expected to be trebled. With the completion of the National Park Highway from Morton to Riffe and a bridge over the Cowlitz River at Riffe, which is the legislative programme outlined for the next two years, Morton will be the center of a large and highly productive territory embraced in Richmond Valley and the Kilkittat Prairie. The Highland alley road, which is the route the National Park Highway will take when completed to Riffe, has virtually been a stone wall in the path of the Richmond Valley and Kilkittat Prairie residents who wish to trade here.

Company Seeks to Inaugurate Discount System in Hood River.

HOOD RIVER, Or., March 29.—(Special.)—Having received a petition from the Oregon-Washington Telephone Company asking to be allowed to increase the rates of all subscribers to 25 cents a month, the public utility commission will hold a hearing April 8 to determine the sentiment of the patrons.

"Until recently," says W. N. Winter, president of the Hood River Telephone company, "two experienced but little difficulty in collecting our bills.
