THESE are busy days for the debutants as yet, as all the younger married contingent. Yesterday was a gala one for Miss Reine du Pont, the Mesdames Walker W. and Philip S. Kamm entertaining for her with a charming luncheon at their apartments in the Trinity, followed by a motor trip about the hills and valleys. Another charming informal affair of yesterday afternoon was the bridge party for which the Mesdames Failing were hostesses, and the opening of the Lombardi opera season at the Baker Theater last night, which was preceded by many dinner parties, was also one of the notable events of the week. Mr. and Mrs. Wheelwright entertained on the parties at dinner and later at the house of Miss Reine du Pont, and tomorrow night they will again be dinner hosts at the Waverly Country Club at the dinner-dance for their attractive visitor.

Proceeding the Friday Night Dancing Club's party this evening, which will be at Christen's Hall, Mr. and Mrs. William MacMaster will preside at a dinner at the University Club for their debutante daughter, and her house guests, Miss Reine du Pont, and tomorrow night they will again be dinner hosts at the Waverly Country Club at the dinner-dance for their attractive visitor.

Mrs. Wheelwright's tea will be the big social event of the afternoon, when she will entertain in honor of her house guest, Miss Sullivan. Mrs. H. C. Wortman is also giving a tea today for Miss Maude Bateham, whose engagement was announced last week. There are a number of dinner parties to fill the gap between these affairs, and the Friday night dance, so that the day will be an unusually gay and busy one.

The closing of the 1915 series of Folies dances will take place this evening at Cottillon Hall, and the affair is being keenly anticipated by the high school and sub-debutante set. The many neighboring colleges home on vacation who will attend, and in their honor several special features have been arranged.

Donald G. Woodward has returned from Arizona, after an absence of three months. Mrs. Woodward and her daughter Jean, will remain until May. Mr. Woodward passed a week in San Francisco and is an ardent admirer of the exposition, especially of the Oregon State building.

Coming as a genuine surprise to her many friends is the betrothal of Miss Dethel Woodham to J. Carroll Richards, of Tacoma, Wash., which was announced formally in the morning Oregonian at the home of her mother, Mrs. William Woodham. The nuptials are dated for early June.

The houses are beautifully decorated in the color scheme throughout. Miss Woodham also played several piano solos and accompanied. Evening refreshments were served, the pink and white color scheme being further carried out. Miss Woodham was charming in pale pink silk with lace overdress and corsage bouquet of Cecil Brunners and lilies of the valley. Her hair was styled in wistaria marquisette over green silk.

Assisting the hostesses were Mrs. W. H. Smith, Mrs. A. M. Webster and Mrs. Gus Roestman. Misses Dorothy Eichenlaub, Hazel Bradford, Mary Chambers, and Mrs. W. H. Smith served, and Mrs. J. R. Rogers presided at the coffee urn. J. Carroll Richards is a prominent young business man of Tacoma, connected with the Hunt & Mattet Company and also Raymond Hardware Company of Raymond, Wash.

The Merry Owls' Club and friends were entertained Saturday night in Easter fashion, with Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Hobbs as host and hostesses. The decorations were arranged artistically, the music-room in pink with an abundance of wild currant blossoms. The drawing-room was in golden yellow with a profusion of the bright Oregon grape. Lavender and blue were used in the dining-room, with a pretty arranged supper table with purple lilacs and Easter lilies. The boys were assisted by the Mesdames Huson and Nordstrom. Dancing, music and games were greatly enjoyed.

Heater and Her Gold. ONCE upon a time there lived a woman who had two daughters, Jane, her own daughter, and Hester, her step-daughter. Jane would never help her mother cross to her many times, but Hester was a good girl and helped her step-mother and never said unkind things.

They were one day Hester was working in the garden wondering if the vegetables would grow and keep them from starving, when she saw something shining in the earth.

She picked it up and found it was a piece of gold. She pushed aside the earth and found another piece; she hurried into the house to show her good luck to her step-mother and sister.

"Where did you find it?" asked Jane. "When Hester told her Jane hurried out to the garden and dug around the vegetables, spilling some of them in her eagerness to find the gold, but she did not find it and she came back to the house feeling very cross.

"You should give me one piece," she told Hester. "The garden belongs to me as much as to you, so give me one piece."

"I can get a drink of cool water" asked the beggar.

"I have no time to waste," replied Jane. "I must hurry to the city," and she left the poor old woman standing in the road.

The same day Hester told her step-mother she was going to the next town to buy food, "and I will bring you a new cap, too," she said.

"You are a good girl," said the step-mother, "you are kinder to me than my own daughter."

Hester hired her step-mother and went down the road. On the way she met the same beggar that Jane had refused to help.

"Please help me," said the old beggar. "I have no food to give you," said Hester, "but I will give you a drink of cool water from the well yonder, and if you will wait until I return from town I will bring you food."

The old lady was glad to have the water and said she would wait until Hester returned from town.

Hester hurried away and bought the food and the cap for her step-mother, and when she returned there was the old beggar waiting for her.

Hester gave her a loaf of bread. "You can take it home with you, and here is an apple and some meal," said Hester.

And then the strangest thing happened. As she handed the bread to the old woman, a loaf upon which was written the words "Wear-Ever" was covered with apples, a bag of meal was lying on the ground, and when Hester looked at her basket it was filled and so heavy she could not lift it.

"You will need a wagon to carry all your things home," said the old woman. "This does not belong to me," said Hester.

"Yes it does," said the old woman; "and now you must have a horse and wagon," and she touched a big roan horse and wagon, ready to take Hester and her provisions home.

Hester began to pick up the apples and put them into the bottom of the wagon, but the bag of meal was heavy and so was the basket, but the old woman touched them and Hester lifted them without feeling their weight.

"You are a good girl," said the old woman; "you shared your gold with your selfish step-sister and you helped a stranger, and best of all, you are kind to your step-mother, who is fond of you. When you reach home do not be surprised at anything that happens, for I am your fairy god-mother, and I buried the gold for you to find."

Hester thanked her for all the good luck that had come to her and drove home and when she took the things from the wagon there was so much that part had to be stored in the barn. And instead of one cap for her step-mother there were two.

Her step-mother wondered how one piece of gold could purchase so much and Hester told her about the fairy god-mother.

The next day Jane returned from the city without the silk gown. "My gold was stolen from me and I am tired and hungry," she told them.

"You do not reserve to be helped," said her mother, "you were so selfish, so if you are willing to see your share of the work and help Hester, if she is willing, you may stay."

Hester was quite willing to have Jane and Jane was so ashamed of the way she had behaved in the past that she did more than her share of the work and showed in many ways that she had repented of the selfish manner in which she had treated her mother and Hester.

MRS. BEIDEL TELLS WOMEN

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Kept Her in Health for 14 Years.

Shippensburg, Pa.—"It was several years ago that I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I then suffered terribly every month. My husband bought me a bottle of it and it helped me right away. Then after my second child was born I had a female trouble very badly and I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and in a short time was cured and have been in excellent health since. I always praise the Compound whenever I have an opportunity as I know it helped me and will help others. Lately I have given the Compound to my daughters and I wish all suffering women would take it and be convinced of its worth."—Mrs. JAMES A. BEIDEL, 113 N. Penn Street, Shippensburg, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills. We know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., seem to prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Hairs Quickly Vanish After This Treatment (Helps to Beauty)

Science has aided in simplifying the banishing of hairy growths from the face, and according to a beauty specialist, the most effective treatment yet devised consists of applying a delicate paste to the hairy surface for 3 or 5 minutes. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. When this paste is removed and the skin washed every trace of hair has vanished. Be sure to get real delatone.—Adv.
