VORKERS PROMISE TO VOTE FOR BONDS

Laboring Men Not to Abide by Decision of Council, Many Tell Committee.

MR. YEON BRANDS REPORT

Roadmaster and S. Benson Each Offer $5000 Reward for Any Evidence of Financial Gain to Be Derived by Them.

Many laboring men are coming into good roads headquarters every day and registering their intentions of supporting the proposed road bond issue.

It is estimated by some of them, that more than one-half the members of organized labor unions will vote for the bonds. The laboring men, it seems, will not be influenced largely by those members of their organizations who last week went on record against the bonds because the County Commissioners refused to establish a minimum wage of $2 per day on the work.

"Yes, I am for the bonds," said Otto Newman, a member of the Central Labor Council, yesterday.

"I think the bonds ought to be authorized. Every workingman ought to vote for them. As a matter of fact, I believe that a great many members of organized labor will vote for them. I don't think that the recent action of certain members of the Central Labor Council will influence half the votes don't think that the recent action of certain members of the Central Labor Council will influence half the votes affiliated with that body."

Visit Proves Convincing.

Mr. Newman recently made a personal our of inspection over the Columbia River Highway and inquired into con-ditions of the men employed by Road-master Yoon. As a result of his visit he is convinced that the money is being spent economically and that the men are well treated and properly paid.

Other workingmen, unorganized as well as organized, are planning to vote for the bonds. Many of them realize that the expenditure of $1,250,000 in cash in Multnomah County this year will aid materially in solving the unamployed problem.

John B. Yeon, County Roadmaster, yesterday made a sensational reply to the attacks of enemies of the bonding plan that he is actuated in his road.

plan that he is actuated in his road development work because he holds an interest in a paving plant. He offered a reward of $5000 for any information showing that he is thus interested.

"I will pay $5000 in cash to the person who can show that I hold any stock or have any interest in any paying or moad-making concern, directly or indirectly, secretly or in the open, or that "Report has also reached my ears that it is fixed who shall get the contract for hard-surfacing the roads from the proceeds of the bond issue, because the specifications will include requirements for a patented material.

cereity believe that the award will be made to those who offer the best and most permanent construction at the most reasonable price. Also, it is not a one-man proposition to award the contract. The three County Commissioners, in public meeting, must do it. It will not be left to me."

Large crowds continue to gather at good roads headquarters in the Year building.

A group of from 20 to 50 workingment where assembled on the sidewalk in front of the building yesterday, discussing the bond issue. Many who came doubters went away believers.

FOES JOIN IN CRIME

| FOES JOIN IN CRIME | Italiance, there was no love lost between them. | Peter Weidemann was called as a juror. | "You are a German, are you not, Mr. Weidemann?" asked Mr. Hogan. | "Yes," said the juror. | "Would that fact prejudice you against this defendant because he is a native of a country with which your nation is now at war?" | Mr. Weidemann said it would not prejudice him.

Mr. Weidemann said it would not prejudice him.

Then Cicero Hogan's position as bailiff was brought into the records. He was examining John Foley, who has acted as juror in several recent cases.

"Mr. Foley, last week you were on a jury in Judge Davis' court, and I had to lock you up over night because you couldn't agree on a verdict. Do you hold that against me?"

Jury Out Only 20 Minutes. Mr. Foley laughed heartily and said he did not.

After being out 20 minutes the jury returned shortly after 5 o'clock with a verdict that O'Conner was guilty and was recommended to the leniency of the court.

Baser, who pleaded guilty, probably will be paroled.

After the trial O'Conner told an interesting bit of his history. He formerly was an English soldier. His enlistment expired two years ago and since that time he has followed the sea. He had two brothers, he said, who enlisted and went to the front One was killed when a German shell struck a powder magazine on the Belturned state's evidence.

Both men are sailors They ran afoul of one another, according to both their stories, at the Seamen's Institute, in Portland. Baser said, and O'Conner did not deny it, that they were both broke and schemed to break into the warehouse.

Baser, a straw-haired little fellow, who looked to be not more than 15 years old, told the jury that he was born 22 years ago and had been a sailor nine years.

Struck a powder magazine on the Belgian front in January, according to a letter from one of O'Conner's own former comrades in a cavalry company. The other brother, according to a printed list which was forwarded to O'Conner from London, is at present in a French hospital seriously wounded.
