Reproduction Worked Out in Infinite Detail for Benefit of Visitors to Oregon Building-Old Friends Work Together.

BY ANNE SHANNON MONROR. EXPOSITION GROUNDS, San Francisco, April 8.—The small boy of the Oregon building and Jensen the Dane. who has been working out the infinite detail of the Columbia River reproducdetail of the Columbia River reproduction, which lies along the Marina north of the Oregon building, are close friends. Jensen the Dane has worked hour affer hour—sometimes all night—with that indefatigable patience possible only to one wholly lost in his art, to reproduce every needle, dome, minaret and island of the pinnacled Columbia. The small boy has knelt by his side, in fascinated absorption, as islands were lifted from the water, mountains banked up on shore, boats set afloat, trains started through tunnels and fish turned into the stream. His eyes grew more wonder-struck. eyes grew more wonder-struck, absorption increased, and his ad-work progressed.

At last the day came when it was pronounced finished. The guides in the Oregon building, showing the stream of people out the west doors, began directing them to the Columbia River. Later in the afternoon there was a great commotion out by the river. Word came to the father of the small boy that he was needed.

PRUNES AGAIN GAINING

2000 Trees Are to Be Added Soon to Those in Weiser Valley.

WEISER, Idaho, April 8.—(Special.)—
That the famous Italian prune is again coming into its own in Weiser Valley is proved by the fact that many acres are being replanted this season with west portion; southerly winds this variety. The growing of prunes in this section is again increasing rapidly, and if it continues the production promises to exceed the apple crop in the near future. Two thousand trees have been purchased and will be planted on the farms of W. M. Pearson, J. L. Michaelz, W. E. Adams, J. H. Warren, Willoughby Adams and S. A. Pennick, all within a radius of a few miles from Weiser.

Some excellent records were made in the Italian prume production in the valley last year and the outlook for this season is far more promising. As an illustration of what may be expected Mr. Pearson last year cleared $642 from 200 trees and other growers reported a profit of $6 from a single tree. Several years ago the prume output in this valley each year was enormous. Many orchards later gave way to the apple, alfalfa and other products.
