our city will add to the prosperity and welfare of every wage earner.

Wage Earners' Welfare Noted.

Completion of these roads will make it possible for many of our employes to live ourside of the city rather than in flats or apartments; to own their little homes, with good-sized garden plots; to secure by rapid service over hard-surface roads, quick access to our city and yet enjoy many of the benefits of country life.

It will cheapen the cost of living by bringing under production thousands of acres of untilled land now situated on roads that are impassable many months of the year. These hard-surface roads extending out of Portland will practically mean that Multinomah County will become one great city of suburban homes and the benefits accruing the referon will come to the poorest as well as the wealthlest of our realdants.

It will turnish immediate employment to aeveral thousand worthy men.

It will turnish increase the demand for desirable homes outside of the city. Portland is handicapped at the present time by an overpins of city population and a shortage in rural dwellers. Hard roads will overcome this difficulty to a very great degree.

"You have wen your case as far as this audience is concerned," said C. E. Cochran, president of the current events class of the Westminster Prosbyterian Church, at the conclusion of Roadmaster Yeon's address yesterday, following the sermon of the morning. The room was filled with men of prominence.

In his address Mr. Yeon outlined what the cost of the proposed hard-surface roads will be if the bonds are voted, and pointed out that the burden would rest upon those best able to carry it. He showed the figures to demonstrate that 6 per cent of the cost of the bonds, while 94 per cent of the cost. He showed where 80 per cent of the cost. He showed where 80 per cent of the form would go to labor.

"This road construction its no fad with us," said Mr. Yeon. "We ascertained that macadam will not stand the great traffic of today, and that macadam simply means epreptual motion in expenses for repairs. In Multnomah County we have the pitiful amount of 3½ miles of hard-surface roads, while 80 miles more. In

A big parade of local organizations will march through the downtown streets tonight in support of an affirmative vote on the road bonds. There will be 159 automobiles out, each with a speaker, and these will take up advantageous positions on the street corners as soon as the parade is over and talks will be made.

"The Chamber of Commerce is up in arms for the good of the city and we urge everyone to talk good roads from this time on," declared Chairman Larson. "We must carry this bond issue. Portland's future demands it. All should get busy and make votes for the bonds during the two days remaining before the election."

The personal canvass of precincts for good roads votes has been commenced already by some enthusiasts who objected to waiting until today. E. E. Coovert, assisted by H. H. Newhall. E. J. Daly and others, held a meeting in the firehouse in Precinct 15 Saturday night, which was attended by 30 men. Each was given a card with 10 names of voters in the precinct and all agreed to interview these people personally and induce them to personally and induce them to vote for the bonds.

Mr. Coovert and two others went out Saturday morning with their cards and obtained interviews with their 30 pros-pects. All reported their attitude as favorable to the bonds and the workers were much encouraged. Business houses of the city are ral-lying to the support of the bonds. lying to the support of the bonds. Letters are being sent out to employes giving arguments in favor of the issue and showing how good roads will be of benefit to Pertiand and the surrounding country. A letter sent to employes of Woodard. Charke & Co. on April 10, signed by W. F. Woodward, is a good example of this class of letters, thousands of which are being distributed.
The letter follows:

Next week will be held an election for the purpose of deciding whether Mulinomah County shall issue bonds for $1.230,000 to cover the cost of hard surface roads. We placed on exhibition articles of furniture once owned by General Rufus Putnam.

In a report submitted to the Oregon Civic League at its luncheon at the Multnomah Hotel Saturday, Charles E. They would have that tendency with fast trotting or running stock if speeded on these roads. It is not my understanding that this is intended.

"The economy of 'good roads' as compared with 'mud roads' is a matter of use. The latter cost a great deal to repair, and the more travel, the greater cost. The former cost little to maintain, the main item being the interest on the honds. This is the same, practice the honds. This is the same, pracon the bonds. This is the same, prac-tically, no matter how great the travel. The greatest economy is attained by building hard-surfaced trunk roads to stand the heavy travel between im-portant centers of traffic."

"The bill at the Majestic Theater, which opened yesterday, is one of unusual attraction and interest, The big feature is William and Dustin Farnus's great success, "The Littlest Rebel." starring E. K. Lincoln and Mimi Yvonne, of the Photo Play Productions Company. The play is a drama of the Civil War and is full of battle scenes remarkable for their realism. Tiny Mimi Yvonne, who plays the title role, has all the qualities of a natural born actress with the abandon and naturalness of the child. The father of the littlest rebel, as played by E. K. Lincoln, is a part which enables the film favorite to appear at his best in a series of dramatic, pathetic and thrilling scenes.
