

PACIFIC NORTHWEST BOXERS WIN BOUTS

Seattle Men Take Chief Honors at Far Western Meet; Ward Double Winner; Gleason Has Wide Margin in His Event.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 16.—The Pacific Northwest Association took a long lead over its competitors in the first 15 bouts of the Far Western boxing championships held here last night, taking six out of the 15. Five of the winners belong to the Seattle Athletic Club, and one to Multnomah Club, of Portland.

Multnomah Club turned out one winner and one loser in the evening's affair. Earl Miebus, in the light-heavyweight class, defeated M. Wolgast, unattached, San Francisco, after three rounds of fast boxing, in which the Oregon man clearly excelled.

Referee Wells gave the decision to A. Gardner, of the Deseret Gymnasium, Salt Lake, over Walter Knowlton, Multnomah Club, Portland, after three rounds of fast fighting. They fought in the 145-pound class.

Knowlton Only Northwest Loser.

Knowlton was the only entry from the Pacific Northwest Association to lose in the first 15 bouts up to midnight tonight.

The fastest bout was that between Henry Gleason, of Seattle, and Gonzales, of the Visitation Valley Athletic Club, in the 125-pound class. This proved to be a rather easy affair. Gleason had Gonzales at his mercy from the ring of the first gong and chased him all over the ring, landing on him apparently at will.

Walker, of the Inter Mountain Association, to the mat for the count in the first round, in the 135-pound class, and W. Himefield, of Los Angeles, winning by the same route in the second round in the 125-pound class.

AGGIES HARD AT WORK

COACH FITTING MEN FOR MEET WITH MULTNOMAH SATURDAY. Heavy Schedule is Ahead but Dr. Stewart Says Despite Recent Defeat Men Will Make Good Showing.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, April 16.—(Special.)—Hard work, and lots of it, has been the lot of the Aggie track athletes since their return from Portland last Saturday, and stiff and sore muscles are fast disappearing. The Columbia meet brought the weaknesses of the squad to light and from now on Coach Stewart will drill his men hard in an effort to make them a strong factor in coming conference meets.

The poor showing the team made at the Columbia meet came as a surprise to Corvallis fans, but the coach is offering no alibi. "Wait until the season is over," he said. "O. A. C. has a strong bunch of track men, and in the larger meets will make a favorable showing."

A strong schedule faces the team, now that the season is fairly started. Next Saturday the Multnomah Club aggregation of stars will be met on the Corvallis track, and on April 30 Dr. Stewart will take a 15-man team to Salem, where the combined teams of Willamette University and the Chemawa Indians will be taken on. May 22 is the date set for the annual O. A. C. University of Oregon dual meet, and on May 25 a dual contest with Washington State College is scheduled. Both will be run off at the Corvallis track.

The biggest card of the season, the Northwest Conference gathering, also comes to Corvallis. May 29 is the date of the Northwest classic.

SALEM LINE'S GOAL

Willamette Valley Southern to Push Farther.

WAY RIGHTS ARE SOUGHT. President Dimick Says Road to Build Southward When It is Paying and People Grant Land for Trackage.

OREGON CITY, Or., April 16.—(Special.)—Salem is the goal of the Willamette Valley Southern.

This was the announcement by Judge Grant B. Dimick, president of the road. He added that the line may even go beyond the capital city, but all such plans are indefinite.

Two things are awaited before the construction of the extension of the road beyond Mount Angel, the present terminus, can begin. When the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company approved the $2,000,000 bond issue of the Willamette Valley Southern, the restriction was made that the line could not be built past the Marion County town until the road was on a paying basis. Judge Dimick believes that this point will be reached about October.

The other thing is the co-operation of people between Mount Angel and Salem. The company will not ask that subscriptions either to bonds or stocks be taken, but it will be expected that rights of way will be granted.

Money for Work in Hand. The money for the extension is already in sight. About a year ago the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company approved a $2,000,000 bond issue, so that there will be no difficulty when the time comes to market the bonds. Of the total sum, $650,000 of the issue has been sold, which was enough to complete the work to Mount Angel. The rest of the issue will be used in construction down the Valley.

Construction of the extension from Mount Angel may begin early in the fall, according to Judge Dimick. The only point that can delay the work, in his opinion, is trouble in obtaining rights of way. The definite route has not been made public.

The construction of the line to Beaver Creek represents the most expensive work of the entire route to Salem. The country east and southeast of Oregon is cut with gullies and many cracks. One trestle is almost 800 feet long and more than 200 feet high and there are several cuts containing several thousand cubic yards. Through the Molalla country and on south of Mount Angel the country is level and there the construction problems are simple. There were three passenger trains and one freight train making a round trip daily when the service was inaugurated, but already the company has added a fourth passenger train to accommodate the increased patronage. Although Salem has always been the destination of the road in the minds of the builders of the Willamette Valley Southern, the first suggestion that it would be extended was made Wednesday at Mount Angel in an address by Judge Dimick at a farmers' institute.
