WAR INVENTIONS SUCCEED

Artillery, Admitted by Enemy to Be Superior, Stupefies Germans in Range Who Are Not Killed. Ammunition Crisis Passed.

BY CAROLYN WILSON,

(Copyright, 1915, by the Chicago Tribune ablished by arrangement.) PARIS, March 28.—What do you suppose is happening as I write? The Zeppelins are on their way to Paris! Hark! It is the fire engines tearing through the streets, blowing their horns, and there is the bugle cry: "Garde a yous! Garde! Garde a yous!

Up the boulevards, through the little byways, in aud out of every street of Paris the message is going that the Zeppelins are on their way.

Across the street I see a maid lighting candles on the dining-room table—she has turned out the electric light. Now she draws the curtains. I cannot see any more. Every light in the street is out but the three gas lights down by the watchmaker's. Surely they won't leave those on. No, there comes the gendarme—one, two, three.

ILONDON, April 20.—The English Football Association has announced that with the close of the present season on May 5 no more professional football games will be played until after the war is ended.

"It was necessary to finish the present season even at a heavy loss," the secretary of the association explained, "because of the existing contracts for players, grounds and other things

The vibrating booms are more frequent now. I count 12, and then a sharp, barking sound. That must be the sum on lifted tower with the sum on lifted tower. the gun on Elffel tower. Where are they—the Zeppelins? Up above the clouds? And can the watchers on Elffel tower see them, and are some, of these noises we hear bombs? And are people being killed, perhaps, in some other quarter of the city?

End of Danger Signalled.

The guns are silent. The crowd still stays talking volubly, and surely gesticulating madly if one could only see.

And then another hour and I am almost asleep, when I hear the fire engines making their way again through the ctly more sedately, and I hear their their way again through the ctly more sedately, and I hear their their way again through the ctly more sedately, and I hear their their way again through the ctly more sedately, and I hear their their way again through the ctly more sedately, and I hear their the first page.)

Ammunition Crisis Is Over. The famous "75" guns are in as good condition as they were the first day they were put in use, although it was not expected that they would stand such steady use, nor that they would stand such steady use, nor that they would continue to consume with such unvarying regularity. With the continued manufacture of these guns the output that handled 1060 cases, of which the first amountifon has been tremendous total number of those who died was and for a while there was an amount of these or only 3 per cent. I have talked with many men who come home from the front who are now so accustomed to the life that certain necessities seem like luxuries to them. They say, "O, yes; it goes all right."

But one must talk to a civilian who has made the trip through the trenches to understand how perfectly everything functions, how not a single cog is to be allowed to slip in the machine that

It went the way of other progressive parties, some of which were not organized in Japan, but its founder and leader is still described as a progressive. Today he stands as a man without a party, but declares himself for the principle of "constitutional government" as against the bureaucracy of the Selyukai.

There is another little party, called the Sciyukai.

There is another little party, called Chuseikai, organized by the effervescent and ubiquitous Ozaki, formerly Mayor of Tokio, who was needed in the Okuma ministry but declined to go along with the Doshikai organization and so founded one of his own. Government Meets Defent.

This was a popular cry of opposition. For Japan is hard up, there is no doubt of that. The war in Europe has hit this country quite as hard as it hit the United States and in much the same manner.

The chief industry of Japan is silk. France is one of its chief markets for silk. The war has hed best the same of the chief markets for silk. silk. The war has had just the same kind of effect on the Japanese silk market that it had on American cotton, and the Japanese government has been wrestling with the same kind of a cry for heip from the silk producers that our government has had to deal with from the cotton men of the South. And this government has not made any

But the foreign office has been able to maintain such mystery and secrecy about them that nobody seems to know really what they are, and they may easily turn out to be far less drastic than has been imagined.

A tremendous effort was made to force them to conclusion before the election, but that failed, and then resort was had to the purely personal appeal by Count Okuma and the members of the government.

Now the Government is, of course justified in contending that it has been sustained by the country both as to the wo divisions and as to its demands o China. The general expectation is however, that there will be no imme-diate effort for increase of the Army although that may be renewed at nex Winter's session.

Situation Becomes Acute. It is also expected that the Chinese negotiations will be concluded soon, and that the result will be announced and fully explained. The situation is becoming more acute in one sense, because of the growing boycott on Japanese goods by the Chinese.

China is Japan's chief customer, and a boycott of that kind can be made extremely effective. Compine at a time
