Colonel Says He Consulted Barnes, Who Was Both Good and Bad, in Hope Dr. Jekyll in Him Would Overcome Mr. Hyde.

then and in New York. That amused Mr. Barnes immensely, as it did the spectators.

Only once did the Colonel exhibit any outward sign of fatigue. That was well toward the end of the proceedings, when he placed his elbow on the Judge's bench beside him and bent his head over to one side until it rested on his hand. He remained in that position while a series of letters were being read to the jury, the thumb and index finger of his right hand toying with his watch chain.

Mr. Barnes went to Albany tonight, but Colonel Roosevelt elected to remain in Syracuse until Monday. Several conferences have been arranged for tomorrow by attorneys on both sides.

Early Friendship Brought Out.

Letters tending to show former friendly relations between the Colonel and Mr. Barnes were introduced at the opening of the cross-examination today. The Colonel admitted he had complied with many suggestions made by Mr. Barnes with regard to the filing of state offices while the Colonel was Governor.

Mr. Ivins read from Colonel Roosevelt's autobiography and twitted the Colonel with borrowing its language in his testimony.

"I do not know," the witness replied. "I do not think so. It might be."

"In your statement you refer to invisible government. Now this is from your autobiography."

Mr. Ivins read an excerpt that had to do with invisible government and publicity for candidates until Monday. Several conferences have been arranged for tomorrow by attorneys on both sides.

"Who succeeded Mr. Croker in the leadership of Tammany Hall?"

"I've told you, Mr. Murphy."

"Don't you know there was a triumvirate in control of Tammany Hall?"

"I don't know about that. I know there was a fight in which several persons, including Mr. 'Fingy' (William J.) Connors, of Buffalo, were concerned. I don't know which side he was on. I just heard of it."

"Well, now, while you were Governor there was invisible government, you say. Why didn't you make an attack then similar to the one you made on Mr. Barnes?"

"If they had blooded the legislation I wanted I would have."

"Barnes invited to White House. Did you invite Mr. Barnes to the White House in Washington?"

"Yes."

"You did that in spite of his mistrust to the people and the 'invisible empire'?"

"Yes."

"Did you use the words, 'invisible government,' in 1899 or 1900?"

"No."

"Did you ever discuss invisible government with Mr. Barnes in Albany?"

"I did not discuss the specific phrase. I did discuss my official duty and contributions to the campaign funds by big business interests."

Ivins read a sentence from the autobiography about Platt's most efficient lieutenants being men of the highest standing in the community.

"Did you include Mr. Barnes in these lieutenants in 1913?"

"No."

"Did you include him in that class in 1899 or 1900?"

"No."

"If you did not so regard him, why did you consult and associate with him?"

"Because I thought he was above the average of the run of politicians. I believed he might become a most useful citizen."

Jekyll and Hyde in Politics.

"Did you discuss his moral standards with him?"

"I did. I expressed my hopes to him."

"So while you were in Albany you were acting as a political monitor in order to make him a good citizen?"

"I tried to get every man to act properly. Most politicians had bad natures, however. I regarded Mr. Barnes as a Dr. Jekyll and a Mr. Hyde. He had two sides, a good and a bad one, as other politicians had."

Ivins read a letter written on White House stationery by Roosevelt to Barnes, telling him of appointing him to office.

"Did you appoint 'Mr. Hyde' Barnes or 'Dr. Jekyll' Barnes?"

"I wanted to bring the Dr. Jekyll out in him. The Treasury Department said he had done his work well and deserved reappointment."

"So you tried to cut the ligaments between the Siamese twins—'Jekyll and Hyde'?"

"Oh, no. I was trying to get one to absorb the other."

The examination turned to a discussion of bosses. Colonel Roosevelt almost caused Mr. Barnes to laugh by saying that he did not regard Harry S. New, of Indiana, as a "boss" in the New York sense. He did not consider Murray Crane, of Massachusetts, as a boss, he said.

"Was Mr. Penrose a boss?" asked Mr. Jones.

"He was, I would not have him for chairman. I put Mr. Cortelyou in this place."

"You didn't hesitate to dictate who should be chairman, did you?"

"I wouldn't have Mr. Penrose."

"Bosses? Under Discussion."

The witness could not remember who was the New York member.

"Wasn't it William L. Ward?"

"That's right, William L. Ward," and the Colonel smiled.

"Was he boss of Westchester?"

"He was boss of Westchester and a good friend of mine," asserted the witness, and the crowd laughed.

"Did you ever hear of Joseph Cannon of Danville?"

"I did not."

"Was he a boss?"

"He was boss of the House of Representatives until he was overthrown."

"He came back, didn't he?"

"Yes, but not as boss of the House of Representatives."

Mr. Ivins took up a list of contributors to the National campaign fund. He denied specific information, but presumed that Jacob H. Schiff, James Speyer, George W. Perkins and Andrew Carnegie were contributors.

"Do you know the initials 'J. H. H.'?" asked Mr. Ivins.

"Yes, that man was urged upon me for Ambassador to France. I offered to make him Minister to Venezuela, but he wouldn't accept."

"Did you fail to appoint James Haas Hyde as Ambassador to France because he was connected with the New York Life Insurance Company?"

"No. I thought he was too young for

ARMAMENT FIRMS RAPPED

Feeling Shown Because Washington Falls to Trouble About Food Requirements of One, While Sending Arms to Other.

AMSTERDAM, via London, April 23.—Regarding Secretary of State Bryan's answer to the recent memorandum sent by Count Bernstorff, the German Ambassador at Washington, to the State Department, Berlin newspapers received here make the following comments:

The Tagliche Rundschau says: "America takes all possible trouble over the ammunition requirements of our enemies, ostensibly from a love of neutrality. She does not trouble about the possible food requirements of Germany. This also is done from a love of neutrality."

The Vossische Zeitung says in the same connection: "Washington should recognize that such an attitude on the part of America will not speedily be forgotten in Germany."

The Lokal Anzeiger says: "The German standpoint on this question is founded on thoroughly established facts and practice of international law. The American standpoint can be explained only by the profits of the armament firms."

The Morgen Post, under a headline reading "Remarkable Neutrality," says: "This answer sounds like a mockery of the German standpoint as presented by Count von Bernstorff, although, of course, this is not Secretary Bryan's intention."

Bryan Declared "Cynically Frank." "Nobody outside the White House believes that the delivery of arms and other supplies is not a violation of neutrality and that its prohibition would be unneutral. It remains for Mr. Bryan to proclaim with such cynical frankness that the weapon trade to one belligerent is real neutrality."

Die Post makes no comment except for the headline, "America Further Shows Its Character."

PORTLAND LOSES OFFICE

Other Cities of West to Fare Likewise and Work Will Be Directed From Denver Headquarters.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The office of the Reclamation Service at Portland, in charge of Supervising Engineer Hopson, is soon to be abolished, in accordance with the plan of reorganization and retrenchment being worked out by the Reclamation Commission.

All other offices of supervising engineers in Western cities, such as Boise, Idaho, and Salt Lake, will be abolished, and it is proposed to establish one central office at Denver, from which field work will be directed, subject to supervision of the commission at Washington.

It is explained that work on many projects has progressed to a point where some of the high-salaried men in the service can be dispensed with, while others will be transferred to Denver. Whether Mr. Hopson will be transferred or dropped has not yet been determined.

Hereafter work in Oregon will be in charge of project engineers at Umatilla and Klamath and they will report directly to the Denver office.

'MEDICAL TRUST' PLAN OUT

Charge of Misuse of Mail Is Urged Against Institutions.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Methods employed by a "medical trust" operating many of the institutions raided by the New York police in a sweeping crusade against such institutions have been disclosed to the authorities by Dr. Frank T. Brough, one of the physicians arrested, according to a statement accredited today to the office of Mrs. Marian K. Clark, an investigator of the State Labor Department.

It was reported that the real head of the string of medical institutes raided here Wednesday is a Chicago millionaire, who employs managers for the "branch" institutions.

As a result of inquiries made since the raid, the United States District Attorney has been requested to prosecute some of the institute managers for improper use of the mails, a more serious offense than the charge of maintaining a nuisance, already preferred against them.
