

BONDS' INTEREST MONEY IS LACKING

County Officials and Tax Commission Pass Blame for Oversight To and Fro.

$31,250 TAXES HELD BACK

State Treasurer's Office to Demand Funds Retained in Issue Over Interstate Bridge; Suit Looms as Settlement of Case.

SALEM, Or., April 27.—(Special).—Through an oversight of the Multnomah County officials or the State Tax Commission there will be no money in the State Treasury this year for the payment of interest on the interstate bridge bonds.

The County Court places the blame on the Tax Commission and the Commission declares the county is at fault. At any rate, no levy was made by the Commission for the payment of the money and it has none to pay.

State Treasurer Kay today received a check from the County Treasurer of Multnomah for $294,000, the last payment of the first half of the taxes, and an announcement that $31,250 had been retained for paying interest on the bonds. The annual interest is $62,500, and, unless a settlement is reached, the county will retain the balance out of the last-half tax payments.

County Declared in Wrong.

Under the law providing for the bridge, notification of the interest on the bonds must be made to the State Tax Commission by the County Court before January 1 each year. Notification was mailed to the Commission the last day of December, but the tax levy had been made and the various counties notified of it. It was then too late to make a change to include a levy for the payment of interest on the bonds.

"No levy having been made for that specific purpose, the county clearly has no right to withhold money with which to pay this interest," declared Assistant State Treasurer Ryan. "This department cannot be held responsible for the mistake, for it needs every cent for specific appropriations."

Money Held Is to Be Demanded.

"If the county insists upon retaining the money, the only thing I see to do is for the State Treasurer to demand interest on it. That probably would result in the filing of a suit to determine whether the state has to pay. This office will make a demand upon the County Treasurer for the money which he is withholding."

The law provides for the holding of the bridge empowered Multnomah County to raise the money for building it by issuing bonds, the state to pay the interest on the bonds. After a certain period the county is to start a sinking fund to liquidate the indebtedness.

State Treasurer Kay said that he would notify the members of the Tax Commission tomorrow of the action of the Multnomah County Treasurer, and it is probable that Attorney-General Brown will be asked to advise the Commission regarding what steps it should take to collect the money.

FOUNDERS' DAY SATURDAY

Seventy-Second Anniversary Celebration to Be at Champeog.

The seventy-second anniversary of Founders' Day and the fifteenth celebration of the same will take place at Champeog Saturday. The exercises will be informal and in charge of members of the Oregon Pioneer Association and Oregon Historical Society, with Judge P. H. D'Arcy, of Salem, president of the day. Governor Withycombe will make a short address, followed with 5-minute reminiscences by pioneers and others. The veteran quartet, Messrs. W. N. Morse, Z. M. Parvin, J. E. Hall and A. W. Mills, will accompany the excursion.

A number of Chinook songs will be rendered by Mrs. L. E. Bartlett, E. B. McFarland and others. The disposal of capacious lunch baskets will be the initial number on the programme. A number of teachers are planning to take classes in order that their pupils may get an idea of some of the sources of the unwritten history of Oregon. No trip out of Portland for one day affords more pleasure than this 22-mile ride up the Willamette River to Champeog, where the initial act of the first American civil government on the Pacific Coast took place. The excursionists will take the steamer Oregon, at the foot of Taylor street at 7 A. M., and, returning, will take the steamer Grahamaona at Champeog at 3:30 P. M.

MR. GOLDSTEIN CANDIDATE

Ex-Newspaper Man Seeks Election as City Auditor.

Monroe Goldstein, manufacturers' agent, yesterday announced his candidacy for City Auditor in the June election.

Mr. Goldstein is 37 years old and has been a resident of Portland for nine years. During that time he has been in the newspaper and publicity business and in the automobile business.

In his platform he opposes perpetuation in office of any public official. He pledges himself not to seek reelection as City Auditor if he is elected.

His platform continues:

I am unalterably opposed to jugglery with the civil service, and believe that every municipal employe should receive a living wage for services rendered, the remuneration to be predicated not on a fallacious theory of economy but on ability and the prevailing high cost of living.

I stand committed to the strict enforcement of section 18 H of the charter, which absolutely prohibits any city official, during his term of service, from holding any other office or position, or pursuing any other business or vocation.

If elected it will be my policy to install, wherever needed, the most approved and modern methods of accounting and auditing so the end that efficiency in fact as well as in theory shall prevail in the handling of the city's business.

I believe in the fullest publicity of all municipal matters and agree to keep all of the people informed, all of the time, of the inside operations of the city government.

Hotel Wins Against Receivership.

SALEM, Or., April 27.—(Special).—The Supreme Court today, in an opinion by Justice Harris, held that there was not sufficient grounds for the appointment of a receiver for the hotel owned by the Tillamook Hotel Company in Tillamook and directed the receiver appointed by Circuit Judge Holmes to turn over the property of the corporation to the officers. John Leonard Henderson, a stockholder, sued to oust P. J. Worrall and wife from the management of the company, alleging that the hotel was not properly managed.

CEREMONIES ARE IN PLAZA

No Church Large Enough to Hold Great Throng of Mourners; Business Places and Schools of Little City Close.

EUGENE, Or., April 27.—(Special).—All Creswell attended the joint funeral this morning of the five victims of Sunday's accident. It was held in the public plaza, for there was no church large enough to house those who came. Six hundred uncovered heads bowed in the sunlight of a beautiful Spring day, as the closing tributes were paid over the bodies.

Rev. A. Lucas, a brother-in-law of F. E. Sly, arrived a week ago from the interior of India. The two families had not seen each other for 45 years, and Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Lucas, missionaries in India, had come half way around the globe to pay a visit. He arrived in time to assist in the funeral services, and the few words that he spoke were among the most impressive.

The services were simple. There was no long sermon, no formalities. A brief sketch of the lives of each of the children and that of Mr. Sly without unnecessary words was related by those who spoke. Rev. M. A. Prator, of the Presbyterian Church; Rev. E. S. Bishop, of the Methodist Church; Rev. Jasper Bogue, of the Christian Church and Rev. Mr. Stratford, a resident of Creswell, spoke briefly.

All business was suspended in the little city, that, surrounded on all sides by miles of blossoming fruit trees, wore its prettiest dress. The schools were closed, and the pupils, all playmates of the four children taken from their midst, were scarcely able to grasp the fact that they were gone forever. Their quiet part in the funeral formed one of the most impressive parts of the services.

The members of the Oddfellows Lodge formed an escort for the body of F. E. Sly as it was taken from his home to the plaza in the center of the city, and they, too, took part in the services. Two huge funeral processions, with four hearses, extending for perhaps a mile, formed after the services.

Little Bellah Morse was laid to rest beside the body of her mother in the Walker Cemetery south of Creswell. The bodies of Dorris Trainor and Vincent Trainor were buried in the same grave in the Creswell Cemetery, and the bodies of George Robinette and F. E. Sly were interred in other graves in the same cemetery.
