MOTOR trips with tea at the end were abandoned yesterday because of the unpleasant weather. However, the bridge party for which Mrs. Frank Edward Hart was hostess, complimenting Miss Sullivan, yesterday was more than made up for, as the lure of a balmy, sunshiny afternoon is most distracting to bridge players.

Also, the large and charming bridge tea for which Mrs. Thompson was hostess yesterday was a joyous welcome from the chilly, blustering outdoors. The Thompson residence on Portland Heights was a perfect bower of beautiful and fragrant blossoms, arranged by the artistic Miss Ella Stephens. Card tables were arranged in the drawing-rooms, and a large number of guests joined the party at tea time. Quantities of Spanish iris in tones of purple, shading from the palest lavender to the deepest purple were combined with white iris and arranged in Oriental bowls. The urns were presided over by Mrs. William Washburn, of Minneapolis, and Mrs. H. C. Wilson, while Mrs. Charles F. Beebe and Mrs. William MacIntosh served iced, Mrs. Lewis I. Thompson assisted the hostess in receiving the guests.

From 2 until 6 o'clock today the Fruit and Flower Day Nursery will be opened to the public. The board of directors will welcome all who are interested in the hours, and prominent matrons and maids will preside at the tea and coffee urns and serve refreshments. Many men who contribute generously to the institution are taking as much interest in the reception as the women.

Complete in every detail is the charity performance of "An Artist's Romance," which will be given tonight at the Eleventh Street Playhouse before Portland's representative social and educational sets. Walter Gilbert, who has coached the players in the comedy, is expected to direct. Miss Mayne Helen Flynn has planned an artistic musical programme, in which several of Portland's leading musicians will participate. The flower and candy booths, at which a group of attractive Chi Omega girls will preside, promises to be delightfully attractive.

A complete list of those in the boxes will include Superintendent Alderman and Mrs. Alderman, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Meier, Mrs. Emery Olmstead, Mrs. Sanford P. Lowensart, Mrs. Ben Selling, Joseph Finley, Adolph Eller, Mrs. Alva Lee Stephens, Mrs. E. E. Covert, Waldemar Lind, Mrs. F. Joplin, Mrs. Helen Laig Corbett, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Kerr, Mrs. Helen A. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Groat, Professor R. R. Steele, Mayor and Mrs. Albee, Mrs. Holt C. Wilson and the East Side Business Men's Club.

In addition to the patronesses already announced, the list includes: Meadames W. L. Pledner, W. H. Warrens, N. P. Palmer, W. J. Halmer, Mrs. W. H. Warrens, H. Terwilliger, Ellen Rogers, J. Francis Drake, E. A. Sommer, O. M. Plummer, J. V. Beach, Allen Welch Smith, M. G. Munly, D. A. Groat.

TALKS ON DOMESTIC SCIENCE
BY LILLIAN TINGLE.

Some quite plausible imitation bolts that would be rather decorative; but personally I should prefer "ordinary" decorations of greenery or flowers to any "worked-up" cotton idea. Don't suspend strings, with "dabs" of cotton batting tied at intervals, in "festoons" or "showers" from the ceiling, as I saw suggested in a "home" magazine lately. The effect is rather silly anyway; but, worse than that, bits of fluff break loose and float around in a disagreeable manner.

In connection with your refreshments, you might perhaps use some "fairy floss candy," which has a decided resemblance to cotton, both in appearance and taste.

PORTLAND, April 29.—I am employed in a department store and wish to give a party on May 1 to my girl and women friends.

As we have no music, I thought you could tell me a couple of games, sort of laughing ones, and one that I could give a couple of prizes for. Thanking you in advance.
Miss M. E. E.

I am sorry to disappoint you, but it is never possible for me to send replies by mail. You don't tell me how many guests you will have, so that it is difficult to suggest suitable games. An impromptu costume party is often amusing. Where it is strictly a girl's affair and you know that no one would mind, it is possible to have great fun with a "new style" hairdressing competition; or to have each guest bring "any old thing" in the shape of an old hat and a bit of trimming, draw lots for the hats and then have a "hat-trimming contest," done in 15 minutes with pins, tissue paper, etc.

Acting charades is amusing if you have a good leader; or a "stunt" contest. In the latter those who cannot sing or dance or tell a story usually can do some kind of an imitation.

If you go to the Public Library you will find a number of books on "entertaining," containing detailed suggestions for all sorts of games. "May baskets" of candy would be suitable prizes.

Fortune telling is almost always popular and amusing. Perhaps you or one of your guests might "play ripsy" and tell fortunes, by tea grounds, cards, dominoes, numbers, palms, eyebrows—or almost anything just for fun.

Parent Teacher Associations

PORTLAND will entertain two important conventions this month. First there will be the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations. They are to be here May 12-16. After a lull of a few days the federated clubs with about 2000 delegates will arrive. For the first gathering, Mrs. Arlene Felts, president of the Oregon Congress of Mothers, and all the committee chairmen and helpers are busily planning. Only a short time remains in which to complete the preparations for the coming of hundreds of women to attend the convention of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations.
