PROMINENT NEW YORK GIRL WHO WAS MARRIED THIS WEEK.

Mrs. William L. Fairchild (Cornelia Cammann)

Cornelia DeLancy Cammann, the daughter of Charles L. Cammann, Jr., one of the most popular girls of the younger society set of New York, the past winter, was married Wednesday, William L. Fairchild, Jr., being the bridegroom. Mr. Fairchild is the son of Samuel W. Fairchild, Bishop Greer performed the ceremony.

sent for the honest baker and put him in his kitchen to cook tarts and buns for him.

One day the wicked nephew went to the baker to see what he was doing. He found the old King very fond and if he would use it to flavor the buns and tarts he was sure the old King would be pleased and reward him for trying to please him.

The baker took the bottle which the nephew gave him and was about to use it, when the thought came to him why didn't the King tell me to use his favorite flavoring? I am here to do his bidding. I think I will find out more about this before I use it.

So the baker made his tarts and buns as he always had and the nephew waited in vain for the old King to die that night from the poison in the buns and tarts, for that was what he had given the baker to use, calling it the King's favorite flavoring.

The baker took the bottle to a chemist and found that it contained poison, and without saying a word to the King the baker went home and began to watch the nephew.

One day when the nephew was certain the baker did not intend to use the flavoring he had given and not suspecting that the baker knew what it really was, the nephew stole down to the kitchen and poured the poison into a pitcher of milk which the baker had ready to use in making.

Now it happened that the baker heard the nephew and hid just before he reached the kitchen. When he saw what he had done he was so shocked with the pitcher of milk and told him what had occurred.

This was the first time the King had been really sure that his nephew was trying to poison him, so he called him to him and told him he wanted him to drink a glass of milk with him, that it was very rich and creamy, and he wanted to share it with him.

Then the nephew turned pale and fell on the floor, the business meeting, a musical program was given by Miss Catherine Davis and Miss D. Witche. Mr. C. Haynes and Miss Constance Piper, Mrs. E. Hance, Mrs. F. Robinson, Mrs. L. Holmes and Mrs. Alkin are to be the hostesses for the next meeting, May 15, at Peninsula Park.

The meeting closed with the usual dancing of the Virginia reel.

The annual meeting of the Portland Women's Union, with a business session and election of officers, will be held at 2:30 o'clock Monday in the Anna Lewis Hall. After the business meeting tea will be served.

Mrs. Helen Davenport entertained the Corriente Club at luncheon on Wednesday. The rooms and table were decorated with Spring flowers. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Charlotte Holcomb on May 11. Roll call at the last gathering was answered with "Oregon Industries," "Argentina" was the subject of papers read by Miss Faye Killingsworth and Mrs. M. Moore.

cient part of the animal in him to demand some cooking. and it is worth heeding, is it not? All about us today we see wrecks of what might be happy homes caused by the lack of knowledge of housekeeping.

Often in the home where food does not nourish and satisfy, there is recourse to stimulants. Statistics of temperance show that in many cases lack of substantial food has been the underlying cause of the drinking habit. Here is another line undermining the happiness of the home.

Lack of knowledge of housekeeping and of cooking means wastefulness. There is injudicious buying. There is waste in preparing and cooking. Expenses run far ahead of income. The home is broken up because it cannot be kept up. Or there are bitter words, quarrels, accusations and recriminations, and the home falls in ruins. And again, lack of knowledge of housekeeping runs out.

So that the advice of the old housekeeper is worth heeding—"Kissings don't last, Cookery do." Only for the greatest happiness is there to be a partnership of these two essentials with cooking for the senior member of the firm.

DR. A. L. BROWN LEAVES AFTER VISIT TO Y. W. C. A.

Director of Physical Education of National Association Board Goes to Salem Where She Will Speak.

The chief thing of interest to Y. W. C. A. workers the past week has been the visit of Dr. Anna L. Brown, director of physical education and hygiene of the National Y. W. C. A. Board.

During Dr. Brown's stay in the city she was the guest of some of the secretaries of the different departments each day at luncheon and dinner. She had interviews with Harry H. Moore and Earl Cummings, of the city's social hygiene department, and she discussed with Miss James, the local general secretary, the new idea of making each department of Y. W. C. A. work re-

Perhaps one might add a corollary that kissing will last if cookery accompanies it. It must be confessed, it is not a romantic accompaniment, but it is not to be preferred to the other? The eyes of age saw but one of the partnership and counseled holding on to that one. The eyes of youth, still gazing through rose-colored glasses, refused to admit so ordinary a thing as a cook stove into her circle of vision.

AGED, WRINKLED FACES Easily Rejuvenated

An aged face is often only a mask to a comparatively youthful person. Rejuvenation is a confidence young and fair to look upon. It is a simple matter to remove the mask. Ordinary mercerized soaps, to be had at any drugstore, gradually absorb the worn-out surface skin; in a week or two the user has the loveliest pinky white complexion imaginable. An ounce of the wax is usually sufficient to complete the transformation. It is put on at night like cold cream and taken off in the morning with warm water.
